RAVENS 2008 REVIEW / 2009 INFORMATION

2008 OVERVIEW

Surprising Baltimore finished 2nd in the AFC North, but advanced to the playoffs where they lost to the Super Bowl champion Steelers in the AFC Championship game. The Ravens earned the 2nd Wild Card spot in the playoffs with an 11-5 record, which included a 9-2 mark after starting the season 2-3. Baltimore set an NFL record for most wins by a team with both a rookie head coach (John Harbaugh) and rookie QB (Joe Flacco). The Ravens finished 1 game behind Pittsburgh (12-4) in the division. Impressive victories came at Miami (27-13), at Houston (41-13), over the Eagles (36-7) and at Dallas (33-24) in the last game played at Texas Stadium. Most difficult of the losses were 2 memorable battles with Pittsburgh (23-20 in OT at Pit. and 13-9) and a home loss to Tennessee (13-10). The Ravens, who played 18 consecutive weeks because of the loss of their bye (rescheduled due to Hurricane Ike), won at Miami (27-9) in the Wild Card game and beat the Titans in the Divisional contest at Nashville (13-10). Baltimore then fell at Pittsburgh in the AFC title game (23-14).

2008 DEFENSE

The Ravens' defense, coordinated by then-assistant head coach Rex Ryan, enjoyed another dominant season. Ranked 2nd in the NFL, the defense set 3 team records: opponent QB rating (60.6), rushing TDs allowed (4) and rushing 1st downs allowed (58). Baltimore led the NFL with 26 INTs, including a league-high 9 by S Ed Reed. Baltimore was 3rd against the run and 2nd vs. the pass in 2008. The Ravens were tops in the NFL producing "3-and-outs" (60). They did not allow a 100-yard rusher for the 2nd straight season (current string is a NFL-best 35 games, dating back to 2006).

2008 OFFENSE

Rookie QB Joe Flacco (18th selection in 1st round) started every game for Cam Cameron and the Ravens' offense. In Flacco's 1st 5 games, when the Ravens went 2-3, he threw 1 TD and 7 INTs for a QB rating of 60.6. Over the last 11 games of the regular season (9-2), Flacco threw 13 TDs with 5 INTs and produced a 90.2 rating. (Joe's QB mark of 91.7 in road games was 3rd best in the NFL in '08.) The Ravens were the only team in the NFL to have RBs gain over 900 (Le'Ron McClain), 650 (Willis McGahee) and 450 (Ray Rice) rushing yards. Baltimore led the NFL in time of possession (33:10). WR Derrick Mason produced 80 catches for 1,037 yards.

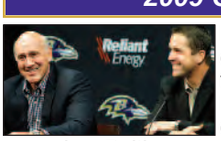
2008 SPECIAL TEAMS

K Matt Stover, who is 41 and completed his 19th regular season, is the 3rd-most-accurate kicker (83.7%, min. 150 att.) and 5th-highest scorer (1,944) in league history. After starting the season making 4 of 7 FGs, "Mr. Reliable" stepped up and made 23 of 26 the rest of the campaign. P Sam Koch set a number of Ravens records and produced the NFL's 5th-best net average (39.9). LB Brendon Ayanbadejo was voted as the AFC's Pro Bowl special teamer.

WIZARD OF OZ

Starting with the 1st 2 choices in team history (1996), likely Hall of Famers Jonathan Ogden and Ray Lewis, Ozzie Newsome and his staff have consistently drafted well. Based on the NFL's 2008 Week 1 rosters, Baltimore drafted the 2nd-highest percentage (60.8) of players on NFL rosters and 3rd highest on its own team. The free-agent signing of S Jim Leonhard and trade for CB Fabian Washington last April saved a secondary that lost starters CB Chris McAlister and S Dawan Landry to Injured Reserve in 2008.

2009 COACHING CHANGES



Following the departure of former defensive coordinator Rex Ryan, who was hired as the Jets' head coach on Jan. 21, the Ravens named Greg Mattison their new defensive coordinator on Jan. 26. Mattison served as Baltimore's LBs coach in 2008 and became the 4th "D" coordinator in franchise history: Ryan – 2005-08; Mike Nolan – 2002-04; Marvin Lewis – 1996-2001. Before joining the Ravens last season – his 1st in the NFL – Mattison coached for 37 years on the collegiate level, including 10 as a defensive coordinator at top-notch programs such as Florida, Notre Dame and Michigan.

Head coach John Harbaugh also announced that Vic Fangio, who was Baltimore's assistant to the head coach/defense the past 3 seasons, was promoted to LBs coach. Also, special teams coordinator Jerry Rosburg has earned the title of assistant head coach.

2009 OPPONENTS

In 2009, the Ravens will play the AFC West and the NFC North. Baltimore will also face Indianapolis and New England, both teams that finished 2nd in their respective divisions in 2008.

2008 SEASON HONORS

ST Brendon Ayanbadejo
Pro Bowl - 3rd Appearance
He led the team with a career-high 30 special teams tackles, helping P Sam Koch average the NFL's No. 5 net avg. (39.9).

QB Joe Flacco
Diet Pepsi NFL Rookie of the Year (NFL.com fan vote)
Flacco became the 1st rookie QB to ever win 2 playoff games, leading the Ravens to the AFC Championship game. He finished the year 257-of-428 for 2,971 yards and 14 TDs.

NFL Offensive Rookie of the Month - November
Flacco completed 83 of 140 passes (59.3%) for 1,060 yards, 9 TDs and just 2 INTs, leading the Ravens to a 4-1 record.

NFL Rookie of the Week
In Week 8 vs. Oakland, Flacco completed 12 of 24 passes for 140 yards, including a 70-yard TD pass. He also ran for a 12-yard TD and caught a 43-yard pass from fellow QB Troy Smith.

AFC Offensive Player of the Week
In Week 9 at Cleveland, Flacco led the Ravens back from a 14-point deficit, finishing 17-of-29 for 248 yards and 2 TDs.

P Sam Koch
AFC Special Teams Player of the Week
In the win at Dallas, he punted 5 times for a 52.2-yard average (2 in the 20). One of his best plays came on 4th-and-6 when the Ravens lined up for a FG at Dallas' 22. Taking the snap, he bolted 9 yards for a 1st down, a play that led to a Baltimore TD.

LB Ray Lewis
Pro Bowl (Starter) - 10th Appearance / 1st-Team All-Pro (AP)
Lewis led the Ravens' No. 2 defense with 160 tackles (84 solo). He also had 3.5 sacks, 3 INTs and 2 FRs on the season.

AFC Defensive Player of the Week
In Week 10 at Houston, Lewis registered 9 tackles and 2 INTs in the Ravens' 41-13 win over the Texans.

PFW's 2008 Midseason All-Pro Team
In 8 games, Lewis posted a team-high 83 tackles, 1 sack, 5 PD and 1 FF, leading one of the NFL's top defenses.

WR Derrick Mason
Pro Bowl 3rd-Alternate
Mason had team highs of 80 catches for 1,037 yards and 5 TDs. 2008 marked his 7th 1,000-yard campaign, also surpassing 10,000 career receiving yards (790 for 10,061).

FB Le'Ron McClain
Pro Bowl (Starter) - 1st Appearance / 1st-Team All-Pro (AP)
McClain rushed for a team-high 902 yards and 10 TDs this season, also helping pave the way for the Ravens' No. 4-ranked rush attack, which averaged 148.5 yards per game.

DT Haloti Ngata
Pro Bowl 1st-Alternate / 2nd-Team All-Pro (AP)
Ngata, who finished the season leading the D-line with 77 tackles, also posted 2 INTs and 1 sack.

S Ed Reed
Pro Bowl (Starter) - 5th Appearance
1st-Team All-Pro (AP) - Only Unanimous Selection
In 2008, Reed totaled an NFL-high 9 INTs for 264 return yards. He also had 2 INT-TDs, including an NFL-record 107-yarder.

NFL Defensive Player of the Month - December
In 4 December games – when the Ravens went 3-1 – Reed posted 16 tackles and 6 INTs, adding 1 FF, 2 FRs (1 returned for a 22-yard TD) and a sack.

AFC Defensive Player of the Week
In Week 14 vs the Redskins, Reed forced a fumble, scooped the ball up and returned it for a 22-yard TD. Reed also had 2 INTs in the game, his 2nd dual-pick performance in 2008.

AFC Defensive Player of the Week
In Week 12 vs. the Eagles, Reed posted 2 INTs, a PD and 2 tackles. The picks (returned a total of 150 yards) included his 107-yarder, which is the longest in NFL history.

LB Bart Scott
Pro Bowl - 2nd-Alternate
Scott totaled 104 tackles for the Ravens' No. 2-overall defense, posting his 4th consecutive season of at least 100 stops.

LB Terrell Suggs
Pro Bowl - 3rd Appearance / 2nd-Team All-Pro (AP)
He was No. 3 on the team with a career-high 102 tackles and 1st with 8 sacks. He also had 2 INTs, both he returned for TDs.

AFC Defensive Player of the Week
In Week 7 at Miami, Suggs returned an INT 44 yards for his 1st-career TD. He also finished with 1 sack, 8 tackles and 3 QB hits.

INJURY REPORT

Baltimore was 2nd in the NFL with 19 players on Injured Reserve, which is the most in team history. Among those on the list were 3 defensive starters: Pro Bowl CB Chris McAlister (knee), NT Kelly Gregg (knee) and SS Dawan Landry (shoulder/neck). Also gone was DT Dwan Edwards (shoulder/neck), who started 13 games in '07. Others on the list include QB Kyle Boller (shoulder) and starting RG Marshal Yanda (knee).

The Ravens lost 64 games by starters -- 14 more than any other 2008 playoff team and tied for the 4th highest in the NFL, according to Rick Gosselin of The Dallas Morning News.

NUMBERS TO RAVE ABOUT

4
Rushing TDs allowed by Baltimore in 2008, the fewest in the NFL and a new franchise record (5 - 2000/2006).

9
An NFL high INTs by S Ed Reed in 2008, tying a career high he set during his 2004 NFL Defensive Player of the Year campaign. Reed totaled 264 return yards and 2 TDs from his 9 picks this year (including an NFL-record 107-yarder).

35
Consecutive games Baltimore's defense has not allowed a 100-yard rusher, the NFL's longest current streak.

2,182
Career tackles for LB Ray Lewis, including 160 in 2008. Lewis led the Ravens in stops for 11th time in his 13-year career, also posting 3 INTs, 3.5 sacks and 2 FRs.

STRONG RUN GAME

The Ravens totaled 148.5 rushing yards per game this season, standing as the NFL's No. 4 ground attack. Baltimore's 2,376 rushing yards rank as the 2nd most in franchise history behind the 2003 season's 2,674 (167.1).

Rushing Quick Hits:
- The Ravens rushed for 132 1st downs (2nd most in the NFL) and produced a league-high 592 rushing attempts.
- Baltimore's 20 rushing TDs set a franchise single-season record, breaking the old mark of 18 (2003).

3-PRONGED ATTACK

The Ravens were the only NFL team to have a player with over 450, 650 and 900 rushing yards, respectively. Using the RB-by-committee approach, Baltimore kept opponents off balance with doses of Ray Rice, Willis McGahee and Le'Ron McClain.

PUNTING = PRIME FIELD POSITION

The Ravens' punt coverage unit excelled, helping P Sam Koch produce the NFL's No. 5 net average (39.9) and No. 9 gross average (45.0) -- both franchise single-season records. Additionally, with help from special teams standouts like Pro Bowler Brendon Ayanbadejo (30 tackles), Tom Zbikowski (23 tackles) and Haruki Nakamura (14 tackles), Koch placed the NFL's most punts inside the 10 and 2nd most inside the 20 during the regular season.

HEAD COACH JOHN HARBAUGH

John Harbaugh, who built a reputation as one of the top NFL special teams coaches and tutored the Philadelphia Eagles' secondary in 2007, was announced as the new head coach of the Ravens on Jan. 19, 2008. The 46-year old, who led the Ravens to 11 wins last season (3rd most in team history) and an AFC Championship berth, is the 3rd head coach of the franchise: Ted Marchibroda (1996-98) and Brian Billick (1999-2007).

Brian Billick 12 (2000)
John Harbaugh . . .11 (2008)
Brian Billick 10 (2003)
Brian Billick 10 (2001)

Harbaugh arrived in Baltimore with 24 years of pro and college coaching experience, including the previous 10 seasons with the Eagles. John was the Eagles' special teams coach from 1998 through 2006 and headed Philly's secondary in 2007. (The head coach and special teams coach are the only 2 coaches who speak to the entire team regularly.) He was originally hired by then-head coach Ray Rhodes and subsequently retained by Andy Reid in 1999. Since Reid's arrival, the Eagles have earned the playoffs 7 times in 10 seasons, including berths in 5 NFC Championship games and 1 Super Bowl.

Harbaugh, a graduate of Miami (Ohio) – where he played defensive back – is from a "football family." His father, Jack, is a 41-year coaching veteran who won the NCAA Division I-AA championship as the head coach at Western Kentucky. His brother Jim, who was the Ravens' starting QB in 1998, played 14 NFL seasons and is the current head coach at Stanford. His sister Joani is married to Indiana basketball coach Tom Crean.

NOTE THE HARBAUGH QUOTE

"You have to take chances in life to be successful. You have to be willing to do things that the masses wouldn't do, or I don't think that you're ever going to separate yourself from the masses. Is it a little bit more of a perceived chance? Yeah, if you didn't spend the last 15 hours with John Harbaugh. But the time we spent with him gave me a comfort level that we've hired the right guy. So, a lot of things went into a lot of candidates, but the bottom line is I feel good about our choice, and I like the fact that John gets to build his legend right here."

- Ravens owner Steve Bisciotti on John Harbaugh (1/19/08)

ROOKIE SEASONS

John Harbaugh was 1 of 4 new head coaches in the NFL in 2008. The others included: Mike Smith (Atlanta), Tony Sparano (Miami) and Jim Zorn (Washington). Below are the 2008 1st-year head coaches and their team's record from '07:

MATTISON: NEW MAN FOR "D"

The Baltimore Ravens named Greg Mattison their new defensive coordinator on Jan. 26, 2009. Mattison, who served as Baltimore's LBs coach in 2008, becomes the 4th defensive coordinator in franchise history: Rex Ryan – 2005-08; Mike Nolan – 2002-04; Marvin Lewis – 1996-2001.

Before joining the Ravens last season – his 1st in the NFL – Mattison coached for 32 years on the collegiate level, including 10 as a defensive coordinator. From 2005-07, Mattison served as Florida's co-defensive coordinator/defensive line coach, helping the Gators win the National Championship in 2006. Mattison was also the "D" coordinator at Notre Dame from 1997-2001 and at Michigan from 1995-96. Under Bob Davie, while heading the Fighting Irish defense, Mattison also coached the defensive line and linebackers. As a member of Tyrone Willingham's staff (2002-04) at Notre Dame, Mattison coached the D-line and was the program's recruiting coordinator.

Mattison's ties to the Harbaugh coaching family are deep rooted. Serving as defensive coordinator and linebackers coach under Jack Harbaugh at Western Michigan from 1981-86, Mattison coached alongside John Harbaugh, who was a graduate assistant for his father from 1984-86.

"When we persuaded Greg Mattison to join us a year ago, we talked about what a special coach he is," Harbaugh said. "He has been a successful defensive coordinator at the highest levels of college, and he will succeed with us as our new defensive coordinator."

THE REX EFFECT

Rex Ryan, who on Jan. 21, 2009 was hired as head coach of the New York Jets, was retained by the Ravens during the 2008 season as defensive coordinator and assistant head coach on John Harbaugh's staff. Ryan spent 10 years with the team before going to New York. He joined the Ravens' franchise in 1999 as the team's defensive line coach, serving 6 seasons in that position, and then he was named Baltimore's defensive coordinator in 2005. Ryan garnered PFW/PFWA NFL Assistant Coach of the Year honors in 2006, when the Ravens ranked No. 1 in overall defense and finished 13-3.

Dating back to 1999, the Ravens' "D" has ranked 1st in nearly every single NFL defensive category.

STRONG TRADITION

The Ravens have had 3 standout defensive coordinators coach in their 13-year history. Here's how each coach's respective defenses stacked up during his time in Baltimore:

RAVENS "D" COORDINATOR BREAKDOWN

D Coord. (Years)	Games	Avg. PPG	Net YPG	Rush YPG	Pass YPG
Rex Ryan (2005-present)	64	17.6	277.8	84.0	193.8

Marvin Lewis (1996-2001)	96	19.0	304.0	93.0	211.0

Rex Ryan Quick Hit:

- Under Ryan, the Ravens' defense finished the season ranked 5th (2005), 1st (2006), 6th (2007) and 2nd (2008).

CAM'S NFL O.C. SUCCESS

Cam Cameron, Baltimore's offensive coordinator, guided a Ravens' attack that produced the 2nd-most points per game in team history (24.1) in 2008. Cameron, the former Dolphins head coach, was hired on Jan. 23, 2008 by John Harbaugh. The highly-sought Cameron earned Miami's top job after 5 successful years as the Chargers' O.C.

Cameron, who Harbaugh has known for 28 years, is acknowledged as one of the top developers of QBs in the NFL. Prior to his 1-year stint in Miami, 4 of Cameron's last 5 starting QBs earned Pro Bowl or collegiate All-American recognition: Philip Rivers and Drew Brees in San Diego, Antwaan Randle El, when Cameron was the Indiana head coach, and Gus Frerotte, when he tutored the QBs for the Redskins.

From 2004-06 under Cam's guidance, the Chargers' "O" never ranked lower than 10th in total net yards per game or 5th in points per game during any season. Here is San Diego's year-by-year progression with Cameron as its offensive coordinator:

- Ranked 3rd in the NFL in points per game (25.0)
- Ranked 4th in the NFL in rush yards per game (139.0)
- Ranked 5th in the NFL in fewest turnovers per game (1.4)
- Ranked 8th in the NFL in total yards per game (343.0)
- Produced 12 Pro Bowl appearances by 6 different players

RAVENS POINTS PRODUCTION

In his 1st season as offensive coordinator for the Ravens, Cam Cameron guided a Baltimore attack that produced the 2nd-most points per game in team history (24.1). That figure ranked 11th in the NFL in 2008.

RAVENS POINTS PER GAME (Single-Season Highs)

2008 STANDOUT "O" NOTES

Offensive coordinator Cam Cameron was instrumental in developing one of the most productive offenses in Ravens history. Here are several key "O" notes from the 2008 regular season:

- The Ravens ranked 4th (NFL) in rushing yards per game (148.5).
- The Ravens totaled a franchise-record 20 rushing TDs in 2008, tied for 5th most in the NFL. Baltimore also produced 3 rushing plays of at least 50 yards, tying for 2nd most in the league.
- Baltimore's "O" converted 23 of 26 3rd-and-1 plays. The Ravens' 88.5% success rate on 3rd-and-1 ranked 2nd in the NFL.
- The Ravens produced 10 pass plays of 40 or more yards, 5 of which went for TDs. The Ravens' 10 "big" aerial plays were the most in a single season since 1999 (10).
- Rookie QB Joe Flacco improved with each snap he took. Over the last 11 games -- when the Ravens went 9-2 -- Flacco posted a 90.2 QB rating while tossing 13 TDs and just 5 INTs.

NOTE THE CAM QUOTE

"The real trick in the whole thing is to build a foundation first and then within that to be creative. You talk about coach Cameron and what he's done with our offense – we're a fundamentally sound offense. We're built on a foundation that is fundamentally rock solid, and that's what we believe in. But then, within that, you build some creativity in, and guys understand that's what your offense is about."

- John Harbaugh on Cam Cameron and the Offense

55	34	21	2	86	2	3	17.5

Suggs had 2 INT-TDs on the road in 2008: a 44-yarder at Miami (10/19) and a 42-yarder at Cleveland (11/2).

DT TREVOR PRYCE

Tackles	Solo	Asst.	Sacks	Yards	PD
18	12	6	3	18	4

Of Pryce's 4.5 total sacks, 3 came on the road.

15 PRO BOWLERS

The Ravens have 15 Pro Bowlers on their current roster: T Willie Anderson, LB Brendon Ayanbadejo, TE Todd Heap, LB Ray Lewis, WR Derrick Mason, CB Chris McAlister (IR), FB LeRon' McClain, RB Willis McGahee, FB Lorenzo Neal, DE Trevor Pryce, S Ed Reed, CB Samari Rolle, LB Bart Scott, K Matt Stover and LB Terrell Suggs.

RAVENS 1ST-ROUND SUCCESS

Since moving to Baltimore in 1996, the Ravens have taken part in 13 drafts and have selected 15 players in the 1st round (including 2008 QB Joe Flacco). Of those, 10 1st-round draft picks are currently on the roster (Jonathan Ogden and Peter Boulware retired as Ravens; Jamal Lewis is with Cleveland; Duane Starks and Travis Taylor are out of football). These picks have earned an amazing 39 combined Pro Bowls:

HOME TRENDS SINCE 2000

The Ravens have been one of the NFL's best teams at home since 2000. Here are several home trends since then:

When posting 3 or more sacks 34-7
When registering 4 or more sacks 22-1
When totaling at least 2 INTs 35-3
When holding opponent to 14 points or fewer 37-5
When allowing 225 total net yards or fewer 21-2
When allowing 70 net rush yards or fewer 27-5
When allowing 200 net passing yards or fewer 35-7
When scoring 26-plus points 31-2
When rushing for 100 or more net yards 43-12

HOMELAND DEFENSE

The Ravens' defense has been dominant at home over the past several seasons. Since 2003, Baltimore ranks 1st in yards per game permitted and 1st in fewest points per game allowed among NFL home teams. The Ravens also have the most INTs (75) and the 2nd most sacks (146) in their backyard:

SI's FAN EXPERIENCE SURVEY

On Oct. 15, 2008, SI.com unveiled the 2nd annual NFL Stadium Rankings. For the 2nd straight year, Baltimore's M&T Bank Stadium ranked in the Top 5 of best NFL game experiences. (In 2007, the Ravens were 5th, and in '08 the team ranked 4th.) The Web site asked readers to fill out a survey about their hometown NFL stadium and broke down the answers into the following categories:

Affordability and Food -- Tailgating
Team Quality -- Atmosphere -- Accessibility

Rankings were based on how satisfied, on a scale of 1-5, each of the respective fan bases was with their game-day experience. More than 12,000 people completely filled out the survey, and about 30 percent of them were season ticket holders.

Rush "D" Quick Hits:

- The Ravens have only allowed 2 100-yard backs in their last 52 games (the Chiefs' Larry Johnson on 12/10/06 & Tennessee's Travis Henry on 11/12/06).
- In 11 all-time playoff games, the Ravens have never allowed a 100-yard rusher. That 11-game stretch ranks as the 3rd-longest current streak in NFL postseason play (Pit. 2nd w/ 13 & Was. 1st w/ 17).

STOUT RUSH "D"

Dating back to 1999, when Rex Ryan was hired as the team's D-line coach -- and then became the D.C. in 2005 -- the Ravens have allowed the fewest 100-yard rushers (18) in the NFL. The top 5 teams stack up as follows:

CRUCIAL 4TH QUARTERS

When the Ravens won in 2008, it usually meant they were able to put up big numbers in the 4th quarter. Baltimore was 10-2 this season when leading after 3 quarters, while the Ravens also outscored opponents 115-60 in the final period (including 108-27 in their last 9 victories). Impressively, Baltimore only allowed 40 points in the final period of its last 12 games. Below is the game-by-game 4th-quarter production this season:

RUSH OF KNOWLEDGE

The Ravens totaled a franchise-record 20 rushing TDs in 2008, tied for 5th most in the NFL. Baltimore also produced 3 rushing plays of at least 50 yards, tying for 2nd most in the league. The Ravens were the only team in '08 to have 2 rush plays gain at least 70 yards: Le'Ron McClain's 82-yarder and Willis McGahee's 77-yarder, both for TDs, at Dallas (12/20).

A FRANCHISE FIRST

In Week 16 at Dallas, Baltimore produced 265 rushing yards, the 3rd-highest total in team history. Additionally, with Willis McGahee's 108 yards and Le'Ron McClain's 139 yards, the Ravens posted dual 100-yard backs for the 1st time in single-game franchise history.

THE ULTIMATE LB

Ten-time Pro Bowl LB Ray Lewis, who earned another invitation to Hawaii in 2008, topped the Ravens with 160 tackles, extending his reign as Baltimore's all-time tackle king (2,182 career stops). Lewis also has the most FRs (14) and has the 2nd-most INTs (28) in team history. In Week 17's win vs. Jacksonville, he tallied 13 tackles and recovered 2 fumbles. Lewis also logged 3 INTs and 3.5 sacks in 2008.

ROLLE WITH ME

CB Samari Rolle played in 10 games (all starts) in 2008, bouncing back from shoulder/neck surgery caused by an injury he sustained in Week 3 vs. Cleveland. Rolle, who has totaled 31 career INTs -- plus 2 in 10 playoff games -- had 3 picks, 12 PD and 1 FF on the year. He finished the season playing in 8 straight contests, helping Baltimore produce the NFL's No. 2 defense, which was also 2nd vs. the pass (179.7 ypg).

RESTRICTED AIRSPACE

Five-time Pro Bowler Ed Reed pulled in the 42nd and 43rd INTs of his career in Week 17's win over Jacksonville. The performance marked his 8th-career dual-INT day (and 4th this season). In Week 12's win over the Eagles, he posted 2 thefts, including an NFL-record 107-yard return TD. The 107 broke the previous long of 106, which Reed set on 11/7/04 vs. Cleveland.

Reed Quick Hits II:

- When Reed records an INT, the Ravens own a 27-8 record. When he makes 2 picks in a game, Baltimore is 8-0.
- Reed's 9 INTs in 2008 led the NFL, while his 264 yards were 2nd.

REED'S 12 TDs

Including postseason, Ed Reed has scored 12 TDs in his career. He added 4 in 2008 (in addition to his 2 INT-TDs and a FR-TD in the regular season, Reed had a 64-yard "pick-6" in the Wild Card win at Miami). Amazingly, Reed is the only player in NFL history to score return TDs off a punt return, blocked punt, INT and fumble recovery. Reed's 7 defensive TDs (5 INTs and 2 FRs) are the most in Ravens franchise history:

ANOTHER MAN DOWN

Three-time Pro Bowler Chris McAlister, who was-placed on IR (knee) on 11/11, has 26 picks in his career -- including 3 in 2008. McAlister was 1 of 2 starters from the Ravens' secondary (SS Dawan Landry, neck/shoulders) to be put on IR in '08.

McAlister's 26 thefts rank 3rd in franchise history. Additionally, for his career, he has 7 TDs (6 defensive, 1 missed FGA return). His 6 "D" TDs rank 2nd in team history, while he, Ed Reed and Rod Woodson tie for the most INT-TDs (5).

THE MADBACKER

An undrafted free agent from Southern Illinois in 2002, LB Bart Scott is the 1st Ravens rookie free agent to earn Pro Bowl honors with the club, doing so in 2006. In 2008, Scott finished 2nd on the team with 104 tackles. Dating back to 2005, when he became a full-time starter for Baltimore, he ranks 2nd in total tackles by a Ravens' defender.

PREMIUM PRYCE

In his 1st season as a Raven in 2006, DE Trevor Pryce produced a 13-sack, 78-QB hit campaign. Back at full strength in 2008 after missing 11 games (wrist/chest) in 2007, the 4-time Pro Bowler tallied 4.5 sacks and 35 tackles. In his 12-year career, Pryce has 83.5 sacks (-560.5 yards).

One of the game's top pass rushers this decade, Pryce has recorded at least 2 sacks in 11 contests, with 3 of those coming during Baltimore's 13-3 campaign in 2006. The Ravens were 9-0 in '06 when Pryce registered a sack and were 4-1 in 2008. Below is where he ranks on several lists:

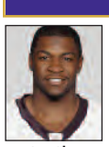
BIG-PLAY THREAT



WR Mark Clayton has 8 100-yard receiving games in his career (including 2 in 2008), the most in Ravens history. A big-play threat, he led the team with a career-high 17.0 ypc avgerage in '08. In Week 13 at Cincy, he also became the 1st non-QB in team history to throw a TD pass, hitting Derrick Mason for a 32-yard strike off a reverse. He also had 5 catches (including a 70-yard TD) for a career-high 164 yards, the 3rd-best total in team history.

- Clayton is the Ravens' all-time leader in 100-yard receiving games (8).

NGATA'S DOMINANCE

In 2007, Haloti Ngata blossomed into one of the NFL's premier DTs, producing 94 total tackles and 3 sacks. For his efforts, he was named to the USA Today All-Joe Team. In 2008, Ngata earned 1st-alternate Pro Bowl honors by leading the D-line with 77 tackles (43 solo), 15 QB hits, 1 sack and 2 INTs. In Week 10's win at Houston, he posted 2 tackles, 3 QB hits and his 3rd-career INT. He also caused an INT (Ray Lewis).

Ngata was also a member of the Ravens' goal-line offense, producing several TD-leading blocks this season. Additionally, the 6-4, 345-pounder has lined up on punt coverages, blasting through the line to rush the punter.

Ngata Quick Hit:
- The Ravens have a history of strong run defense, but with Ngata's help the past 3 seasons, Baltimore's ground "D" has improved markedly from what it was before he entered the NFL.

Flacco Quick Hits:

- Flacco's streak of 124 passes attempted without throwing an INT (which was snapped in Week 11 vs. NYG) is 3rd best in team history. Steve McNair is 2nd with 162 and Eric Zeier is 1st with 175.
- Flacco had 2 rushing TDs in the regular season: a 38-yard run vs. Cincy (9/7) that was the longest TD run in NFL history by a QB making his debut and a 12-yard bootleg vs. Oakland (10/26). He added a 5-yard rushing score last week in the Wild Card win at Miami.
- In Week 8 vs. Oakland, Flacco reeled in a 43-yard pass from Troy Smith. Flacco's grab was the 3rd longest by an NFL QB since Stats Inc. began tracking the stat in 1991 (Kordell Stewart had receptions of 71 and 48 yards in 1995 and 1996, respectively).
- Flacco threw at least 1 TD in 8 straight games between 10/19-12/7.
- He threw at least 1 TD pass in each of the Ravens' last 6 road games, tossing 9 TDs passes and just 2 INTs for a 101.8 rating.

PLAYOFF RECORDS

In the 13-10 Divisional win at Tennessee on 1/10, Joe Flacco became the 1st rookie QB in NFL history to win 2 playoff games. The week prior, in the Ravens' 27-9 victory at Miami, Flacco became just the 8th rookie QB to start a playoff game and only the 3rd to win. Additionally, he is the only rookie QB ever to win a playoff game on the road (now 2-1).

2008 ROOKIE COMBOS

After each earned victories in Week 1, the Ravens and Falcons had similar success in 2008, both featuring rookie head coaches (John Harbaugh and Mike Smith) and rookie QBs (Joe Flacco and Matt Ryan). Here are several notes on the combos:

- The last rookie head coach to start a rookie QB in Week 1 was Dallas' Jimmy Johnson with Troy Aikman in 1989 (9/10 vs. NO).
- Not since 1971 had a pair of rookie QBs won on opening day (Jim Plunkett vs. Oak. and Archie Manning vs. LA Rams on 9/19).
- Flacco and Ryan became the first 1st-round rookie QBs to start on opening day since Kyle Boller in 2003.
- Flacco and Ryan combined for 6,411 passing yards this season, the most by a rookie QB tandem in NFL history. The previous record (5,917) was set by Charlie Batch and Peyton Manning in 1998.
- Flacco and Ryan, both 11-5, combined to produce a 22-10 record. That win pct. is the highest by 2 rookie QBs in NFL history.

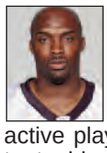
THE GO-TO GUY



During his 12-year, 2-time Pro Bowl career, WR Derrick Mason has made himself into one of the NFL's most valuable targets. Since earning his 1st Pro Bowl in 2000, Mason has the 4th-most catches (743) and 5th-most receiving yards (9,453) of all active players. One of the league's most durable and consistent wideouts, he has played in 106 consecutive games (2nd most among active WRs) and has now produced at least 60 catches in 9 straight seasons.

WHAT A CATCH

In 2008, Derrick Mason pulled in 80 catches for 1,037 yards, producing his 7th-career 1,000-yard season. In 2007, he had a Ravens' record of 103 catches, which broke the previous franchise best of 86 that he set in '05. With his 80 catches in 2008, he now owns the top 3 reception seasons in Ravens history, while his 1,037-yard campaign accounts for the 8th "1,000" in franchise history.

Stover Quick Hits:

- Stover finished the 2008 season 27-of-33 on FGAs (long of 47) and 41-of-41 on PATs. His 122 points led the Ravens.
- Stover hit the 100-point mark for the 6th-straight season and 12th time in his career.
- Stover's 1,944 career points rank 5th in NFL history.

COLD COMFORT

Playing for teams with -- and in divisions that only have -- outdoor stadiums his entire career, Matt Stover has proved that no NFL kicker braves the elements better than he does.

Of Stover's 462 career FGs, only 25 have come indoors. Amazingly, that is the fewest of any kicker in the 400-FG Club:

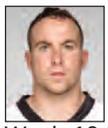
PRIME PUNTING



The Ravens' punt coverage unit was outstanding in 2008, helping allow P Sam Koch to own the NFL's No. 5 net average of 39.9. In Week 7 at Miami, Koch posted a career-best 59.0 gross average (and 55.7 net), which included a long punt of 67 yards. In Week 10 at Houston, Koch had 4 punts for 200 yards (50.0 avg.), including 3 inside the 20 with a Ravens-record 74-yarder.

Koch Quick Hits:

- He placed an NFL-best 18 punts inside the 10 and 34 boots inside the 20 (2nd only to the 40 by Chicago's Brad Maynard).
- Koch's 45.0 gross average ranked 9th in the NFL and set a Ravens' record, breaking the 43.9 mark by Kyle Richardson in 1998. His 39.9 net average is also a single-season Ravens record.
- His 74-yard punt in Week 10 at Houston was the 3rd longest in the NFL in 2008 and longest in Ravens history.
- Koch currently boasts a 43.8 career gross average and 37.9 career net average, both marks that rank 1st in Ravens history.

SPECIAL TEAMS ACE

In 5 previous seasons before arriving in Baltimore, special teams ace Brendon Ayanbadejo led his team in ST tackles each year. In 2008, his 1st season with the Ravens, he again paced the team with a career-high 30. For his efforts, Ayanbadejo was named to his 3rd Pro Bowl as the AFC's lone special teams standout.

KEY PLAYOFF NOTES

The Ravens went 2-1 in the '08 postseason (7-4 all time) and played in their 2nd-ever AFC Championship game. Here is a look at some trends/notes from Baltimore's playoff games:

Sixth Seeds' Success: The Ravens are 1 of only 3 No. 6 seeds ever to reach a Conference Championship game. (The 2005 Steelers did it and the 2008 Eagles also advanced.)

Turnover Battle: Baltimore compiled a +4 turnover ratio this postseason, snagging 9 take-aways (5 INTs and 4 fumbles) with 5 give-aways (3 INTs and 2 fumbles).

- In the 2008 regular season, Miami owned a +17 turnover ratio, tying an NFL record with just 13 give-aways. However, the Ravens, who totaled an NFL-best 34 take-aways in '08, forced 5 turnovers in the Wild Card showdown, finishing +4 on the day.
- Tennessee, who ranked 2nd in the NFL in 2008 with a +14 turnover ratio, had 3 give-aways (all occurring in Baltimore territory), while the Ravens had none.
- Baltimore turned the ball over 4 times at Pittsburgh (3 INTs and 1 fumble) and only forced 1 take-away (a fumble).

Flacco's Firsts: QB Joe Flacco did not throw an INT nor was he sacked in the 1st 2 playoff games. In the AFC title game at Pittsburgh, Flacco tossed 3 picks and was sacked 3 times. Still, Flacco became the 1st rookie QB to ever win 2 playoff games.

Red Zone Success: The Ravens made 7 trips to the red zone, scoring 4 TDs and 3 FGs. Conversely, opponents had 7 red zone trips, with Baltimore allowing just 2 TDs and 3 FGs, but also forcing 2 turnovers (fumble & INT).

T.O.P. Oddity: Despite leading the NFL in time of possession in '08, the Ravens did not win the TOP battle in the playoffs (33:09-26:51 at Pit., 34:07-25:53 at Ten. and 33:26-26:34 at Mia.).

Prime Picks at Miami: The Ravens' 4 INTs of QB Chad Pennington, who threw just 7 during the regular season, tied for the most in team playoff history (1/28/01 vs. NYG - SB and 1/14/01 at Oak. - AFC Champ.). S Ed Reed recorded his 4th- and 5th-career postseason INTs. He returned the 1st pick 64 yards for his 1st-career postseason TD.

Rushing Highs: Baltimore piled up 151 rushing yards at Miami, the 2nd most in Ravens postseason history (226 at Miami on 1/13/02). Le'Ron McClain led the way with 75 yards on 19 attempts, while Willis McGahee totaled 62 on 7 carries.

FLACCO SETS PLAYOFF MARK

In the Ravens' 13-10 Divisional win at Tennessee (1/10), Joe Flacco became the 1st rookie QB in NFL history to win 2 playoff games. The week prior, in the Ravens' 27-9 victory at Miami, Flacco became just the 8th rookie QB to start a playoff game since the 1970 merger and only the 3rd to win his team's game. Additionally, he is the only rookie QB ever to win a playoff game on the road (now 2-1).

Flacco Quick Hits:

- Flacco is the only rookie QB in NFL history to win 2 playoff games.

RATING STRONG

Joe Flacco's 89.4 passer rating in the Divisional win at Tennessee (1/10) is the best by a rookie QB in playoff history. Flacco, who went 11-of-22 for 161 yards and 1 TD (48-yarder to WR Derrick Mason), bested the previous mark (78.1) set by Ben Roethlisberger during the 2005 AFC Championship game.

Steelers 23 - Ravens 14

Pittsburgh (14-4)
Baltimore (13-6)

SUNDAY, JAN. 18, 2009 | 6:43 PM EDT | HEINZ FIELD | PITTSBURGH

Weather: 26 Cloudy, Wind W 12 mph // Attendance: 65,350 // Time: 3:35

The Ravens' playoff run ended with a 23-14 loss to the Pittsburgh Steelers. It was a battle of the NFL's top 2 defenses, and Baltimore fought through multiple injuries. S Daren Stone suffered a concussion on the opening kickoff, but he returned in the 2nd half. CB Frank Walker (dislocated shoulder) and CB Corey Ivy, who was blindsided by a downfield block from WR Limas Sweed, both left for brief moments before returning to the game. RB Willis McGahee didn't, though. McGahee, who rushed for a game-high 60 yards and 2 TDs on 20 carries, was carted off in the 4th quarter because of a helmet-to-helmet shot from S Ryan Clark. McGahee went to UMPC Presbyterian Hospital and was released the following day. After not committing a TO in his 1st 2 playoff games, QB Joe Flacco threw 3 INTs and lost a fumble. The Steelers notched 8 sacks on Flacco, who completed 13 of 30 passes for 141 yards and a QB rating of 18.2, his lowest of 2008. Pittsburgh took a 13-0 lead on 2 K Jeff Reed FGs and a 65-yard TD pass from QB Ben Roethlisberger to WR Santonio Holmes. Holmes caught it at Baltimore's 49-yard line as CB Fabian Washington slipped, and Holmes weaved through the secondary for the score. S Jim Leonhard returned a punt 45 yards to the Steelers' 17, which - along with a pass interference call in the end zone - set up McGahee's 3-yard TD run in the 2nd quarter. After another Reed FG, McGahee pulled the Ravens within 2 points (16-14 in the 4th quarter) with his 2nd TD. A botched punt from Pittsburgh's P Mitch Berger gave Baltimore the ball at midfield, and another end zone pass interference call led to McGahee's 1-yard TD run. On their ensuing series, the Ravens drove for a go-ahead score, but S Troy Polamalu jumped in front of WR Derrick Mason with 4:24 left and raced 40 yards to paydirt with Flacco's 2nd INT. His last INT - on an attempt over the middle to RB Ray Rice - sealed the outcome with 1:11 remaining.

Ravens 13 - Titans 10

Baltimore (13-5)
Tennessee (13-4)

SATURDAY, JAN. 10, 2009 3:33 PM CST LP FIELD NASHVILLE

Weather: 53 Cloudy, Wind N/NW 11 mph // Attendance: 69,143 // Time: 3:07

Baltimore advanced to the AFC Championship game after a 13-10 victory over the top-seeded Tennessee Titans at LP Field. Two fierce defenses were featured in this hard-fought battle. It wasn't until K Matt Stover connected on a 43-yard FG with 53 seconds remaining that the outcome was decided. To get there, QB Joe Flacco, who became the NFL's 1st rookie signal-caller to win 2 playoff games, coolly led a 9-play, 51-yard drive to set up the clinching kick. Tennessee scored a TD on their 2nd drive. Pro Bowl RB Chris Johnson took a short pass from QB Kerry Collins in the left flat, eluded LB Bart Scott, and then ripped off a 28-yard gain. Johnson then finished the march with an 8-yard TD run. On the ensuing series, Flacco hooked up with WR Derrick Mason for a 48-yard TD bomb. A 7-7 tie was carried into the 4th quarter until Stover hit a 21-yard FG at the 14:14 mark of the final period. The Ravens foiled multiple Titans scoring attempts. Just before the 1st half ended, Tennessee marched to the Ravens' 22-yard line, but RB LenDale White was stripped by LB Jarret Johnson, and S Jim Leonhard recovered with 25 seconds on the clock. The Titans tried a 51-yard FG on 4th down instead of punting in the 3rd quarter, and K Rob Bironas pushed it WL. And in the 4th, Titans TE Alge Crumpler fumbled on the Ravens' 6-yard line. Tennessee knotted the game again after stopping the Ravens and taking advantage of the field position caused by Crumpler's lost fumble for Bironas' 27-yard FG. The Ravens made the most of their last possession. Flacco completed a 23-yard pass to TE Todd Heap for a critical 3rd-and-2 conversion to advance to midfield. RB Willis McGahee then made an 11-yard run, and Flacco found WR Mark Clayton for 8 yards to pull within Stover's range. With less than 1:00 to move down the field, Collins completed 1 pass (5 yards to Brandon Jones and his last 3 attempts fell to the turf.

Ravens 27 - Dolphins 9

Baltimore (12-5)
Miami (11-6)

SUNDAY, JAN. 4, 2009 | 1:03 PM EST | DOLPHIN STADIUM | MIAMI

The Ravens forced 5 turnovers en route to a 27-9 win over the Miami Dolphins. Miami actually tied an NFL record with only 13 giveaways in 2008, but that didn't matter when S Ed Reed lined up across from QB Chad Pennington. Reed snared 2 INTs from Pennington, who only threw 7 INTs in the regular season. Reed took the 1st one 64 yards for a TD, the 12th score of his career. CB Fabian Washington and S Jim Leonhard also robbed Pennington, while LB Terrell Suggs recovered a fumble. Rookie QB Joe Flacco only completed 9 of 23 passes for 135 yards, but he did not toss an INT in his 1st playoff contest. Pennington, who was recently named the 2008 NFL Comeback Player of the Year, was 25-of-38 for 252 yards. Both teams traded FGs before the INTs began accumulating. At 8:56 in the 2nd quarter, Leonhard returned the 1st theft of the day 20 yards to Miami's 45-yard line, but the Ravens punted after a 3-and-out. On the following series, Reed ran under a rainbow from Pennington and weaved 64 yards for the TD. Baltimore added another K Matt Stover FG (31 yards) before the 1st half ended for a 13-3 Ravens' lead. Washington posted the 3rd INT just after halftime, which resulted in another Ravens 3-and-out. But DT Marques Douglas stripped RB Patrick Cobbs to end the Dolphins' ensuing drive, and Suggs recovered on Miami's 19-yard line. Four plays later, FB Le'Ron McClain, who rushed for 75 yards on 19 carries, scored from 8 yards. Reed continued to terrorize Pennington, ending Miami's most promising march. Pennington drove to Baltimore's 15-yard line, but Reed grabbed his 2nd INT at the 8-yard line in the 3rd. The Dolphins closed the margin to 20-9 with a 5-play drive culminating in a TD pass to RB Ronnie Brown, but it wasn't enough to overcome the deficit. The Ravens offense put the margin out of reach when a 71-yard drive - highlighted by a 48-yard run by RB Willis McGahee to the Miami 4-yard line - ended with a 5-yard scoring run from Flacco.

Despite holding the high-powered Colts' passing attack to only 161 yards, intercepting Peyton Manning twice, and keeping the AFC's top-ranked offense out of the end zone, the Ravens were kicked out of the race to Super Bowl XLI, 15-6. K Adam Vinatieri booted 5 FGs, while Baltimore could only muster 2 in the difficult loss. Steve McNair finished 18-of-29 (173 yards) with a 62.1 completion pct., the highest in team single-game postseason history. Even though McNair out-dueled Manning, who went 15-of-30 for 170 yards (39.6 rating), the Ravens couldn't bounce back from McNair's 2 INTs. Coming off a 40-yard FG from K Matt Stover that opened the 2nd period, S Ed Reed got his hands on a Manning pass less than a minute later. Down 6-3, McNair drove to the Colts' 4, but was picked off in the end zone. The Baltimore defense came up big, as usual. Each time Manning would march into Ravens territory, the unit clamped down, forcing 5 FGs. The Ravens pressured Manning all game but only managed 1 sack. On another day, this defensive effort might have been enough to defeat the Colts, but this January evening proved to be a different story for the Ravens.

The AFC North Division champion Baltimore Ravens, the youngest team in the 2003 playoffs, lost a hard-fought 20-17 decision to Tennessee in the Wild Card matchup. The game was decided on K Gary Anderson's 46-yard FG with 29 seconds left in the game. The kick came only minutes after the Ravens rallied to tie the contest, thanks to a 9-play, 71-yard journey that ended with a 35-yard TD pass from QB Anthony Wright to TE Todd Heap. On the Titans' ensuing possession, CB Chris McAlister picked off Titans QB Steve McNair, and the Ravens were poised to forge ahead. However, Tennessee held Baltimore's offense to a 3-and-out, and McNair moved the Titans into FG range. Anderson, who also kicked a 45-yarder earlier in the 4th quarter, did the rest. The Ravens intercepted McNair 3 times, including a S Will Demps pick which he returned a postseason franchise-record 56 yards for a TD. K Matt Stover's 43-yard FG in the 2nd quarter put Baltimore ahead 10-7 at halftime, but the Ravens came up just short.

The Ravens' string of consecutive playoff wins was stopped at 5, as the top-seeded Pittsburgh Steelers defeated the defending Super Bowl champs, 27-10. Baltimore's lone TD came in the 3rd quarter when WR/RS Jermaine Lewis raced for an NFL postseason-record 88-yard punt return for a TD to make the score 20-10. But, the Steelers iced the game by driving 83 yards on 12 plays that took almost 6 minutes off the clock, scoring the game's final TD on a Kordell Stewart-to-Plaxico Burress 32-yard pass. The Steelers' defense limited the Ravens to just 7 1st downs, 150 total net yards (including only 22 rushing yards) and forced 4 turnovers (including 3 INTs of QB Elvis Grbac). LB Chad Scott picked off Grbac on his 1st pass attempt and returned the ball 19 yards to the Ravens' 43. Early on, the Steelers managed only a FG by K Kris Brown for a quick 3-0 lead. After forcing a Ravens' punt that gave Pittsburgh possession at the 49-yard line, Stewart led his troops on a 7-play, 51-yard drive that was capped by a 1-yard run from RB Amos Zereoue for a 10-0 Steelers lead. The Steelers scored 10 points in the 2nd quarter on another Zereoue 1-yard run and a 46-yard boot by Brown to extend their lead to 20-0.

The Ravens dominated the Miami Dolphins, 20-3, and became the only team in NFL history to win their 1st 5 postseason games. Miami's only points came on an Olindo Mare 33-yard FG after the Ravens' WR/RS Jermaine Lewis fumbled the opening kickoff. After Miami jumped to the quick 3-0 lead, the Ravens started a 90-yard drive with 4 passes in 5 plays, and then 11 runs on the next 12 plays, ending with a Terry Allen 4-yard TD burst. Neither team scored again in the 1st half. Miami P Matt Turk placed a punt at the Ravens' 1-yard line midway through the 3rd quarter, but QB Elvis Grbac hit WR Travis Taylor on a 4-yard TD to cap a 99-yard drive. Taylor helped set up his own TD with a 45-yard grab from Grbac on 3rd-and-1, and a 15-yard reverse on a 2nd-and-6. LB Peter Boulware forced a Jay Fiedler fumble that was recovered by DT Sam Adams early in the 4th quarter, which led to a Matt Stover 35-yard FG for a 17-3 lead. On Miami's next possession, CB Duane Starks intercepted Fiedler's pass that bounced off the shoulder of WR James McKnight to thwart a Dolphins' scoring threat and set up Stover's 2nd FG.

The Ravens won Super Bowl XXXV with a 34-7 victory over the New York Giants. The Ravens allowed the Giants just 152 total net yards (3rd-fewest in Super Bowl history), and NY crossed midfield just twice. Baltimore's "D" tied a Super Bowl record with 4 INTs. The Ravens also became just the 3rd Super Bowl team in NFL history to not commit a turnover. Baltimore opened the scoring with a Trent Dilfer-to-Brandon Stokley 38-yard TD. Ravens K Matt Stover kicked a 47-yard FG with 1:48 left in the 2nd quarter. CB Duane Starks put Baltimore ahead 17-0 in the 3rd quarter when he raced 49 yards after an INT. On the kickoff, Giants RS Ronnie Dixon raced 97 yards to put the Giants on the board, 17-7. Not to be outdone, Baltimore's WR/LS Jermaine Lewis took the Giants' ensuing kickoff and tight-roped down the Ravens' sideline for an 84-yard TD. The 3 scores in 3 consecutive plays set a Super Bowl record, and the back-to-back KOR-TDs were also a record. RB Jamal Lewis (27 carries for 102 yards) scored from 3 yards out on a play that was reviewed and upheld by instant replay to give the Ravens a 31-7 lead. Stover kicked his 2nd FG to complete the scoring with 5:27 on the clock.

The Ravens captured the AFC Championship with a 16-3 win over the Oakland Raiders. TE Shannon Sharpe caught an NFL-postseason-record 96-yard catch and run on a 3rd-and-18 from Baltimore's 4 with 11:08 left in the 2nd quarter to open the scoring. On Oakland's next play from scrimmage, DT Tony Siragusa knocked QB Rich Gannon out of the game with a shoulder injury. CB Duane Starks intercepted QB Bobby Hoying's 1st pass to set up a K Matt Stover FG and a 10-0 Baltimore lead. In the 3rd quarter, a QB Trent Dilfer INT led to a K Sebastian Janikowski 24-yard FG to cut the Ravens' lead to 10-3. A Stover 28-yard boot gave the Ravens a 13-3 lead. A fumble by RB Jamal Lewis gave Oakland the ball at the Ravens' 43 near the end of the 3rd quarter, but Starks intercepted Gannon, who had returned to action in the 2nd half. Stover kicked a 21-yarder in the 4th quarter to give the Ravens a 16-3 lead. The Ravens' aggressive defense forced 5 turnovers, limited the Raiders to 191 yards, including 24 rushing yards, and sacked the Raiders' QBs 4 times. Oakland entered the game with the NFL's leading rushing attack.

The Ravens advanced to the AFC Championship Game with a gutsy 24-10 win at Tennessee. The Titans lost only 2 games in 2 years on their home turf – both to the Ravens in 2000. The opportunistic Ravens scored 2 4th-quarter TDs on returns to break a 10-10 tie. S Anthony Mitchell raced 90 yards for a score after DT Keith Washington blocked a 37-yard FG attempt by K Al Del Greco, his 2nd blocked FG of the game. LB Ray Lewis then intercepted a pass by QB Steve McNair and raced 50 yards for a TD to seal the 24-10 win. The Titans opened the game with an 11-play, 68-yard drive that ended with a 2-yard George rushing TD. The Ravens tied the game, 7-7, when Jamal Lewis scored on a 1-yard TD that was set up by TE Shannon Sharpe's 56-yard reception from QB Trent Dilfer. Titans Chris Coleman blocked a Kyle Richardson punt, giving Tennessee the ball on the Ravens' 25 with 1:44 left in the half, but Del Greco's 31-yard FGA hit the left upright.

The Ravens advanced to the AFC Divisional Round with a dominating 21-3 win over the Broncos. Denver entered the game with the NFL's 2nd-ranked offense and a 7-game postseason winning streak, but the Ravens' defense permitted just 1 TD, 177 total net yards and 9 1st downs. The Broncos' 3 points scored were the fewest they've scored since 1992. The Baltimore defense recorded 5 sacks and the Broncos crossed midfield just once during the game. Ravens RB Jamal Lewis scored 2 TDs. Lewis' 1st TD came on a 1-yard dive to complete a 10-play, 75-yard drive. His 2nd score came in the 3rd quarter on a 27-yard burst where he broke 3 tackles. QB Trent Dilfer completed 9 of 14 passes for 130 yards, with 1 TD and no INTs. In the 2nd, Dilfer flipped a swing pass to Lewis, but the ball glanced off him and into the hands of TE Shannon Sharpe, who raced 58 yards down the sideline to give Baltimore a 14-3 halftime lead.

Ravens' In Our Community 2008 Season Recap

Throughout the 2008 season, the Ravens players, coaches, staff, mascot and cheerleaders served the Baltimore community through various events and programs.

NFL Tuesdays

In 2008, Ravens players took part weekly in refurbishing homes, visiting schools and hospitals, hosting youth for movie screenings, participating in various fundraisers to support area nonprofits, special holiday events and more.

CB Derrick Martin brought gifts to a holiday party at a local pediatric hospital.

WR Derrick Mason hosted karaoke at retirement communities during the 2008 season.

Ravens players and coaches made more than 300 local appearances in 2008 and performed over 1,000 hours of service in our community.

Ravens Promote Youth Health and Fitness

Over 1,000 6th grade students from 4 local schools participated in the 6-week "What Moves U" program, completing fitness coupons for Ravens prizes. Winners were chosen from each school and will be taken on a special tour of M&T Bank Stadium that includes a lunch in the locker room with Ravens players.

TE Todd Heap raced cheerleader Courtney at a WMU kickoff assembly.

RACTF Recap

The Ravens All Community Team Foundation (RACTF) provided more than $100,000 of "Plan in Motion" grants to promote physical fitness and nutrition education among Baltimore-area youth in 2008. The foundation also joined Ravens owner Steve Bisciotti and CB Chris McAlister to finance a $1 million renovation of the football stadium at Mergenthaler Vocational-Technical High School. Bisciotti and McAlister attended the football festival at Mervo in August, when the field was unveiled and dedicated to Art Modell (pictured at right with Bisciotti, McAlister and the Mervo varsity football team).

Player Foundations

Kyle Boller, Mark Clayton, Marques Douglas, Todd Heap, Matt Katula, Ray Lewis, Derrick Martin, Derrick Mason, Chris McAlister, Ed Reed, Samari Rolle, Bart Scott, Troy Smith, Matt Stover and Daniel Wilcox each operate personal foundations serving Baltimore and their hometown communities. Each player hosted community events in conjunction with their foundations throughout the 2008 season, including football clinics, school supply distributions, movie screenings, toy drives, Thanksgiving food distributions, holiday parties and shopping sprees.

CB Samari Rolle was honored as a Home Depot NFL Neighborhood MVP for his work with the Rolle With Me Foundation.

WR Mark Clayton joined teammate LB Ray Lewis at Lewis' annual Thanksgiving distribution.

TE Daniel Wilcox coached 100 youth from City Springs Elementary at a football skills and fitness clinic in West Shore Park.

The Baltimore Sun's Rick Maese on Ravens owner Steve Bisciotti –

"…To really dole out proper credit, you have to trace the timeline back; you have to find the first domino that was tipped, the one that started the chain of events that suddenly has the Ravens just one win away from a return to the playoffs. As important as Joe Flacco, John Harbaugh, Derrick Mason and Ray Lewis have been this season, it was owner Steve Bisciotti who positioned his team for the postseason."

Owner Steve Bisciotti on hiring John Harbaugh: "When we first talked about head coaching candidates, people here said good things about John [Harbaugh]. When we took it to the next level and called about 30 people about John, it was clear we needed to interview him. Did we take a chance hiring him? My belief is that you have to be willing to do things the masses don't, or you'll never separate yourself from the masses. We're convinced John can lead, teach and succeed. We're totally confident we picked the right person."

Foxsports.com's John Czarnecki (8/28/08) on the Ravens' power structure: "[Ozzie] Newsome is the guy, although owner Steve Bisciotti is very involved with his football team and hired new head coach John Harbaugh. The best thing about Bisciotti is that he knows what he doesn't know about football and relies on one of the best GMs in the business, Newsome. President Dick Cass is one of the smartest men in the NFL."

Rex Ryan on whether head coach John Harbaugh was influenced by the University of Michigan's legendary coach Bo Schembechler: "You guys see it every day. It's funny. You're going to model yourself after what you're familiar with. His dad [Jack], obviously, is probably the biggest influence on John. He's very similar to what you read in the book about Schembechler, as well. He's just a great coach. He's himself, but he's influenced by who he's been around. You can definitely see Bo there in him."

Sportsline.com writer Clark Judge on Assistant head coach/defensive coordinator Rex Ryan: "Ryan has run the Baltimore defense the past three-and-a-half seasons, and the Ravens aren't just effective; they're dominating, intimidating and exterminating. Against Miami, Ryan put an extra linebacker on the field and moved Bart Scott to safety, with Scott assigned to running back Patrick Cobbs – who'd been blowing up DBs with his blocking. For lack of a better term, Ryan said of Scott, 'He smashed him.' Then he told his players to seal the edge, play smart and adjust to Miami's tackles. Result: In five plays out of the 'Wildcat' formation, the Dolphins gained four yards and were flagged for one penalty. Period."

Ray Lewis on defensive coordinator Ryan: "Rex is a huge piece of our puzzle. John [Harbaugh] keeping him, making him the assistant head coach, is so very important for us. On the football end, Rex is the best. He's our heart and brains on defense. We love him. On the player to coach end, he knows the veterans. He helped John and the other new coaches learn about us. That's a real plus, too. … Rex and the other coaches had us ready [for the Bengals in the season opener]. It was beautiful to see and fun to play in."

WR Mark Clayton on Cam Cameron's offense: "I love it. Coming from Oklahoma, we probably had about 40 points a game, and it was a fast-break offense. It was up and down the field, and anytime we had the chance to take a shot, we would take it. That's the way that Cam is teaching us and conditioning us."

Cameron on the tough job he was hired to do this season: "Like most things, it's how you look at it. Going up against this [Ravens] defense has made us better. We're building. We're growing. They're [the Ravens' offense] playing fast, because they're knowing what to do. To me, this is a great opportunity."

Ken Murray, Baltimore Sun sportswriter, on the special teams expertise of Matt Stover, Harbaugh and Jerry Rosburg: "All three men come to the table with impeccable credentials. [John] Harbaugh was one of the league's best special teams coaches with the Philadelphia Eagles. [Jerry] Rosburg [special teams coordinator] had a distinguished six-year run with the Cleveland Browns, where he helped develop Phil Dawson into one of the NFL's top kickers. [K Matt] Stover, 40, enters his 18th NFL season ranked third all time in field goals made, field-goal accuracy and fourth in career points."

James Walker of ESPN.com on Harbaugh and Cameron: "The players for the Ravens are getting most of the credit for the 17-10 victory over the Bengals, but what we noticed was the stellar coaching. The Ravens' staff, led by rookie head coach John Harbaugh, did a masterful job of putting together a game plan that suited their personnel. Offensive coordinator Cam Cameron, who has head-coaching experience, used a bruising offensive line to pound the ball 46 times, while also putting QB Joe Flacco in situations to be successful. Defensive coordinator Rex Ryan, who probably should be a head coach by now, rattled the Bengals with an aggressive scheme that only allowed eight first downs."

Ozzie Newsome on Ray Lewis: "If you want to envision the prototype of the player you want and the type of team you want, then look right at Ray Lewis. He is everything a franchise would want from a player. His production on the field speaks for itself and will take him to Canton. Ray is also providing as much off the field, in terms of leadership, and helping young players understand what it takes to be a productive player and person in this league. I don't think you can ever underestimate what he does for us off the field."

Terrell Suggs on Ray Lewis: "He's not only a leader for us, he's like a brother. He helped me become a professional. When I was a rookie, I was late sometimes for meetings, and sometimes I'd fall asleep in them. He started calling me in the mornings, and he made sure Bart Scott picked me up so I'd be on time. Now he calls me on the phone at night and asks me about a play he's watching. He'll ask me what I thought when I watched it. Well, you know I haven't watched it, but I'll give him an answer. But, he'll make me feel guilty, and I'll put the video in and at least watch the play he asked me about. He makes sure I see a good share of film every week."

Ed Reed on making plays: "I grew up watching Michael Jordan. When his team needed somebody to make a play, he put it on his shoulders and made it. He inspired me. That's the mentality I take to each game – make a play that will make a difference for my team. When the other team comes to the line, I'm saying to myself: 'Make a play!'"

Willis McGahee on Cam Cameron's offense: "This is the first offensive coordinator I've had that uses the tailback this much. In our OTAs, he ran the heck out of me. I wasn't used to that, so that's a good thing. He brings a lot to the table for everybody, not only the running backs, but fullbacks, tight ends and receivers."

Lorenzo Neal on Joe Flacco: "Here's who Joe Flacco is: Our defense is like the most popular dude in school – a senior, the homecoming king. Flacco is like the beautiful sophomore girl he keeps bringing to all the dances, and now she's the prom date. Everybody keeps saying, 'Why would he take her?' But all she does is show up and command attention. We're a couple of plays away from being 8-1, brother, and Joe is a big part of that. And, our coaches, especially Cam [Cameron], have done a great job of using Joe's strengths without overloading him."

Todd Heap on Flacco: "Joe sure is a different personality than any quarterback I've ever played with. He's got this calmness about him, he's got a good head on his shoulders and he takes everything in stride. We certainly don't see the game or a bad play getting to him. He's always moving on to the next play in Joe style. If something bad is getting to him, we can't tell. That's tremendous focus on the task at hand. He brushes things off and moves on. It's good to have a quarterback who doesn't let things faze him. He's got a very bright future. It will be exciting to see what he does as he gets more game experience."

Flacco on the Ravens' Defense: "Beyond their production, which is obvious, what they bring to the game is infectious. They don't just play games, they almost have a party out there. They have fun. They're so intense. They fly around. We want to have that same type of energy on offense. When people watch us, we want them to say, 'They play like the Ravens' defense.'"

Dolphins offensive coordinator Dan Henning's memories of Rex Ryan's family: "I coached against that guy's dad [Buddy Ryan, former Super Bowl-winning Chicago Bears, coordinator]. That guy's dad used to drive me crazy. [His son is] doing the same things."

Harbaugh on the team's MVP: "John Madden asked who could be our most valuable player. Picking one person in a game that is so dependent on your teammates is almost contrary to team. You could list a number of our players like Ray [Lewis] and Haloti [Ngata]. Derrick Mason has certainly contributed in a big way. Trevor [Pryce] and Ed [Reed] have been special. Where would we be without Joe [Flacco]? He was our only healthy quarterback at the beginning of the season. But, you could also make an argument for [offensive line coach] John Matsko. What he has done with a young group that has had some difficult injuries is impressive."

Rookie Ray Rice on Ray Lewis: "He's one of the finest people I have ever met. He goes out of his way to make the young guys feel part of the team. I feel blessed to have him as a teammate. He helps me on the field, too. In training camp I hit the hole and then cut to the sideline. Ray tackled me before I got there. In the pile, he tapped me on the leg and told me, 'Go north and south.' When I scored against Minnesota in the preseason, that's what I was thinking when I broke the line: 'Ray said go north and south.' It was great advice."

ESPN.com columnist Gene Wojciechowski ["Few can run, pass or hide from the Ravens"] on Ed Reed, the Ravens' defense and the 27-9 win over Miami in the Wild Card game last Sunday: "OK, we get it: Reed is otherworldly. So is the Ravens' defense, which Saran Wraps anything that moves. [Chad] Pennington had seven interceptions during the entire regular season. He never threw more than one in any single game. Then Reed and the Ravens show up and…! The Ravens' defense has scored six touchdowns off interception returns this season. It's a defense that almost thinks like an offense."

Sports Illustrated's Peter King on Ravens head coach John Harbaugh: "Harbaugh is a bundle of energy. I think he's also a very, very smart man. He reminds me a little bit of [Boston Red Sox manager] Terry Francona in that Francona is an intelligent guy who knows how to deal with players, and I think John is basically the same way. Everybody wonders, 'Who is John Harbaugh?' He's a guy who basically has majored in the chemistry of people his whole life. It's always fun to come to a team when the camp is new and getting used to new things, and I think John's going to do a good job."

Owner Steve Bisciotti on the leadership characteristics of John Harbaugh: "There's a great quote from Dr. Warren Bennis, in a book called On Becoming a Leader. He said, 'Leadership is like beauty. It's hard to describe, but you know it when you see it.' That's what John showed. He showed that hard-to-describe quality of, 'I would like to be led by this guy.'"

The Eagles' Sheldon Brown to Philadelphia reporters on Harbaugh: "He doesn't care about your personality, and he doesn't care what you think about him. He cares about winning, success: 'You either can help me or you can't.' That's how he is, and he'll let you know. He'll tell you in a minute that stuff rolls downhill: 'So if I'm getting it, you're getting it.' At least he's honest."

Special teams coordinator Jerry Rosburg on head coach John Harbaugh's leadership style: "Coach Harbaugh is his own man, I would say that. He has drawn from a lot of different people and a lot of different sources to develop his style. I think the most important thing about Coach Harbaugh is that he's John Harbaugh. He's an everyman, but at the same time he's a leader. He's a very down-to-earth and – I say this as a compliment – common, easy-to-relate-to leader. That's difficult for people to do both. In my view, John has mastered the ability to communicate with everybody in the building and everybody on the team, and at the same time, stand in front and tell everybody exactly what they need to do. It's a special talent that he has."

CBSSportsline.com's Charley Casserly on head coach John Harbaugh: "The point I am making here is Harbaugh, who had never been an offensive or defensive coordinator in the NFL [former special teams coordinator], has shown the necessary leadership skills and vision it takes to be a successful head coach. Here is how he has done it. He has hired two strong coordinators. He has gained the respect of the locker room and used a smart game-planning formula emphasizing the run and being smart with a rookie quarterback, which plays to this team's strength – the defense."

Jarret Johnson on Rex Ryan: "Rex is always going to put you in an opportunity to make plays, and he's going to move you around and let you do different things. That's why it's always fun. You get to learn something new every week. Next week, we'll be doing something totally different. It's just a fun defense to play in."

Yahoo.Sports' Jason Cole on Joe Flacco in the Divisional Playoff vs. Tennessee (1/10/09): "Baltimore Ravens rookie quarterback Joe Flacco is a man of many talents. He has a cannon arm that fires one of the prettiest spirals you will ever see, perfect for making a pass cut through the toughest wind. He has unusual grace for a man who measures 6-foot-6, allowing him to get away from the rush at critical times. Finally, he has an old soul seemingly impervious to the pressures that usually go with being a rookie in the NFL. "

RAVENS SEASON-ENDING PRESS CONFERENCE

ONWER STEVE BISCIOTTI & HEAD COACH JOHN HARBAUGH

Ravens owner Steve Bisciotti's opening statement:
"Thanks for coming. I'll start out by saying you're used to having three of us up here. Lucky for us this meeting is taking place a few weeks later than it did last year, and that put Ozzie [Newsome] right at the Senior Bowl. So, of course, he's not going to be here today. John [Harbaugh] and I will do our best to answer your questions. We can get started right away."

Despite not making it to the Super Bowl, how dissatisfied are you really this year, or are you dissatisfied at all?
(BISCIOTTI) "To say you're not dissatisfied, everybody [knows] that's what the goal is. That's why these guys put in the work that they do. Sure, we're disappointed, but I think that – we talked about it in 2006 when we went 13-3 and the disappointment of losing to the Colts – it's the same thing. I feel it two years later. But, I wouldn't change that terrible feeling of disappointment with the slow burn of disappointment of the other two years -- last year and in 2005 when we went 6-10 and 5-11. There's no one singular event that disappoints or exhilarates like winning or losing a playoff game. I said a couple of years ago, if you're a successful organization you're going to set yourself up for this kind of disappointment. We want to be a player, we want to be an elite team, and hopefully, this is the beginning of that. I don't think many teams experienced the last four years from six wins to 13, down to five and then up to 11. So, we've got to smooth that out and, hopefully, this guy [Harbaugh] is going to help us do that."

What are your thoughts a year after hiring John Harbaugh as head coach on what he did this season?
(BISCIOTTI) "He's aged a little bit, hasn't he? Look at that. [Laughing] I think he's done a great job. John is just such a wonderful communicator; he's a very considerate person. I got to know John, but I also got to know his whole family this year, and they are a wonderful group. I'm very lucky. I got to see his dad and his brother within 10 minutes after that game, and I just said I'm very happy to know the Harbaugh family. And it is a family. It's the way he was raised. It's the way he was taught to treat people. And, I think the Ravens are going to benefit from that upbringing."

Have you given thought to what might have happened if Jason Garrett had accepted the head coaching position a year ago? (BISCIOTTI) "We'd be 5-11. [Laughing] I'm teasing. No, I really didn't, because that's such speculation. I have no idea how that would have gone. I really don't. It wouldn't be fair [to speculate]."

What do you think the likelihood of Ray Lewis returning is and would the team consider putting a franchise tag on Ray?
(BISCIOTTI) "That's a question for Ozzie. I don't see the franchise tag. I've been hopeful forever that we're going to work a deal. I said last year to you, in our one year interview – I don't think that other people are going to value Ray Lewis higher than we do. We know what he brings to the table, and he's showing that at 33 he's capable of playing like a 28-year-old. So, I've got my wife on a budget already to try and save some money so we can sign him."

How much will your personal relationship with Ray Lewis affect the negotiations?
(BISCIOTTI) "It won't. I can't avoid personal relationships with people that are high-quality people in this organization – you know what I mean – with the fear that that's going to taint the way I view this thing. I have so much respect for Ozzie Newsome. And that's more of a decision between John and Ozzie, and I hope I'm just having a dinner with Ray to celebrate a new contract. But, my friendship can't influence things like that or Ozzie wouldn't want me in this building. There are a lot of guys on this team that I admire, and Ray is really at the top of that list. And, nobody loves and respects Ray more than Ozzie. So, in Ozzie we trust, as they say."

What do you think Ray Lewis has meant to the Ravens organization?
(BISCIOTTI) "Wow. John has got a snapshot of it. I got involved in 2000, but I was a fan of Ray Lewis before I bought the team. There are very few people that I know in sports that transcend their statistics. We had the luxury of watching Cal Ripken simultaneously do the same thing to the Orioles. I think they bring a sense of continuity, a sense of leadership that we're all looking for. It's why we're all sports fans – to look up to people. And, I think Ray has given Baltimore that. I certainly don't want to see him in another uniform, but you guys document that well. There are some of the very greats of the game that have had to move on, and we're going to do our best to prevent that."

What other coaches do you expect may leave now that Rex Ryan has officially been named the Jets head coach?
(HARBAUGH) "We've allowed Mike Pettine to join Rex, obviously, as his defensive coordinator. That was a significant upgrade for Mike and an opportunity for him that we would not want to deny him. We think that's a loss as well. So, we've lost two very good coaches right here in the building. Like we talked with the team about the other day, we need to become stronger – in everything we do – players, coaches, scheme. In everything we do we need to become stronger and that goes for our coaching staff as well. So, we've pretty much decided – I'd say we've decided – to keep that [defensive coordinator] position in-house. We're talking to different guys right now on the staff trying to figure out what makes us best and makes us strongest. We have a number of good candidates here. They are tremendous coaches, and they all want to do what's best for our football team first and what's best for our players first. And, we'll work that out the next few days."

(BISCIOTTI) "I hear Buddy Ryan is available."

(HARBAUGH) "He'd be a Raven."

What role, if any, will you play with the other NFL owners in the negotiation of a new Collective Bargaining Agreement?
(BISCIOTTI) "Not much of one. I desired from the day I got in here to get on the broadcast committee, and when Roger [Goodell] took over for Paul [Tagliabue], he got a couple of young guys like me and Mark Richardson on the broadcast committee. He shifted up a lot of the committees. I don't have much experience dealing with labor unions. Those are the two main committees in the NFL, and I'm very happy to be on the broadcast side. I like the idea of negotiating to bring more money in than fighting how much money is going to go out. I'm not geared that way. So, I really am just going to watch and learn and see how it goes. I'm very hopeful that we're going to get this thing worked out and that we'll have continuation of play."

As an owner, how would you like the Ravens to be characterized as a team?
(BISCIOTTI) "There are some great images out there. What the Patriots have done… They've continued to lose coaches and lose great players and continued to grow. I think that success breeds success, and I think we're on the way. We've got a group of guys here, and I think that they want to play for John Harbaugh. And, that's a great start for us. And [we have] Ozzie Newsome. The nice thing about Ozzie not being here is that I can compliment him because he wouldn't allow me to do it if he was sitting up here. But, when you look at what John brought and the fresh ideas and the motivation he brought to this team and then you look at what Ozzie did in free agency – you go down the list and you look at the free agents that we got – with one trade in the fourth round of the draft we got Fabian [Washington], and then we signed Frank Walker and Jim Leonhard and [Brendon] Ayanbadejo and Willie Anderson and Lorenzo Neal. For the cost of one high-priced free agent, he brought six guys in that made a major contribution in all three phases of the game. So, I've got the guys. I've got the kind of character in my coach and my GM that [I want]. It's there. I really believe that they'll bring the type of team that [I want]. There was no trouble in this team all year long – not inside the building or outside the building. I'm very proud of that. That's all I can hope for is that I have a team that the fans are proud of. And I think that our fans are proud of this team, and I hope to keep it that way."

Do you expect Chris McAlister to return next season?
(BISCIOTTI) "That's Oz. That's Ozzie and John. It's just not my job. It really isn't. I've gotten along very [well] with Chris McAlister over the years. He's a wonderful guy, he's got a great personality, he's always upbeat. If he fits into our plans, he will [be back]. But, with the salary cap, that's what you're looking at constantly."

How do you feel about Chris McAlister returning?
(HARBAUGH) "Chris McAlister is a heck of a player. We've said it all along throughout the course of the season. He's a really good person. If he wants to be a Raven, we'll see how it shakes out in the next few months, and we'll have some conversations about that. But, Chris McAlister is a good man and a good player, and we'll see what happens."

Can you talk how you will go about assessing and addressing needs in the offseason through free agency and the draft?
(HARBAUGH) "We're going to go about it like we do everything else. We're going to go to work, right? We've already started. Ozzie is down at the Senior Bowl, along with all of our scouts, Eric [DeCosta], working that part of it right now. Free agency, throughout the course of free agency from beginning to end, will be a big part of what we're doing, as well as the draft. Also, developing our players [is crucial]. We talked about the coaching staff. We've got to put the coaching staff together and continue to develop that part of it – develop the players throughout the of-season. It will be March 16 before we know it, and they'll be right back in here lifting. So, we've got a lot of plans to make."

Do you anticipate losing any others from your coaching staff or are they all under contract to stay?
(HARBAUGH) "All of our coaches are under contract. So, unless one of them has an opportunity to become a head coach somewhere we can control that. But, we're not really about keeping guys from looking at opportunities either. We want them to have opportunities, so we'll see what happens the next few weeks."

Would you like to say a few words about Rex Ryan?
(BISCIOTTI) "Probably it's better for John to speak because he knows what he is as a coach. But, I wish John had more time with Rex. It was a very difficult decision for me to pass Rex up as the coach. I know the defensive players wanted him last year. There's not a finer guy in the league. He is just a pleasure to be around. When we sat down after he didn't get the job, there was no sulking. I promised him that I would work with him more than I ever have. I think I spent a lot of time with Rex in teaching him some of the things that he needed to do. And, John then gave him the opportunity. John really gave him the opportunity to step up and learn what it was like to work cohesively with a head coach and an offensive coordinator, and Rex learned an awful lot this year. I think that he is going to be a great coach in the NFL. I don't see any reason why he can't be."

Have you had the time yet to reflect on your first season as a head coach?
(HARBAUGH) "I had the feeling you were going to ask that. I would say to some extent. We had a chance with the players to talk about the players. Obviously, Steve and Ozzie and Dick [Cass], we had a meeting on Monday and some of those things came up. You look back with some pride on what was accomplished. And [I have] some good feelings about our players and our coaches and what we've become together. We've become a football team. And that was the goal last January when we sat up here and talked about what we are going to be about. Our guys have established an identity. We're a rough, tough, disciplined, hard-working, blue-collar kind of football team. And that's what we wanted to be. And that's what we build on from here. We're looking forward all the time. Steve had talked about being satisfied. We're content with where we are at this time, but we're not satisfied. We wouldn't have been [if we had gone to the Super Bowl]. If we had been playing next week we wouldn't have been satisfied with that either. So, our guys understand that. We're excited to move forward."

Can you talk about the gratification of seeing the spirits of Baltimore lifted by the Ravens' success and playoff run?
(BISCIOTTI) "It is very gratifying. It really is. Like I said, I'm playing for pride. I'm in here for pride, that's it. And to make the fans happy and unified, it's very fulfilling to me. It's really [important]. I know it goes with winning. I know that people feel better when their team wins and so we try and win. But the ultimate is to hand the fans a trophy, and I'm not satisfied until we hand the fans a trophy. And that's what they were all excited about. I'm sure the productivity dropped significantly in Baltimore this week compared to what it was a month ago. It's tough when you lose, and I feel it as a fan and I wish we could have gone further. It means everything to me. I love that part of being an owner in the NFL – to see the fans proud of their team. That's what makes it significant for me."

What surprised you most about the season Joe Flacco had, from the time you first met him to the end of the season?
(HARBAUGH) "I wouldn't say anything surprised us. We had high expectations for Joe, and we were hopeful for a lot of reasons. But his ability to come back week after week and maintain a high level of focus and work ethic over the course of a long season – which is tough for any rookie, let alone a rookie quarterback in the NFL – to go as far as he did, I think that's very telling about what he's all about."

Can we assume that Flacco will be the starter next year with no competition?
(HARBAUGH) "There's always competition. Joe knows that. But he's our starter. He's our quarterback."

What are your thoughts on Flacco's development?
(BISCIOTTI) "There's just something about him that you just get the feeling that there's no setbacks on the horizon. There are a lot of quarterbacks out there that are called the 'chosen one,' and then three years later they're a backup somewhere else. So I'm not going to say that he's the quarterback of the next 12 years. I think you know that after three years. I don't think you can really say that after one. The thing is, I think Joe feels that way, too. I don't think he feels like he passed the test. I think he felt like he passed a test, and it was the first one. I think that in the next couple years, if we can continue to see his development… As it's been reported to me, he works harder than anybody in the building. He comes in on his day off on Tuesdays and works eight hours. I think one of you said – and I've repeated this 30 times – somebody said, 'How come every time I talk to Joe Flacco it seems like he just woke up from a nap?' There's something about him that just seems that he doesn't get too high or too low on anything, and I don't think he's very impressed with himself. I think he's going to go home, and I think he's going to spend the whole offseason thinking about the things he did wrong, not about the things he did right. So, for that, I'm pleased. We also know he's a man of great character. As John pointed out, he's got some growth, but we know what kind of man we have. He's not going to be out late at night. So I think the sky is the limit for him."

Did any owners touch base with you regarding their coaching searches and ask about your experience with Harbaugh?
(BISCIOTTI) "No, but I had the opportunity to talk to the guys in St. Louis and the guys in New York, talked to Woody Johnson, the owner [of the New York Jets], about Rex. So I was on the other side of that now. It's probably another year or so before they start calling me and asking me how I ended up with [Harbaugh]. But I thought that I owed it to Rex to let them know why I felt why he was right and why he was right now and how he had grown into that job. So that was the extent of my work with the other owners, was with [Rams senior advisor/owners' representative] John Shaw, who was heading the search committee for the Rams, and Woody Johnson."

What do you think of this trend of teams hiring younger head coaches?
(BISCIOTTI) "You called it right. It's a trend. There was a trend for college coaches, and then a few of those situations go sour. Now, people are not running around offering college coaches the jobs after a few of those instances recently, and now it's guys without coordinator experience. Then it's going to go back to guys that have Super Bowl rings on, and there's certainly going to be a ton of them out there from the way that we can count them up next year with [Mike] Shanahan and maybe [Mike] Holmgren coming back and [Bill] Cowher and [Brian] Billick. There's an awful lot of guys out there that have that experience. But I think it's just a trend, and I think that it all cycles around."

What were you experiencing and thinking last Sunday with five minutes left against Pittsburgh?
(BISCIOTTI) "That we did it the week before in Tennessee. I mean, honest to God, that was really what it was. I think that you, just for a defense mechanism, you read and you listen and you watch and you figure that you've got a 50-50 chance of winning the game, but everybody's telling you that you're an underdog. You're playing a Super Bowl-winning quarterback in No. 7, and [Ben] Roethlisberger certainly did that. I sat there and watched one of the great quarterback performances that I've ever witnessed, and I think he was the difference in the game. But we had the ball with four minutes left in the Tennessee game and walked out of there with a win, and when we got the ball back I thought, 'Here we go again. We can do it again.' We had that experience a week earlier, so it was easier for me to conjure up an image of what was going to transpire in those last six minutes."

You have one of the top rivalries in the NFL now with the Steelers. Will you push for more primetime appearances next year?
(BISCIOTTI) "We'll get our primetime appearances. The league does what works for them. I'm glad that I get to say that I know there's this word 'hatred' for the Steelers in Baltimore, and you can say what you want, but it is respect. It is the kind of team that we want to be. If they're a notch above us right now – and three out of three contests ended in their favor – I would say that they're a notch above us now. I'm thrilled that arguably the best team, or certainly one of the top three teams, in this league is in our division. It's something for us to shoot for. I am glad that we are not the cream of our division. We didn't win the championship, we didn't win the division, and we're supposed to be pleased with where we are. But our sights are focused on beating Pittsburgh. If you start there and you climb that mountain, then we're probably going to be pretty good."

Do you look at wide receiver as a position where you may try to add some things and bolster the roster?
(HARBAUGH) "Well, you know what I'm going to say is we're going to try to get better in every spot. But certainly, receiver is one of them. Derrick Mason is a big part of our plans for the future. Mark Clayton is a big part of our plans going forward, Marcus Smith and all the guys that we have right now on our roster. There's going to be competition for those remaining spots, but we're going to try to upgrade there just like we're going to upgrade a couple different spots."

Can you update us on George Kokinis and whether you know if he'll be here or in Cleveland in the future?
(BISCIOTTI) "He's still going through the interview process. I spoke to him at length yesterday, and I believe he's got another interview scheduled for today."

Are you concerned with the way the economy may affect the Ravens and the NFL?
(BISCIOTTI) "Oh yeah, very concerned. We know what the economy is like. I've said this before: I'm not in this business to make money, but I'm also hoping not to lose money, and we're running on fairly small margins when it comes to cash flow. So all those companies in Baltimore that buy our suites and everything, I need them to keep on going, and I need the people to keep on buying tickets. So we have to be sensitive with increases and everything else, but it is definitely a factor, and it's the first time we're going to go through it. But I've been through economic downturns in my other business, and so I think that we know how to prepare for those kinds of things. But you can't prepare for loss of revenues. You just have to try and manage it the best you can and minimize the losses."

Is there anything you know about being an NFL head coach this January that you couldn't have imagined last January?
(HARBAUGH) "Those are the kinds of things that I really don't spend time thinking about, as you know. But I would say I know how important it is to have great people around you, and it starts at the top with Steve, Dick Cass, Ozzie Newsome, Kevin Byrne, a great coaching staff, good men as players. What you were talking about, Steve, is so important. Having character individuals on your football team and throughout your organization, that's more solidified in my mind than anything. There are a lot of good football players out there, and there are a lot of good football players and football coaches who are great people. Those are the guys we want."

A year ago, you were taking over a staff that included Rex Ryan, who was passed over for the job. Ryan is walking into a similar situation with the Jets and Brian Schottenheimer. Does that experience last year give him a unique perspective to explain to Schottenheimer why it's not necessarily the worst thing in the world?
(HARBAUGH) "That's a great perception, and Rex has talked about that a couple of times that we've had conversations about it. I think he feels like he can really help Brian Schottenheimer through that because of his experience last year and because of the help that he got from Steve Bisciotti and the people in this organization. I think he feels like that's a strength for him in dealing with Brian, and it'll be interesting to see how it works out."

Do you think Schottenheimer could be a help to Ryan in providing continuity much like Ryan did here last year?
(HARBAUGH) "It could be. Rex was very unique in that situation because our friendship predated [last year], so we had a relationship going in. I think we knew each other. I knew what he was about, he knew what I was about, and Rex handled it just as well as anybody could possibly handle it. I think we formed a partnership in putting this thing together this year. He has as much to do with whatever success we had this year as anybody in this organization just because of the type of man he is and the way he handled it and the type of leader he is. So, that'll be a big challenge for Brian if he takes on that role."

How impressed were you with how Kyle Boller handled his situation this year with the shoulder injury?
(HARBAUGH) "That's a great observation, and that's so true. Kyle Boller, he was on the team plane coming back after the game. He was with us [for] most of the games down the stretch here, especially the ones that meant so much. He was there supporting Joe, supporting Troy [Smith], the rest of our offense. [He was] in the meetings on Saturday night before the games and a big part of everything we were doing down the stretch. You know, it was disappointing for him. He had a chance to work with Cam Cameron and Hue Jackson and grow as quarterback. Then, all of a sudden, that shoulder thing pops up, and he's devastated by it. That's just the kind of person he is, and he was a big plus for our team."

What are your thoughts on O.J. Brigance and the impact he had on the team this year?
(BISCIOTTI) "It's just immeasurable. You know, my dad died when I was eight. He knew he was going to die for two years with leukemia. He didn't want the kids to know it, so we didn't know. We just thought he was going in for tests and stuff like that. The way he handled it and the way my mom handled it made it… My mom continued to call it and the letter that my dad wrote us was [about] what a blessing it was that God chose him. That's the way I was raised. So to be front and center as a grown man and see a guy like O.J. consider this a blessing, it really brings back a lot of memories for how I was raised. You'd have to know the man before the illness struck and see how he dealt with it. It's not about inspiration to this building. It's inspiration to all of us to see a guy handle what he's handled the way he's handled it. I can see if you were a player and you were watching an ex-player that had done so much for you in the past few years in the job that he had and see him struggle, I can imagine that the team concept and why they would rally around him and why they would play harder for him. But get your chance to sit down with O.J. because it's more important than what he did for this team. He's an inspiration to all of us. We can only hope that we can look at struggles the way that he has, as men and women. It's just fabulous."

The offensive line was one of the more underrated parts of this team. How important was Jason Brown to its success and how important is it to bring him back next year?
(HARBAUGH) "Well, it's important. Jason Brown obviously was the anchor of the offensive line in the sense that he's the center, made the calls. He's a big, physical center. He handles nose guards, which is important in this division, and we'll do our best just like we will with the other guys to bring him back. We've talked to him, and he wants to be here. We want him to be here. We'll just have to see how the economics shake out. You just do the best you can with that. If it works out, that'd be a plus for us."

Is Jim Leonhard likely in the same type of situation? What are your thoughts on his impact on this team?
(HARBAUGH) "No question, same answer as far as trying to bring him back. His impact was just dramatic. Dawan Landry is a heck of a safety. And for Jim Leonhard to come in and fill those shoes the way he did, I won't say that it was unexpected or that it was surprising because we all felt like he was a really good football player. He's a little bit undervalued athletically around the league, at least going into the season. He's probably not now. Here's a guy that finds a way to make plays all over the field. We had the turnovers against Tennessee, I think he was involved in all three, wasn't he? Plus the punt return. Then, it shows up again against Pittsburgh. It's really every game he's played, he's had a dramatic impact on. He's a valuable part of our defense."

Have you been getting calls about Hue Jackson, and can you reflect on the job he did with Flacco?
(HARBAUGH) "Hue did a tremendous job with Joe. Hue is one of the best offensive coaches in the league. He's recognized around the league as that. Hue is going to have a lot of opportunities to move up. Now, whether Hue chooses to do that or not this year or next year or sometime down the road, we'll just have to see. But Hue Jackson is a shining star, and he's a team guy. He's a humble man. I think he wants what's best for the Ravens right now, but he's going to have plenty of opportunities to go wherever he wants in this profession."

With the way this season started out, having a rookie head coach and quarterback, and then with all of the injuries that came up, did this team overachieve and to what degree?
(BISCIOTTI) "I don't like to say 'overachieve.' We achieved. To overachieve, you've set your bar lower than expected. I've seen this thing go up and down for nine years, and I can't put my finger on it. We talk about winning and chemistry and which one comes first. Winning does. There's no doubt in my mind. You start to win and the chemistry builds, and people get excited, and they believe in each other, and they work a little harder, and they get inspiration from people like O.J. Things snowball, and things work well. Chemistry is a result of winning. I don't think you're going to find many 4-12 teams out there bragging about their chemistry. So, no, I don't think we overachieved. I think that we got things in place. Everything you do, you're trying to build a champion. We didn't get there, so I think we underachieved. I think that's a fair statement. I don't want to say 'tongue-in-cheek,' but it's fair. We want to look at this like we underachieved. We were five minutes away from the Super Bowl, and who knows what would have happened. If we had lost two weeks from now in [Tampa], we would be just a little more disappointed than we are this week. So the higher you go, the farther you fall, but the quicker you regroup because you know that you've got a lot of questions answered. One I've got answered is I've got a quarterback and a coach that, going forward, I think are going to do great things together."

With the Collective Bargaining Agreement set to expire in the future, how does it affect teams' philosophy with negotiations and planning this offseason? How much has the NFL talked to teams about it?
(BISCIOTTI) "Well, all I can tell you is that the NFL is building a blueprint and making sure we are all educated on what ramifications are for a potential work stoppage. So it may alter the way that you structure contracts, but that really goes straight to Ozzie. They actually don't call me about that. Ozzie is my designee, and they're the ones that are letting him [know] so he can teach his staff that this is how we're going forward. But it's not really that much different."

You say "work stoppage," and that's going to put a shiver through fans' spines. Is there a big concern that could happen?
(BISCIOTTI) "Yeah. I mean, that's why we opted out of the contract, to try and make things right and get them aligned better for everybody. I think we will. I'm pretty confident we will. But right now, the union doesn't even have a director, so until they get somebody in there, then we can start moving forward with those negotiations. Like I said, I'm just going to be updated at the different meetings. I'm not going to be a participant in those meetings."

We've talked about a number of players, whether they'll be back or not. Is that one of the toughest parts of being a head coach, making those decisions?
(HARBAUGH) "Well, you know we have a process for that, and Ozzie [Newsome] talks about that all the time. I think part of the process is the coaching side of it and evaluating and laying out a plan football-wise. All the guys are important to us. We want to bring them all back if we can, because that gives you a chance to build up some strength. You understand you're not going to be able to do that, so you've got to prioritize to some extent. Then negotiations start, and I think Ozzie tries to put it together the best way that he can to keep us as strong as he possibly can. So, if you lose somebody you feel bad about that, because that's one of our brothers, so to speak, and we don't want to lose any of them. We're going to fight like crazy to try to keep them. We'll see if that can happen or not, but you're right, that's a difficult part of it."

Now that the game is over, can you update us on Samari Rolle? There were rumors he had surgery. What's wrong?
(HARBAUGH) "Yeah, he had a hip flexor issue. It was a partial tear of his hip flexor, and there was a chance he could have played in the Super Bowl. So, it wasn't a surgery-type situation. We were rehabbing him like crazy. We'd have been very hopeful to get him back for the Super Bowl, and I think there was a chance to do that. So that was the plan."

With Dawan Landry, is there any chance he might not be able to play next season, or is it your thoughts that you're very confident he'll be able to play?
(HARBAUGH) "We're very confident. Everything I've been told is that he'll be able to play next year. There's nothing that we've heard that he won't be able to."

Same question for guys like Kelly Gregg and Marshal Yanda. What's their progress and how does that impact you moving forward and preparing for next year?
(HARBAUGH) "Right, well the same answer for those guys. We're thinking all those guys will be back for the mini-camps, training camps as well. One of the issues that we look at in terms of improving our football team is bringing guys back that were injured this year. We have a number of guys that have been on IR [Injured Reserve], missed starts and all those different kinds of things. By those guys doing a great job in the offseason of getting healthy, getting themselves back to where they can be durable throughout the course of the season next year, we're going to be a better football team right there. That's before free agency, before the draft even comes around. That's encouraging. That's exciting."

Would you treat Ray Lewis' free agency differently? Often, in the past, it's been to go out and see what your market is and we'll see if we can get a deal. Would you be proactive and try to get him done before he gets out there?
(BISCIOTTI) "Yes. But we typically don't say, 'Go out and find your market value.' It really comes down to Ozzie and his agent being far apart instead of really close. If they're really close, then I think they believe that they're going to bang it out and get it done. If they're really far apart… You know, some guys go out there on the market and find out that their agent isn't able to get him the deal that he's saying they're trying to get. It's just up to Ozzie to find out what he's worth and then find out how big the gap is between he and the agent, and that usually dictates if the guy slides into free agency or not. Ray is not going to settle for something that he thinks is way below. Are we going to get a home town discount? I hope so, I really do. I mean, that means that we can find one more Jimmy Leonhard on the free agent market. And that's when I refer to the Patriots – that's what they do. You know, Tom Brady agreed to a contract that only put him in the top eight quarterbacks, or five quarterbacks, when he did that deal a few years ago. Yeah, that's what I hope my relationship with Ray is. I hope I get a discount so I can find another Jim Leonhard with the money we save. If he wants to go out there and maximize his money, and somebody is desperate for that kind of leadership, then there may be a big gap, and I'm not going to say to Oz, 'Go do it under any circumstance.' That wouldn't be fair to Ozzie. He's got a plan, and it's all pieces of the puzzle, and I could make one demand, and it would domino across the entire roster. And, I can't do that to him."

So you won't get involved, no matter what, at the 11th hour?
(BISCIOTTI) "No. I mean, no. I didn't in the last one. I don't see that happening. Like I said, Ray and I will talk, but Ray and I usually talk in generalities. We don't really talk specifics of contracts."

Three years ago, you said you didn't want your team's fortunes to be dictated by doors that open and close. Do you think you've achieved that?
(BISCIOTTI) "To be determined. I think that we're well on the way. I think that the decision that we made, that, you know… Listen, when this season started, I said to John, if we win six games and we've got our quarterback and coach of the future I'll be happy. He said, 'I won't.' And I said, 'I don't care, I'm not talking about you. I'm talking about me. I want you to know what the owner's expectations are, and I'm not looking at this year. You've got to build yourself up. Let's care about what we're going to look like in 2010, and make some long-term decisions as you go forward.' But as an owner, you want a coach and a quarterback that you feel can be in your organization for 10 years, and I'm very hopeful and very confident that we've got that. That's the extent of my job here."

Have you revised your expectations now, for 2009?
(BISCIOTTI) "Oh yeah, he isn't getting off the hook that easy. No way. [Laughing] No, John is always going to have higher expectations than me, and that's what I want in the leader of 53 men. I want him to be the one that has the high expectations. I'd like mine to be a little more realistic. He knows, let's face it, I want trophies, and I said last year I needed to find a Hall of Fame coach. So if he gets me a couple of them, he's probably on his way to doing that. So we'll see how that fans out."

During your exit interviews with the players, did you lay out to them your expectations for their participation in the offseason and being committed?
(HARBAUGH) "We laid out the whole thing – where we've been, where we're going, how we got to where we're at, what the future holds, and I don't think our guys were surprised by anything we talked about. And obviously, we think the offseason program is really important. It's important for a lot of different reasons, and it's going to be no less important this year. Different guys are at different stages in their career, so there are different expectations for what guys need to be doing in the offseason. But, getting in great condition, world-class condition, and being durable – those are two things that are really important to a successful football team. So, that part of it applies across the board."

You're kicker is 40 years old, and he's a free agent. Do you have confidence in him? Will you bring Matt Stover back?
(HARBAUGH) "He's 40 years old, he's a free agent, and he's still a really good kicker. We're not really too interested in weakening ourselves if we don't have to, but that remains to be determined as well. If we can bring him back, we will, and if we can't we're going to have to move in another direction. But again, we're hopeful that Matt will be here."

Having a year under your belt now, how does your offseason approach differ this year from last year, being that you know your players, your players know you and so forth?
(HARBAUGH) "That's a great point. We probably have a better feel for each guy individually, so we probably start off further down the road in understanding their needs in the offseason program, and we're further down the road with establishing what we're going to be about in all three phases of the X and O part of it, is further down the road. But we get less work. We have two less mini-camps that you get when you come in with a new staff – two extra mini-camps that Rex will have up in New York we won't have. So that will kind of negate the whole deal. But as far as our philosophy, nothing changed. We believe in working hard, blue collar, and I think our guys will be ready to do that."

This defense has been good for a long time. You talked about an in-house change with your coordinators. Do you suspect it will be the defense that the Ravens have played over the last several years?
(HARBAUGH) "It's certainly going to be the style of defense. We're going to be aggressive, attack-oriented, physical. Eleven guys running to the ball every single play, creating turnovers, those are all things that are so important."

From a scheme standpoint?
(HARBAUGH) "Well, we're going to be sound in everything we do, but whether… If Rex continued on as the defensive coordinator, we would be evolving the package just like you do every single year. I think the fact that you're talking about guys who have been in the room and have been part of the system, that system moves forward. So we'll continue to evolve the system just like you would always try to improve it, keep pace with the NFL, and make it as teachable and likeable, as Rex puts it, as we possibly can. But we've got to improve and we've got to get better in every area, and defense is part of it."

Your thoughts on coaching the Pro Bowl, you and Andy Reid being out there... Is there an opportunity to see a lot of players up close? Do you expect Haloti Ngata to be able to go to the game now?
(HARBAUGH) "As far as Haloti, we don't know yet. I really hope he can. It just depends on how the injury thing works out for the other defensive linemen. As far as coaching the Pro Bowl with Andy Reid, we've done that a few times, so we kind of know how that works. He'll just be on the other side of the fence. But, it's a good honor for our staff, it's a great opportunity for the families, and hopefully the other bowl will be the one that comes up the next time around."

In your everyday balancing act of juggling responsibilities as a team owner, what's your biggest challenge?
(BISCIOTTI) "I don't have any. I've got Dick Cass, and when I brought Dick in it was so he could do all that juggling. I'm just a basket case. I just sit around and worry – worry, hope and pray, and that's what an owner should be, as far as I'm concerned, unless you have an interest to dive in. Dick runs this organization, and he runs it great. And, I really don't have much stress, certainly in the offseason. I get to shut it down. These guys are working, obviously, around the clock, and they get a little break here and there. But it's pretty simple the way I've set myself up. I've carved out a pretty nice little job description."

Would this be a time when you look at the free agents and think maybe you'll take a leap with a guy even if you had to sacrifice the salary cap in the future?
(BISCIOTTI) "I think that we'll refer back to a couple of questions ago: I believe if you have a coach and a quarterback of the future, that that evens it out. If you look at the teams that have been back over and over to the playoffs, just peel them of – the Colts, [Tony] Dungy and [Peyton] Manning, and the Patriots with [Tom] Brady and [Bill] Belichick, the Eagles with Andy Reid and Donovan McNabb – it virtually is the only thing that you can look at and say that's the constant. They've got a long-term coach and a long-term quarterback, and that's why they have a chance to get to the playoffs every year. So yeah, I think that's the position we're going to be in. I remember New England taking a chance on Randy Moss, and people said, 'Oh, it could ruin their organization.' And it certainly didn't; it actually made them stronger. But they were winning Super Bowls without Randy Moss. So, that's where we'll be. That's the hope of an owner, is that you're sitting there wondering if you're one step away, or one player away, or something like that. And I'll be in that mix, and I know that Ozzie is the perfect guy for that. Ozzie is not going to go chasing dreams. He's so methodical in what he does, that if he comes to me like he did with T.O. [Terrell Owens] four years ago, five years ago, or whenever that was and said, 'It's time to take that chance,' I'm going to bet on Ozzie 10 out of 10 times. I just trust his judgment. He's a Hall of Famer. He understands team chemistry. He knows that a couple of wacky guys like Frank Walker make the team better not, you know… You guys, I would think, have enjoyed Frank. He's a funny guy. He's a funny guy to be around, and he has been anything but disruptive. So there are personalities that you can blend in that aren't all the same, that make for just a wonderful organization, and I hope that there are some guys out there, available, that we can nab to get over the top. But like I said, what Ozzie did got us over the top. We went from 5-11, and Ozzie got six guys, one in a trade and five in free agency that I mentioned – I'm sure there's a couple more – but a couple years earlier when he got Justin Bannan and guys like that, that have played significant roles in the team. Yeah, there's going to be one that's an elite player like we did with Steve M^{c}Nair. You take a chance when it presents itself, and if you think that's the missing piece then… If John and Ozzie agree, then there's a really good chance I'm going to fall in line with that."

AFC Championship

Steelers 23 - Ravens 14

Pittsburgh (14-4)
Baltimore (13-6)

SUNDAY, JAN. 18, 2009 6:43 PM EDT HEINZ FIELD PITTSBURGH

Weather: 26 Cloudy, Wind W 12 mph // Attendance: 65,350 // Time: 3:35

The Ravens' playoff run ended with a 23-14 loss to the Pittsburgh Steelers. It was a battle of the NFL's top 2 defenses, and Baltimore fought through multiple injuries. S Daren Stone suffered a concussion on the opening kickoff, but he returned in the 2nd half. CB Frank Walker (dislocated shoulder) and CB Corey Ivy, who was blindsided by a downfield block from WR Limas Sweed, both left for brief moments before returning to the game. RB Willis McGahee didn't, though. McGahee, who rushed for a game-high 60 yards and 2 TDs on 20 carries, was carted off in the 4th quarter because of a helmet-to-helmet shot from S Ryan Clark. McGahee went to UMPC Presbyterian Hospital and was released the following day. After not committing a TO in his 1st 2 playoff games, QB Joe Flacco threw 3 INTs and lost a fumble. The Steelers notched 8 sacks on Flacco, who completed 13 of 30 passes for 141 yards and a QB rating of 18.2, his lowest of 2008. Pittsburgh took a 13-0 lead on 2 K Jeff Reed FGs and a 65-yard TD pass from QB Ben Roethlisberger to WR Santonio Holmes. Holmes caught it at Baltimore's 49-yard line as CB Fabian Washington slipped, and Holmes weaved through the secondary for the score. S Jim Leonhard returned a punt 45 yards to the Steelers' 17, which - along with a pass interference call in the end zone - set up McGahee's 3-yard TD run in the 2nd quarter. After another Reed FG, McGahee pulled the Ravens within 2 points (16-14 in the 4th quarter) with his 2nd TD. A botched punt from Pittsburgh's P Mitch Berger gave Baltimore the ball at midfield, and another end zone pass interference call led to McGahee's 1-yard TD run. On their ensuing series, the Ravens drove for a go-ahead score, but S Troy Polamalu jumped in front of WR Derrick Mason with 4:24 left and raced 40 yards to paydirt with Flacco's 2nd INT. His last INT - on an attempt over the middle to RB Ray Rice - sealed the outcome with 1:11 remaining.

Divisional Playoffs

Ravens 13 - Titans 10

Baltimore (13-5)
Tennessee (13-4)

SATURDAY, JAN. 10, 2009 3:33 PM CST LP FIELD NASHVILLE

Weather: 53 Cloudy, Wind N/NW 11 mph // Attendance: 69,143 // Time: 3:07

Baltimore advanced to the AFC Championship game after a 13-10 victory over the top-seeded Tennessee Titans at LP Field. Two fierce defenses were featured in this hard-fought battle. It wasn't until K Matt Stover connected on a 43-yard FG with 53 seconds remaining that the outcome was decided. To get there, QB Joe Flacco, who became the NFL's 1st rookie signal-caller to win 2 playoff games, coolly led a 9-play, 51-yard drive to set up the clinching kick. Tennessee scored a TD on their 2nd drive. Pro Bowl RB Chris Johnson took a short pass from QB Kerry Collins in the left flat, eluded LB Bart Scott, and then ripped off a 28-yard gain. Johnson then finished the march with an 8-yard TD run. On the ensuing series, Flacco hooked up with WR Derrick Mason for a 48-yard TD bomb. A 7-7 tie was carried into the 4th quarter until Stover hit a 21-yard FG at the 14:14 mark of the final period. The Ravens foiled multiple Titans scoring attempts. Just before the 1st half ended, Tennessee marched to the Ravens' 22-yard line, but RB LenDale White was stripped by LB Jarret Johnson, and S Jim Leonhard recovered with 25 seconds on the clock. The Titans tried a 51-yard FG on 4th down instead of punting in the 3rd quarter, and K Rob Bironas pushed it WL. And in the 4th, Titans TE Alge Crumpler fumbled on the Ravens' 6-yard line. Tennessee knotted the game again after stopping the Ravens and taking advantage of the field position caused by Crumpler's lost fumble for Bironas' 27-yard FG. The Ravens made the most of their last possession. Flacco completed a 23-yard pass to TE Todd Heap for a critical 3rd-and-2 conversion to advance to midfield. RB Willis McGahee then made an 11-yard run, and Flacco found WR Mark Clayton for 8 yards to pull within Stover's range. With less than 1:00 to move down the field, Collins completed 1 pass (5 yards to Brandon Jones and his last 3 attempts fell to the turf.

Wild Card

Ravens 27 - Dolphins 9

Baltimore (12-5)
Miami (11-6)

SUNDAY, JAN. 4, 2009 | 1:03 PM EST | DOLPHIN STADIUM | MIAMI

Weather: 79 Cloudy, Wind ESE 16 mph // Attendance: 74,240 // Time: 2:53

The Ravens forced 5 turnovers en route to a 27-9 win over the Miami Dolphins. Miami actually tied an NFL record with only 13 giveaways in 2008, but that didn't matter when S Ed Reed lined up across from QB Chad Pennington. Reed snared 2 INTs from Pennington, who only threw 7 INTs in the regular season. Reed took the 1st one 64 yards for a TD, the 12th score of his career. CB Fabian Washington and S Jim Leonhard also robbed Pennington, while LB Terrell Suggs recovered a fumble. Rookie QB Joe Flacco only completed 9 of 23 passes for 135 yards, but he did not toss an INT in his 1st playoff contest. Pennington, who was recently named the 2008 NFL Comeback Player of the Year, was 25-of-38 for 252 yards. Both teams traded FGs before the INTs began accumulating. At 8:56 in the 2nd quarter, Leonhard returned the 1st theft of the day 20 yards to Miami's 45-yard line, but the Ravens punted after a 3-and-out. On the following series, Reed ran under a rainbow from Pennington and weaved 64 yards for the TD. Baltimore added another K Matt Stover FG (31 yards) before the 1st half ended for a 13-3 Ravens' lead. Washington posted the 3rd INT just after halftime, which resulted in another Ravens 3-and-out. But DT Marques Douglas stripped RB Patrick Cobbs to end the Dolphins' ensuing drive, and Suggs recovered on Miami's 19-yard line. Four plays later, FB Le'Ron McClain, who rushed for 75 yards on 19 carries, scored from 8 yards. Reed continued to terrorize Pennington, ending Miami's most promising march. Pennington drove to Baltimore's 15-yard line, but Reed grabbed his 2nd INT at the 8-yard line in the 3rd. The Dolphins closed the margin to 20-9 with a 5-play drive culminating in a TD pass to RB Ronnie Brown, but it wasn't enough to overcome the deficit. The Ravens offense put the margin out of reach when a 71-yard drive - highlighted by a 48-yard run by RB Willis McGahee to the Miami 4-yard line - ended with a 5-yard scoring run from Flacco.

16 Ravens 27 - Jaguars 7

Jacksonville (5-12)
Baltimore (11-5)

SUNDAY, DEC. 28, 2008 | 4:16 PM EST | M&T BANK STADIUM | BALTIMORE

Weather: 62 Cloudy, Wind WSW 18 mph // Attendance: 71,366 // Time: 2:48

With a 27-7 victory over the Jacksonville Jaguars, the Ravens clinched the 6th and final AFC playoff spot, rebounding from last year's 5-11 campaign. The Jaguars held a brief 7-3 lead in the 1st quarter, but with postseason hopes at stake, it was all Ravens from there. Baltimore mounted 3 long scoring drives in the 2nd quarter, securing a Wild Card showdown with the Miami Dolphins in South Florida. During that game-changing outburst, rookie QB Joe Flacco completed 12 of 13, setting up 2 TD runs from FB Le'Ron McClain and another by RB Willis McGahee. Jaguars QB David Garrard answered K Matt Stover's opening 32-yard FG with a TD pass to RB Alvin Pearman. But the Ravens employed a no-huddle offense after Pearman scored, and Flacco completed 6 of 7 passes for 69 yards to set up McClain's 5-yard rumble across the goal line for his team-leading 9th TD. McClain's 10th, a 1-yard plunge, came following a 47-yard bomb from Flacco to WR Mark Clayton. In between, McGahee added a 13-yard TD, capping a 77-yard march where Flacco found WR Derrick Mason from 39 yards and then on a 16-yard flea flicker. The flurry of Ravens points made it 24-7 at the half, and Baltimore then shut down any attempt at a Jaguars comeback. Jacksonville marched to Baltimore's 20-yard line after the break, but turned the ball over on downs when Garrard misfired on a 4th-and-4 pass to WR Dennis Northcutt. Baltimore used that possession to post a 41-yard FG from Stover and complete the scoring. The Jaguars never made it to Ravens territory again until getting to the 31 on their last drive. Even then, a shot to the end zone was intercepted by S Ed Reed, his 2nd of the game and NFL-best 9th of the season. Baltimore's defensive effort was also aided by LB Ray Lewis' 2 FRs. Mason posted 6 receptions for 77 yards, going over 10,000 yards for his career (10,061), while Clayton led all receivers with 4 grabs for 128 yards.

15 Ravens 33 - Cowboys 24

Baltimore (10-5)
Dallas (9-7)

SUNDAY, DEC. 20, 2008 7:15 PM CST TEXAS STADIUM DALLAS

Weather: 45, No wind // Attendance: 63,800 // Time: 3:24

Baltimore defeated the Dallas Cowboys, 33-24, to spoil the celebration at the final game at Texas Stadium. Dallas closed to within 2 points twice in the 4th quarter, but the Ravens broke a pair of long TD runs to extend their lead both times. RB Willis McGahee (8 carries for 108 yards) burst up the middle to sprint 77 yards for a touchdown at the 3:32 mark, countering a 7-yard TD strike from Cowboys QB Tony Romo to WR Terrell Owens that narrowed the margin to 19-17. Then, after Romo answered McGahee with a 21-yard TD pass to TE Jason Witten, the Ravens' very next offensive play saw FB Le'Ron McClain (22 attempts for 139 yards) bounce off the right side of the OL for an 82-yard TD scamper. McClain's run was not only a career high, but it was the longest ever for an opponent at the Cowboys' venerable home. The Ravens had their share of early troubles, however. QB Joe Flacco, who finished 17-of-25 for 149 yards and a 96.9 passer rating, was sacked 5 times in the 1st half, losing a fumble on his initial drive of the game when he was sack-stripped by DE DeMarcus Ware. Backed up to his own 8-yard line because of an INT from S Ed Reed on the game's 4th play, Flacco did not see Ware and lost his 2nd fumble this season. The Cowboys converted the positive field position to open the scoring on a RB Tashard Choice TD plunge. Baltimore kept close with 26- and 29-yard FGs from K Matt Stover, and then took a 9-7 lead when Stover hit from 37 yards just before halftime. The score was set up by Reed's 2nd INT (7th of the season) and return to midfield. A 13-yard TD pass from Flacco to WR Derrick Mason in the 3rd quarter put the Ravens ahead 16-7. The courageous Mason, who finished with 6 catches for 66 yards, left the game on 3 separate occasions because of a painful shoulder injury and couldn't even lift his left arm in celebration.

14 Steelers 13 - Ravens 9

Pittsburgh (11-3)
Baltimore (9-5)

SUNDAY, DEC. 14, 2008 | 4:15 PM EDT | M&T BANK STADIUM | BALTIMORE

Weather: 45 Mostly Cloudy, Wind SSE 14 mph // Attendance: 71,502 // Time: 3:11

In an epic clash of the NFL's top 2 defenses, it was the Pittsburgh Steelers' offense that captured a 13-9 victory over the Ravens. Pittsburgh drove 92 yards in 12 plays to score a controversial winning TD with 43 seconds left in the game. WR Santonio Holmes hauled in a 4-yard scoring pass from QB Ben Roethlisberger to cap the Steelers' final march. Facing 3rd-and-goal on Pittsburgh's 4-yard line, Roethlisberger bought time with his legs before finding Holmes, who had 2 feet in the end zone but seemed to grasp the ball outside of it as S Ed Reed tackled him to the 1-yard line. It was originally ruled that Holmes did not score, but after a booth review, referee Walt Coleman reversed the call when he saw a tip of the ball cross the barrier. K Matt Stover booted 3 FGs (28, 26 and 28 yards) for the Ravens, while Pittsburgh came away with a pair of FGs before the game's only TD. The Ravens were clinging to a 9-3 lead when LB Terrell Suggs sacked Roethlisberger on the 1st play of the 4th quarter and jarred the ball loose into the hands of DT Brandon McKinney. But Baltimore could not convert the TO into points and ended up punting after a 3-and-out. The Steelers then drove to the Ravens' 12 with the help of a 30-yard completion to WR Hines Ward, setting up a 30-yard FG from K Jeff Reed. The Ravens were forced to punt again when QB Joe Flacco was sacked by LB Lawrence Timmons and fumbled. The play had started on Pittsburgh's 27-yard line, but the Ravens were pushed out of Stover's range when RB Willis McGahee recovered the ball at the 41. Pittsburgh then took possession on its own 8-yard line with 3:36 remaining and rallied for the TD. Baltimore gained 112 rushing yards against the NFL's best run defense, including a game-high 87 from FB Le'Ron McClain (23 attempts).

13 Ravens 24 - Redskins 10

Washington (7-6)
Baltimore (9-4)

SUNDAY, DEC. 7, 2008 | 8:23 PM EDT | M&T BANK STADIUM | BALTIMORE

Weather: 29 Clear, Cold Wind WNW 20 mph // Attendance: 71,438 // Time: 3:08

The Ravens displayed their tough, physical identity in a gritty 24-10 win over the Washington Redskins. Baltimore ground out a 12-play, 83-yard drive late in the 4th quarter that had 10 bruising runs from 260-pound FB Le'Ron McClain en route to QB Joe Flacco's clinching 28-yard TD pass to WR Derrick Mason. The march stopped any thought of a Washington comeback, even though the Redskins posted 10 points in the final period to get within 7 at 17-10. The Ravens jumped out to a 2-TD lead in the 1st quarter because of 2 spectacular plays from S Ed Reed. The Pro Bowl defender snared an INT on the opening series to set up an 8-yard TD run for McClain, and then Reed returned a fumble 22 yards to the end zone 2:29 after that. Two 2nd-half Ravens turnovers offered short fields to finally light the scoreboard, but it wasn't enough to climb back in the game after Reed's outburst. On the 3rd play of the night, Reed grabbed a fluttering throw from QB Jason Campbell around midfield after the ball was tipped by LB Terrell Suggs. McClain rumbled across the goal line for his team-best 8th TD 5 plays later. Both teams traded punts before Reed stripped RB Clinton Portis on an 11-yard rush and scored with the FR, his 11th-career TD. K Matt Stover extended the lead to 17-0 with a 32-yard FG, but the Redskins then capitalized on the 2 Ravens' turnovers. Flacco tossed his first INT in 3 weeks at the Baltimore 26-yard line just before the 4th quarter, leading to K Shaun Suisham's 43-yard FG. On the Ravens' ensuing series, RB Willis McGahee - who totaled 32 yards on 11 carries before leaving the game in the 4th quarter with a shoulder stinger and mild concussion - lost a fumble on Baltimore's 43-yard line. Campbell then found WR Antwaan Randle El for a 5-yard TD at the 11:32 mark, trimming the margin to 7. But the Ravens responded with their defining drive, ruggedly moving downfield on McClain's legs and capping their night at the 3:35 mark with the TD throw to Mason.

12 Ravens 34 - Bengals 3

Baltimore (8-4)
Cincinnati (1-10-1)

SUNDAY, NOV. 30, 2008 1:02 PM EDT PAUL BROWN STADIUM CINCINNATI

Weather: 42, Cloudy and Showers, Wind SSW 3 mph // Attendance: 63,871 // Time: 3:00

Baltimore cruised to a dominating 34-3 victory at Paul Brown Stadium by stomping out the Cincinnati Bengals for their 6th win in the past 7 contests. And while those previous wins have all been impressive in their own right, the game may have been the Ravens' most dominating performance. The Ravens hammered Cincinnati's defense with 260-pound FB Le'Ron McClain, who opened downfield opportunities for QB Joe Flacco. The rookie QB completed 19 of 29 for a career-best 280 yards and no INTs. With the offense clicking, Baltimore amassed 451 yards, only 28 less than a franchise record. WR Mark Clayton was a major factor in that production. Clayton caught 5 passes for 164 yards (the 3rd-best total in team history), hauled in 1 of those catches for a 70-yard TD, and even threw a 32-yard scoring strike to WR Derrick Mason. His TD grab and toss came within 2:19 of each other in the 3rd quarter, pushing the margin to 27-3 in a flash. Defensively, Baltimore stymied the NFL's worst offense. Cincinnati was held to only 6 1st downs and 155 total yards. S Jim Leonhard capped the outing when he picked off QB Jordan Palmer and ran 35 yards for a TD late in the 4th quarter. Only 2 of Cincinnati's 1st 10 drives lasted more than 3 plays. Eighty-nine of the Bengals' 155 yards came on a march just before halftime that was capped with a 21-yard FG from K Shayne Graham. As the Bengals' only points, it was the 2nd consecutive week that the Ravens' "D" did not give up a TD. Baltimore K Matt Stover opened the scoring with 27- and 21-yard FGs, which was followed by a 4-yard TD from Flacco to TE Todd Heap. The 9-play scoring drive was keyed by a 33-yard reception by Clayton. McClain led the team with 86 rushing yards, while Derrick Mason pitched in with six receptions for 91 yards. Additionally, the Ravens kept possession for 38:58, compared to Cincinnati's 21:02.

11 Ravens 36 - Eagles 7

Philadelphia (5-5-1)
Baltimore (7-4)

SUNDAY, NOV. 23, 2008 1:02 PM EDT M&T BANK STADIUM BALTIMORE

Weather: 39 Sunny, Wind WSW 5 mph // Attendance: 71,379 // Time: 3:27

The Ravens' defense was nightmarish no matter who played QB for the Philadelphia Eagles, notching 4 INTs and 1 FR from Eagles QBs Donovan McNabb and Kevin Kolb. Both were equally ineffective in a 36-7 loss. McNabb tossed 2 INTs and lost a fumble before he was removed at halftime after posting a 13.2 passer rating. Kolb completed 10 of 23 for 73 yards and a 15.3 rating in the 2nd half. Baltimore racked up 26 2nd-half points on big plays from many sources. LB Jameel McClain blocked a punt in the end zone for a safety and a 12-7 Ravens lead midway through the 3rd quarter. CB Samari Rolle's INT at Baltimore's 49-yard line set up Matt Stover's 42-yard FG 3 seconds into the 4th quarter. WR Mark Clayton hauled in a short slant from QB Joe Flacco and raced 53 yards for a TD. And, S Ed Reed put the game out of reach when he picked off Kolb and sprinted an NFL-record 108 yards for a TD. When FB Le'Ron McClain (88 yards on 18 carries) rumbled 28 yards before his 1-yard scoring plunge with 3:10 left, the outcome was obvious. Baltimore didn't open the scoring until the 3:05 mark of the 2nd quarter, when K Matt Stover hit a 44-yard FG. By that time, Baltimore had already picked off McNabb once - when CB Fabian Washington wrestled possession of a 30-yard attempt to WR DeSean Jackson - and pounced on a McNabb fumble that LB Jarret Johnson both forced and recovered. The Ravens didn't convert either of the 1st 2 Eagles turnovers into points, but on the snap following Stover's FG, Reed corralled a throw to Jackson and ran 43 yards to the Philadelphia 6. Flacco then delivered a 1-yard TD pass to TE Daniel Wilcox. The Eagles answered with S Quintin Demps' 100-yard KO return for a TD. The 10-7 battle continued into the 3rd quarter, when Baltimore backed the Eagles deep into their own territory and McClain got his 2nd-career safety. Then the floodgates opened. Flacco finished 12-of-26 for 183 yards and no INTs (95.5 QB rating).

10 Giants 30 - Ravens 10

Baltimore (6-4)
New York (9-1)

SUNDAY, NOV. 16, 2008 | 1:02 PM EDT | GIANTS STADIUM | EAST RUTHERFORD

Weather: 49, Cloudy, Wind WNW 19 mph // Attendance: 78,849 // Time: 2:57

In a matchup of the NFL's top rushing offense and run defense, the Ravens gave way in a 30-10 loss to the New York Giants. New York rushed for 207 total yards, the most allowed all season by a unit that went into the contest giving up an average of 65.4 yards per game. RB Brandon Jacobs carried the ball 11 times for 73 yards, while RB Ahmad Bradshaw totaled 96 yards on only 9 attempts. On his 1st run of the day, the 265-pound Jacobs cut off the left side and sprinted 36 yards. The play set the stage for Jacobs' ensuing 1-yard TD. The Ravens had a chance to answer, but K Matt Stover's 32-yard FG was blocked by DT Fred Robbins. Jacobs then popped off a 15-yard run before crossing the goal line from 1-yard out. After Jacobs' 2nd TD, Baltimore P Sam Koch pinned the Giants at their own 10-yard line. But QB Eli Manning, who completed 13-of-23 for 153 yards, marched New York 90 yards in 12 plays, finding backup TE Darcy Johnson for a 1-yard TD pass. The Ravens finally scored on their answering series. QB Joe Flacco connected with WR Derrick Mason for a 15-yard gain and WR Mark Clayton for another 10 before Stover split the uprights from 38 yards. Flacco, who completed 20 of 33 for 164 yards, snapped his 4-game streak of INT-free football when he was picked off by CB Aaron Ross just under the 2-minute warning in the 1st half. The Giants moved the ball to the red zone, but LB Ray Lewis negated that drive with an INT. Coming out of the break, the Ravens' defense tightened to hold New York to only 4 rushing yards in the 3rd quarter. Baltimore even closed the margin to 20-10 with a 10-yard TD pass to FB Le'Ron McClain midway through the period. But following a Giants' punt, Ross corralled a deflection off Mason and raced untouched 50 yards to paydirt. New York later posted a 77-yard run from Bradshaw that set up K Lawrence Tynes' 19-yard FG, giving the Giants a 20-point lead and the final outcome.

9 Ravens 41 - Texans 13

Baltimore (6-3)
Houston (3-6)

SUNDAY, NOV. 9, 2008 12:02 PM CDT RELIANT STADIUM HOUSTON

Weather: 69, Sunny, Wind ESE 11 mph // Attendance: 70,552 // Time: 3:06

The Ravens' offense took a big step forward and their defense was stifling in a 41-13 victory over the Houston Texans. Baltimore posted 22 4th-quarter points. Texans QB Sage Rosenfels was intercepted 4 times, including 2 from LB Ray Lewis. It marked the 4th consecutive game when the Ravens posted at least 27 points, a team record. Rookie QB Joe Flacco threw 2 TDs, the 1st for 43 yards to WR Yamon Figurs, and to TE Todd Heap. Heap also caught a TD from QB Troy Smith, while RB Willis M^{c}Gahee rushed for 112 yards and 2 scores. The Ravens turned it on in the 2nd half. A 48-yard Texans FG 3 seconds before halftime closed Baltimore's lead to 12-6. Out of the break, the Ravens ran 9 times on a drive culminating in M^{c}Gahee's 1-yard TD behind 345-pound DT Haloti Ngata. On the ensuing series, Ngata pressured Rosenfels, who threw directly to Lewis. K Matt Stover then missed a 50-yard FG, setting up a 60-yard catch and run to Houston WR Kevin Walter 1 snap later, which cut the Ravens' lead to 19-13. Flacco and the Ravens' offense responded with a 78-yard march. Just 1 minute into the final period, Flacco hit a stumbling Heap for a score. Smith later added the TD to Heap from the "Suggs Package," to complete a drive set up by Lewis' 2nd INT. After CB Samari Rolle got the ball back with another pick, M^{c}Gahee closed his gritty 25-carry day with a 5-yard TD. It was a tight game until the Ravens' stellar 2nd half. Following a 43-yard TD from Flacco to Figurs on the Baltimore's 2nd drive of the game, the Texans pushed to Baltimore's 1-yard line. On 1st down, Rosenfels looked for TE Owen Daniels in the end zone, but Ngata tipped the pass to himself for an INT. Houston had 2 FGs in the 2nd quarter. Texans LT Duane Brown was also called for holding in the end zone on LB Terrell Suggs, which automatically qualified as a safety. Baltimore K Steven Hauschka added a 54-yard boot, marking the 2nd-longest FG in franchise history.

8 Ravens 37 - Browns 27

Baltimore (5-3)
Cleveland (3-5)

SUNDAY, NOV. 2, 2008 1:02 PM EDT CLEVELAND BROWNS STADIUM CLEVELAND

Weather: 55, Sunny, Wind SE 8-16 mph // Attendance: 73,078 // Time: 3:20

In a 37-27 victory at the Cleveland Browns, the Ravens turned in a prolific offensive performance. Baltimore totaled 429 total yards, boasted a 100-yard WR and RB, and fought back from a late 14-point deficit. QB Joe Flacco completed 17 of 27 for 248 yards, including a 47-yard TD to WR Mark Clayton. And, LB Terrell Suggs capped the comeback with a 42-yard INT for a score with 2:43 remaining. The Ravens' 24-point rally began after the Cleveland posted 2 TDs on its initial 2 series of the 3rd quarter to take a 27-13 lead. QB Derek Anderson found WR Braylon Edwards for a 28-yard TD, and then returned after a Ravens' 3-and-out to engineer an 8-play, 72-yard march that ended with RB Jason Wright's diving 7-yard TD. Flacco responded out of the no-huddle, moving 79 yards in 11 plays to Cleveland's 1, where FB Le'Ron McClain notched his 5th TD of the year. Baltimore's defense forced a 3-and-out as the 3rd quarter expired, allowing Flacco to connect with WR Derrick Mason from 28 yards to even the score at 27. Rookie RB Ray Rice - 154 yards on 21 carries (7.1-yard average per attempt) - then broke a 60-yard run, setting up Matt Stover's 22-yard FG. A ground game that tallied 193 yards was aided by Mason, 136 yards on 9 catches, and Clayton, 4 grabs for 87 yards. And, Flacco threw no INTs for the 3rd straight week. The Ravens jumped to a 10-0 run with a 41-yard FG on their opening drive, and Flacco followed that with his 47-yard strike to Clayton. Cleveland got a spark when WR Joshua Cribbs took the ensuing KOR 92 yards to paydirt. Stover and Browns K Phil Dawson traded FGs before Dawson tied the score at 13 with another boot with 3 seconds remaining in the 1st half. After Stover's 3rd FG gave Baltimore a 3-point lead at 5:36 in the final quarter, the Browns still had a chance until Suggs picked off Anderson and raced 42 yards for a TD. For the 27th consecutive game, the Ravens' "D" also did not allow a 100-yard rusher.

7 Ravens 29 - Raiders 10

Oakland (2-5)
Baltimore (4-3)

SUNDAY, OCT. 26, 2008 | 1:02 PM EDT | M&T BANK STADIUM | BALTIMORE

Weather: 65 Sunny, Wind SW 6 mph // Attendance: 71,254 // Time: 3:05

The Ravens' offense totaled a season-high 375 yards with a variety of formations in a 29-10 win over the Raiders. Baltimore's defense was also smothering, earning a victory for Rex Ryan over his twin brother and Raiders defensive coordinator, Rob. LB Terrell Suggs sacked QB JaMarcus Russell the 1st time he dropped back to pass, 1 of 4 Ravens sacks. On the next attempt, rookie LB Jameel McClain logged a safety on Russell. And, the Raiders, who came into the game with the NFL's 5th-ranked ground game, had only 47 rushing yards. QB Joe Flacco completed 12 of 24 for 140 yards, but his most exciting connection might have been a 43-yard catch from QB Troy Smith in the 3rd quarter that led to a 30-yard FG from K Matt Stover. Following McClain's safety, Baltimore had 3 2nd-quarter scoring drives, started by S Jim Leonhard's 46-yard PR with around 2 minutes left in the opening period. Five plays later, RB WIillis McGahee scored a 1-yard TD for a 9-0 lead. McGahee, who gained 58 yards on 23 carries, followed 2 consecutive blocks from 340-pound DT Haloti Ngata. CB Frank Walker's INT at the Ravens' 3-yard line got the ball back. From his own 30, Flacco navigated pressure before launching a 70-yard TD to the wide-open WR Demetrius Williams. Then, the Ravens forced a 3-and-out that set up a 61-yard drive to a 38-yard FG 15 seconds later to give the Ravens a 19-0 halftime advantage. Oakland finally crossed midfield on its 1st drive after the break. Russell found WR Chaz Schilens for 60 yards, setting up a 22-yard FG. The Ravens struck back with Flacco's grab and the Stover FG. Both he and Smith lined up in the backfield, and after Flacco pitched to Smith, he sprinted left past LB Ricky Brown. Smith tossed a 43-yarder into Flacco's extended arms. A late Raiders TD was answered with Flacco's 12-yard TD run with 3:35 left in the game. From the 12, Flacco faked to RB Ray Rice and rolled right to paydirt. Rice finished the game with 155 all-purpose yards.

6 Ravens 27 - Dolphins 13

Baltimore (3-3)
Miami (2-4)

SUNDAY, OCT. 19, 2008 1:02 PM EDT DOLPHIN STADIUM MIAMI

Weather: 80 Partly Cloudy, Wind ENE 13 mph // Attendance: 64,972 // Time: 2:49

After the Ravens' 27-13 victory over the host Miami Dolphins (10/19), head coach John Harbaugh gave the game ball to offensive coordinator Cam Cameron for directing a prolific attack in Cameron's 1st meeting with the team he coached in 2007. Baltimore tallied 357 total yards, with rookie QB Joe Flacco posting a passer rating of 120.0, a personal best. In a return to his hometown, RB Willis McGahee added 105 rushing yards, topping the century mark for the 1st time this year. Defensively, LB Terrell Suggs returned a 2nd-quarter INT 44 yards for a TD. Both teams traded FGs to open the scoring before Suggs pounced in front of RB Patrick Cobbs to pick off Miami QB Chad Pennington. With nothing but daylight in front of him, Suggs raced down the right sideline to paydirt. The Dolphins followed with another FG before Baltimore's offense came alive. Flacco went 6-of-8 for 68 yards on the next series, capping it with an 11-yard TD pass to WR Derrick Mason. The grab was a do-over from the previous play, when Miami CB Will Allen dropped a sure INT at the goal line. With a 17-6 lead heading into halftime, the Ravens paved through a run defense that entered the weekend only allowing 89.0 yards on the ground (8th in the NFL). McGahee gained 80 yards in the 2nd half, adding a bruising 5-yard TD run - this despite not having starting RT Adam Terry (with a knee injury) and losing RG Marshal Yanda for the season to torn knee ligaments. The Dolphins closed within 7 points after Pennington hit rookie WR Davone Bess for a 7-yard score, but Baltimore bounced back with a 9-play scoring drive in the final period. When McGahee plowed through the Dolphins for his 4th-quarter TD, Baltimore had comfortably stopped a 7-game road losing streak. As a team, the Ravens averaged 4.0 yards per carry, with McGahee's 5.5-yard average leading the way. Mason paced all receivers with 6 catches for 87 yards.

5 Colts 31 - Ravens 3

Baltimore (2-3)
Indianapolis (3-2)

SUNDAY, OCT. 12, 2008 1:02 PM EDT LUCAS OIL STADIUM INDIANAPOLIS

Weather: 69 Fair, Wind ESE 6 mph // Attendance: 66,153 // Time: 3:00

QB Peyton Manning threw 3 TD passes in the 1st half while the Colts' defense stepped up to stop Baltimore's rushing attack in Indianapolis' 31-3 victory. It was the Colts' 1st win at their new home, Lucas Oil Stadium. Baltimore amassed only 51 rushing yards, QB Joe Flacco threw 3 INTS and the Ravens' top-ranked defense couldn't stop the Colts' signal-caller. Manning shredded the Baltimore secondary for 3 TDs, completing 19-of-28 for 271 yards with no INTs. Indianapolis built a 24-0 lead in the 1st half. The Ravens, who were missing starting S Dawan Landry (neck) and CB Samari Rolle (neck/shoulder), plus 3rd CB Fabian Washington (shoulder), managed a 37-yard FG from K Matt Stover near the end of the 3rd quarter. On his 7th snap of the day, Manning unleashed a 67-yard TD bomb to Pro Bowl WR Marvin Harrison, who sped past CB Chris McAlister down the right sideline. The Ravens answered with a 3-and-out before Manning hit his 2nd Pro Bowl WR, Reggie Wayne, with a 22-yard TD strike. Manning added a 5-yard TD dart to Harrison 1:48 before halftime to cap a 52-yard drive. Meanwhile, RBs Willis McGahee totaled 18 yards on 8 attempts, Ray Rice had 6 rushes for 23 yards and Le'Ron McClain actually went -2 yards in 2 tries. McClain lost a 1st-quarter fumble in Baltimore territory that led to a 37-yard FG from K Adam Vinatieri. Indianapolis' lead stretched to 31 when Manning came out of halftime to direct an 11-play, 80-yard scoring drive. He connected with Wayne through the hands of CB Frank Walker for 34 yards, and RB Dominic Rhodes plunged 1-yard for the TD. Flacco then directed a 15-play drive to the 19-yard line for Stover's kick. Flacco hit 7 different receivers, completing 29-of-38 for 241 yards. Flacco was also sacked 4 times and tossed the 3 INTs, although none of them led to Colts points. Rice led the team with 7 catches for 64 yards, and WR Derrick Mason had 6 grabs for 70 yards.

4 Titans 13 - Ravens 10

Tennessee (5-0)
Baltimore (2-2)

SUNDAY, OCT. 5, 2008 | 1:02 PM EDT | M&T BANK STADIUM | BALTIMORE

Weather: 69 Partly Cloudy, Wind NNW 3 mph // Attendance: 71,131 // Time: 3:04

The Ravens and the Titans turned in a classic slugfest, with Tennessee coming out with a 13-10 victory after QB Kerry Collins directed a game-winning TD drive that ended with 1:56 left in the game. Baltimore had previously shut down Tennessee's advances. The Titans only gained 210 total yards on the day. Collins was 10-of-20 for only 91 yards and 2 INTs through 3 quarters. And when Collins got the ball with 6:07 remaining, even he was forced into 3 straight incomplete passes. But LB Terrell Suggs was flagged for roughing the passer - a call questioned both by the Ravens and the media after the game - during the unsuccessful 3rd-down attempt. The penalty garnered a new set of downs. Suggs' flag came after Titans LT Michael Roos had a 5-yard false start, but since play continued after the whistle, the 15-yard penalty could still be considered. K Matt Stover opened the scoring with a 38-yard boot to cap Baltimore's opening drive. The Ravens traveled 46 yards in 11 plays after DT Haloti Ngata tipped Collins' 3rd pass of the game, which fell to DT Justin Bannan. Titans K Rob Bironas then answered when QB Joe Flacco was intercepted in Baltimore territory midway through the 2nd quarter (the 2nd of 4 Tennessee drives that began on the Ravens' side of the field). Coming out of the break, Flacco mounted his best series, going 71 yards in 11 plays. Flacco hit WR Demetrius Williams for a 22-yard connection. FB Le'Ron McClain capped the march with a 1-yard plunge. McClain averaged 4.6 yards per carry, totaling 51yards on 11 attempts. Bironas thinned the margin to 10-6 with his 26-yard FG 2:11 into the 4th quarter, pulling Tennessee within striking distance. After Collins' game-winning 11-yard TD pass to TE Alge Crumpler, Flacco tossed his 2nd INT with 1:16 remaining.

3 Steelers 23 - Ravens 20 (OT)

Baltimore (2-1)
Pittsburgh (2-2)

MONDAY, SEPT. 29, 2008 8:40 PM EDT HEINZ FIELD PITTSBURGH

Weather: 65 Fair, Wind SSW 3 mph // Attendance: 64,038 // Time: 3:36

The Ravens came back from 2 deficits against the Pittsburgh Steelers - even mounting a late scoring drive to force OT - but it wasn't enough, as Baltimore fell 23-20 on Monday Night Football. Rookie QB Joe Flacco played his 1st road game, completing 16-of-31 for 192 yards, a TD and no INTs. Baltimore jumped out to a 13-3 halftime lead when K Matt Stover connected on 33- and 20-yard FGs, and Flacco found TE Daniel Wilcox with a perfect loft to the back corner of the end zone for his 1st-career passing TD. Stover's 1st FG was set up by DT Haloti Ngata's INT of QB Ben Roethlisberger in Pittsburgh territory. The Steelers posted 2 TDs within 15 seconds in the 3rd quarter. Roethlisberger hit WR Santonio Holmes with a short pass over the middle, and Holmes escaped tackles from CB Chris McAlister and S Ed Reed en route to paydirt. On the next play from scrimmage, Flacco was sacked from behind by LB James Harrison, who knocked the ball away. LB LaMarr Woodley scooped the fumble and went 7 yards for a TD. Pittsburgh made it 20-13 on K Jeff Reed's 19-yard FG in the 4th after Steelers RB Mewelde Moore was stuffed at the 1-yard line. Then, Flacco went to work late in 4th quarter, connecting with WR Derrick Mason from 15, 10 and 35 yards. Mason led all receivers with 8 catches for 137 yards. FB Le'Ron McClain capped the scoring march from 2 yards out. The Ravens won the OT coin toss, but 2 penalties and 1 sack forced P Sam Koch to punt out of his own end zone. That allowed Pittsburgh to start from its own 43-yard line, gain a 1st down and prepare for Reed's 46-yard game-winner. The Ravens harassed Roethlisberger for 3 sacks, while the Steelers felled Flacco 5 times.

2 Ravens 28 - Browns 10

Cleveland (0-3)
Baltimore (2-0)

SUNDAY, SEPT. 21, 2008 | 4:16 PM EDT | M&T BANK STADIUM | BALTIMORE

Weather: 77 Sunny, Wind E 2 mph // Attendance: 71,104 // Time: 3:09

Despite starting out slowly, the Ravens defeated the Cleveland Browns, 28-10 on 9/21 at M&T Bank Stadium, with a massive 2nd-half surge by the defense and a power running game. Baltimore turned 2 QB Derek Anderson INTs into TDs and grabbed a 3rd in the game's closing moments to seal the victory. K Matt Stover banged a 48-yard FG off the right upright on the Ravens' 1st drive, and rookie QB Joe Flacco tossed his 1st career INT on their 2nd series, which the Browns converted into an opening TD. Baltimore tried to answer with a flea-flicker, but a 53-yard bomb to WR Derrick Mason ended up costing Flacco his 2nd pick. RB Willis McGahee, in his 1st live action of the season, evened the score with a 5-yard run later in the 2nd quarter. McGahee finished with 64 yards on 15 carries before leaving in the 4th with an eye injury. Cleveland took a 10-7 lead into halftime, but the Ravens totaled 21 3rd-quarter points. On the 3rd play of the period, LB Ray Lewis leveled Cleveland TE Kellen Winslow and dislodged the football, which landed in CB Chris McAlister's hands for an INT. McAlister's return to the 12-yard line set up FB Le'Ron McClain's 1-yard TD plunge. Less than 1 minute later, S Ed Reed pounced on another Anderson INT and raced 32 yards to the end zone. A botched punt on the next series gave the Ravens a short field on Cleveland's 35, which led to McClain's 2nd TD. Flacco, who went 13-of-19 for 129 yards and the 2 INTs, only threw 5 passes in the 2nd half. The Ravens relied on McGahee, McClain (17 rushes for 66 yards) and rookie RB Ray Rice (5 carries, 21 yards) for much of the game, and even held the ball for 13:18 in the 4th quarter. Meanwhile, Baltimore's defense, which allowed just 169 net yards, totaled 5 sacks - 2 by LB Terrell Suggs - and capped the night with CB Samari Rolle's INT on the Browns' final offensive play.

1 Ravens 17 - Bengals 10

Cincinnati (0-1)
Baltimore (1-0)

SUNDAY, SEPT 7, 2008 | 1:06 PM EDT | M&T BANK STADIUM | BALTIMORE

Weather: 78 Sunny, Wind NW 7 mph // Attendance: 70,978 // Time: 3:09

In his regular season debut, which came earlier than originally anticipated because of QB Kyle Boller's season-ending shoulder injury and QB Troy Smith's tonsil infection, rookie QB Joe Flacco helped the Ravens to a 17-10 victory over the Cincinnati Bengals. The win came in the season opener (9/7) at M&T Bank Stadium. Baltimore's defense limited Cincinnati to only 154 total yards and 8 1st downs (2 from penalties) in John Harbaugh's 1st game as a head coach. Flacco finished 15-of-29 for 129 yards, threw a key block on WR Mark Clayton's 42-yard TD run on a reverse that opened the scoring, and then Joe sprinted down the right sideline 38 yards for another TD in the 3rd quarter. Bengals QB Carson Palmer produced only 99 yards on a 10-of-25 showing. Palmer was sacked twice but hit many other times, and his 35.2 QB rating was a personal worst out of 61 career games. Flacco's 1st pass, a 9-yard completion to TE Todd Heap, was fumbled away. Both teams traded punts before CB Chris McAlister stole a tipped (S Ed Reed) Palmer pass on Baltimore's 17-yard line. Flacco then marched 78 yards, the last 42 coming on Clayton's surprise play around the left edge. K Matt Stover and Bengals K Shayne Graham matched FGs in the 1st half. Flacco then extended the lead to 17-3 when he rolled right on a naked bootleg and kept going 38 yards to paydirt. RB Ray Rice (64 yards on 22 carries) fumbled on a 4th-quarter drive, which Bengals CB Johnathan Joseph returned 65 yards for a TD. But Baltimore got a 4th-down stop in the final period and then used FB Le'Ron McClain - 19 carries for a game-high 86 yards - to run the last 7:15 off the clock. The Ravens held the ball 13:17 of the final quarter and owned a 36:15 to 23:45 time advantage for the game.

2008 RAVENS
SEASON REVIEW CLIPS

For Ravens, what a difference a year makes

By Rick Maese
The Baltimore Sun
January 22, 2009

A year later, the room felt noticeably different.

It was 12 months ago this week that Ravens owner Steve Bisciotti last joined us in here, showing up at 1 Winning Drive that day to introduce his new coach, an uncovered jewel he had pulled from the earth and was eager to show off.

It felt different yesterday. It was again Bisciotti and John Harbaugh sitting behind a table, but the vibe had noticeably changed. The day Harbaugh was introduced, it was a cocktail of hope and optimism with maybe a twist of uncertainty. Yesterday, owner and coach gathered in front of media to discuss the season, the loss to the Pittsburgh Steelers on Sunday in the AFC title game and the coming offseason. The hope was still there. The optimism was still there. The uncertainty, though, had been replaced by something else.

It took a few minutes to put a finger on it. But Bisciotti nailed it pretty quickly. He kept returning to this idea of expectation. He acknowledged that when Harbaugh took over, Bisciotti told him if the Ravens won only six games but established a coach and quarterback duo to stabilize this team for the future, he would be happy. Harbaugh responded, "I won't be," as telling a statement as has come from his mouth this past year.

"I'm not talking about you; I'm talking about me," Bisciotti recalls telling him. "I want you to know what the owner's expectations are.

"I'm not looking at this year. You're going to build yourself up. I care about what we're going to look like in 2010 and make some long-term decisions going forward."

Needless to say, the plan has been accelerated. And entering the offseason, expectations have risen proportionally. While analysts around the NFL have showered the Ravens with compliments these past several weeks, from Bisciotti's perspective - though he is pleasantly surprised with the rate of progress - there's plenty more work to be done.

"I don't think we overachieved," Bisciotti said. "Everything you do, you're trying to build a champion. We didn't get there, so I think we underachieved."

A problem with the Ravens has been consistency. Not week to week, but year to year. Not since 2003 and 2004 have they posted back-to-back winning seasons. Great one year, bad the next. The team has corrected its course, and the task this offseason is to steady the ship, to strive for consistency.

There are plenty of smaller questions surrounding the Ravens right now: A new defensive coordinator? A new defensive philosophy? Which linebackers can they bring back? How long will players see starched Terrible Towels chasing them in their sleep? But a year ago at this time, a much bigger question loomed, one that had always held the franchise back. And in stepped Joe Flacco.

Now, no one is pretending Flacco has it all figured out.

Bisciotti himself saw the difference last weekend in what Flacco is and what he needs to become. The owner, in fact, said the difference-maker in the Steelers' loss was the other team's quarterback. That isn't meant as a slight to Flacco; it just means he's a guy coming off a good rookie season - a guy who will be expected to do more in the future.

"I'm not going to say he's the quarterback of the next 12 years," Bisciotti said. "I think you know that after three years. I really don't think you say that after one. And the thing is, I think Joe feels that way, too. I don't think he feels he passed the test; I think he feels like he passed a test, and it was the first one."

No doubt, just being able to discuss such things is a luxury after years of turbulence at the quarterback position. It's the key reason optimism has suddenly disguised itself as confidence.

"We're looking forward all the time. Steve and I talked about being satisfied," Harbaugh said. "We're content with where we're at at this time. But we're not satisfied."

What does it take to be satisfied?

"The ultimate is to hand the fans a trophy," Bisciotti said, "and I'm not satisfied until we hand the fans a trophy."

As they approach the offseason and try to find the missing pieces that might allow them to beat the Steelers at least once, everything the team's brass said yesterday sounded good. They want to upgrade every position. They like all of their players and appreciate all of their free agents.

There will be changes, but an important one has already taken place.

What had years ago been a cocky swagger was replaced last January by uncertainty. In the 12 months since, it has evolved into something else altogether.

It's a calm, confident resilience, underscored by expectations that for good reasons have spiked to new levels.

Ravens owner opens doors with big Harbaugh score

By Clark Judge

OWINGS MILLS, Md. -- Once upon a time the NFL looked for head coaches who were experienced, successful and older than the players they coached. Not anymore, and I'm not sure why. So I asked someone who should know.

I asked Baltimore's Steve Bisciotti.

He's the owner who a year ago took a flyer on a relative unknown, secondary coach John Harbaugh of the Philadelphia Eagles. Harbaugh not only hadn't been a head coach anywhere; he'd never been an offensive or defensive coordinator. Instead, he served as a special teams coach for nine of his 10 years with the Eagles, and a special-teams coach almost never makes the jump to head coach.

Except John Harbaugh did.

He took over a 5-11 Ravens team that lost nine of its last 10 games a year ago and turned it into a winner in one season. In fact, he had the Ravens in a conference championship game for only the second time in their existence, and he did it in a season where he lost 19 players to injured reserve.

"I'm very lucky," Bisciotti said.

No, he's not. He knew what he was doing, and he chose Harbaugh for a reason: He liked what he heard and what he saw in the guy, so he decided to make him a head coach when nobody else would.

Bisciotti insists the move wasn't a gamble, but he's a party of one there. There was no other NFL club seriously considering Harbaugh as its next head coach. Nevertheless, Harbaugh was an overnight sensation, and his success opened a door through which others -- namely, Denver's Josh McDaniels and Tampa Bay's Raheem Morris -- followed.

Five years ago they wouldn't have gotten interviews. Now you have someone like Morris going from secondary coach to defensive coordinator to head coach in three weeks, and it barely registers on the Richter Scale.

Tell me the success of John Harbaugh didn't help to make that possible.

"It probably did," said Bisciotti. "I think a lot people now look at someone like Josh McDaniels and say, 'Yeah, he can do it.' So I think it answers some questions. It minimizes that fear factor with other owners who never may have thought of going in that direction before."

Now, let's get something straight before we go any farther: Bisciotti does not see himself as a pioneer. Far from it. In fact, when I tried to steer him that direction he resisted, saying it was the Steelers' experience with Mike Tomlin a year earlier that encouraged him to take the path he did.

But Tomlin had been a coordinator. OK, so it was only a year. But he had been a defensive coordinator. Harbaugh had not. Talk about a fear factor. Yet it didn't dissuade Bisciotti from taking the leap.

"It doesn't matter," he said of Harbaugh's coaching experience. "I got him one year before somebody would have made him a coordinator. And that's my point. I don't think it's fair to take credit because we were one year away from John being that guy that everybody saw.

"Dan (Snyder, Washington Redskins' owner) did the same thing with Jim Zorn, and they happened kind of simultaneously. I don't know that it isn't almost a general trend, but I think it started with Mike Tomlin, who almost nobody knew. The Rooneys have done this a couple of times with Bill Cowher and Mike Tomlin, so they deserve the credit. And I looked at that because Tomlin had come in the year before."

Everybody is looking at it now because of what happened in 2008. Including Harbaugh, there were four new head coaches with no previous head-coaching experience, yet all worked out. None had a losing season. Three reached the playoffs. Two won division titles. And one made it to the conference championship game.

You can't tell me that didn't resonate with owners looking at their next hires.

"Maybe there's a sense with ownership now," said Bisciotti, "that guys with big résumés behind them don't necessarily know any more because they've been through it before -- guys like John, who worked with Andy Reid for years, basically know every thought in Andy Reid's mind. I don't know that Andy Reid could've done a better job than John did with this team."

It doesn't matter. What does is that John Harbaugh took the road less traveled and made it. The rule in the NFL was that you had to be an offensive or defensive coordinator to be considered for a head-coaching job. John Harbaugh was the exception, and, yeah, I'd say it worked out just fine for the Ravens.

Now it's working out for those who follow.

"I've always felt when guys aren't getting chances it's not about hiring a résumé or hiring a stat sheet," said Harbaugh. "Certainly success is big part of it, as well as having a track record with the guys you coached playing at a certain high level over a period of time.

"Whatever success we had, our players always got better over the course of a season; wherever we ended up ranking from the beginning of the season to the end our players always improved. And that, to me, is a track record I'm proud of.

"When I was a young coach I was told you have to become a quarterbacks coach because if you become a quarterbacks coach you become an offensive coordinator -- and that's your track to become a head coach. And I always bristled at that idea. To say that, 'OK, I have to be this to be where I want to be,' is selfish.' That wasn't the way I was brought up by my dad.

"To be on a staff and tell a head coach, 'You've got to make me this or that ...' No. Tell me what you want me to coach or where you me to recruit, and let's see if we can go win some games. To me if there's a model I would want to be associated with, like a path, it would be that model."

There is a model all right, and it's in Baltimore, where the Ravens got it right with a coach others would have passed. By giving Harbaugh a chance, they changed the perception of what a head coach should look like. Now, they're changing the face of the league.

"I think leadership is innate," said Bisciotti. "You're either born to be a leader, or you're not. And I saw leadership qualities in John Harbaugh, coupled with that little chip on his shoulder -- that desire to succeed. And I liked that combination."

A lot more like it now that he has been proven right.

"An owner like Steve Bisciotti maybe took a few hits from people who didn't really know who he hired," said Harbaugh, "but he knew he had what he wanted. So, yes, I think it probably opened some doors."

I don't. I know it did.

Man with a plan
Out of ashes of 5-11 season, Harbaugh has quietly, confidently remade Ravens in his mold, forging winner

By Ken Murray
The Baltimore Sun
January 2, 2009

One of the most intriguing things about John Harbaugh's first season with the Ravens is that he never had to find his way.

It was there, in front of him, all along, mapped out with the wisdom of a seasoned coach.

He may be a rookie head coach in the NFL, but he never lacked confidence.

He may be a private, humble man, but he doesn't shrink at taking a stand.

He may have coached special teams for nine years in Philadelphia, but he knows how to command the respect of an entire locker room.

From that solid platform, the Ravens' playoff season was born, was nurtured and continues to grow. Sunday's AFC wild-card game in Miami against the Dolphins is as much a validation of the Harbaugh system as it is the Ravens' franchise.

One year after a profoundly disappointing 5-11 season that cost Super Bowl-winning coach Brian Billick his job, the Ravens have regrouped behind their energetic leader, 46. They are healed, focused and healthy - at least as much as a team in the 18th week of the season can be.

"It's been a great transition," defensive tackle Trevor Pryce said. "You know what? I'm proud for the team, but I'm happy for him. … He didn't blink - not once - from the things he wanted to do."

Harbaugh knew precisely what he wanted to do - and where he was going - when he arrived in Baltimore. The tenets of his program would be a team concept, a stout work ethic and an uncommon bond of brotherhood.

While some of his sayings may seem trite - he liked to refer to his players early in the season as "mighty men" - they all bear the element of football truth.

On several occasions, he privately told the players how proud he was to stand on the sideline with them each Sunday.

Said Pryce: "How could you not want to play for somebody that's proud to stand there with you?"

Indeed, how could they not want to play for a coach who solicits their opinions on anything that happens inside the team's Owings Mills training facility?

Asked a month ago by Harbaugh how they wanted to handle Christmas week, a group of veterans couldn't agree on anything - until Harbaugh suggested the unimaginable: work Tuesday, take Thursday, Christmas Day, off. Tuesday is typically the players' day off and Thursday a critical work day.

The veterans couldn't believe their good fortune, or that the idea came from Harbaugh. Problem solved.

When Harbaugh first addressed the team at the start of training camp, he laid down team rules. Among those, he insisted on a dress code on the road, including sport coat, collared shirt, slacks and no tennis shoes.

A few players protested, saying that a $400 pair of jeans should be allowed. Harbaugh sought opinions, then acquiesced in his first formal meeting of the season with players.

"I just think, really, what's most impressive about Coach is just his flexibility with his players," linebacker Ray Lewis said. "He's very interactive with his players. There's really no decision he makes without coming to us to really figure out what's best for the team. … You realize that he's not just trying to run you into a program and say, 'Do what I do. Do what I say.' It's about what makes us better as a team."

Harbaugh won over a team of hardened veterans and young, unproven talents through a series of trials. In some instances it was a simple as giving veterans over 30 every third day off from training camp.

For Samari Rolle, it was how Harbaugh deferred to the veteran cornerback when his father died last summer. Harbaugh told Rolle to take whatever time he needed to grieve before reporting.

Last season, Rolle said he was called to Billick's office and chastised for reporting to the complex late one day. Rolle, who has epilepsy, wasn't permitted to drive and said his driver was late that particular day.

"With the previous coach, it was a relaxed environment," Rolle said. "It was like, Sunday is what counts. The biggest thing now is, [Harbaugh] gets us prepared for Sunday. There's more discipline. That was tough to adjust to at first. But one thing everybody bought into was they were tired of losing."

Whatever the Ravens do - from practice to film study to meetings - Harbaugh wants the correct application. If the team has a walk-through on the field, he expects everyone paying attention; no one is allowed to sit on their helmets or haunches.

But Harbaugh has also injected an element of surprise in the week. He will, at times, keep players guessing until the last minute about certain mundane things. As an example, he did not tell the players until just shortly before practice Wednesday that they would work out outside with the temperature in the 30s, in preparation to face the Dolphins in 80-degree heat.

Cornerback Corey Ivy said he believes it's with a purpose.

"It's to try to keep you sharp, keep you ready," Ivy said. "You never know what's going to happen in the course of a game. There's a lot of stuff he keeps you on your toes about.

"He's very enthusiastic about every aspect of the game. He really does well in getting us prepared to go out and perform at the highest level on Sunday."

One of the keynotes of the Harbaugh regime is that he gives his coordinators full authority. Rex Ryan has control over his defense, Cam Cameron calls plays on offense and Jerry Rosburg runs special teams, even though Harbaugh made his reputation in the last area.

Harbaugh assembled one of the best teaching staffs in the league. He retained five assistants on defense, including Ryan, but rebuilt the offensive side with Hue Jackson (quarterbacks), John Matsko (offensive line), Jim Hostler (receivers) and Wilbert Montgomery (running backs).

Each came for his own reasons. Jackson, who had been a coordinator twice in his NFL career, came because he recognized a special opportunity to work for a special person.

"When I met with him, John's reputation preceded him," Jackson said. "People told me what kind of man he was, the character he had, and the plan he had. I knew he would put together a great staff."

Adding Cameron to the staff was big. Getting Greg Mattison, the inside linebackers coach, was a coup. Mattison had coached with Harbaugh at Western Michigan under his father, Jack Harbaugh, from 1981 to 1986. A college coach for 30years, Mattison was reluctant to leave the college ranks or his position as defensive coordinator at Florida.

He ultimately took the leap because of the respect he has for Harbaugh ("He's always been a tremendous family person with great character"). He knew about Harbaugh's plan, too.

"His whole deal is, we will always work the hardest and most efficient of any team in the NFL every practice," Mattison said. "That's why the signs are up around the building. That's what he made sure happened.

"Lots of times, any coach that has confidence in himself, like he does, maps out a plan, follows the plan, believes the plan is going to work and does everything you're supposed to do to make it work. That's what he's done."

Tough-minded Ravens flexing on Super Bowl route

By Pete Prisco

January 10, 2009

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- It was a word you wouldn't dare call a Baltimore Ravens defensive player -- not if you didn't know them or, more importantly, want to live too long.

Yet there it was flying through the air Saturday night in their locker room following the Ravens' 13-10 victory over the Tennessee Titans in an AFC divisional playoff game.

What was said means soft and it can't be said at the family dinner table. You get the drift. The man who said it was linebacker Jarrett Johnson and he fired it at fellow linebacker Terrell Suggs because Suggs left the game in the first half with a shoulder injury.

"You -----," Johnson said.

Suggs stopped talking to the media for a second, laughed, and then kept on talking.

"Nobody on the outside can do that," Suggs said of the name-calling. "We can do it because we're brothers. You're not allowed to get hurt on this defense. They told me right now, I'm a -----."

And if somebody on the outside said it?

"It'd be a bar fight," Suggs said.

Sort of like the one the Ravens had with the Titans. There were bodies flying everywhere, casualties going off all day long. No one would dare call this Ravens group a nasty name after this one if they were serious.

There isn't a soft player on the defense. They showed that toughness again against the Titans, forcing three turnovers and limiting Tennessee to 10 points, despite giving up an uncharacteristically high 381 yards.

That defensive effort, coupled with two big passing plays and a game-winning 43-yard field goal by Matt Stover with 53 seconds left has the Ravens 60 minutes of good football away from a Super Bowl.

As the sixth seed, they will be trying to duplicate what the New York Giants did last season, winning three consecutive road games to get to the Super Bowl and then win it all. Beating the top seed is a good start, especially since it's the second time that a six seed has defeated the top seed.

The last time it happened was in 2005 when the Pittsburgh Steelers beat the Indianapolis Colts. They went on to the Super Bowl that season.

They're also following history of a different sort, an all-to-familiar history. In 2000, the Ravens were a four seed. That season they went to Nashville and upset the top-seeded Titans. They also went on to win the Super Bowl

That Super Bowl was in Tampa. The one coming up in three weeks is as well.

That 2000 team ran the ball, made some timely pass plays, and played as good a defense as the modern era has seen, setting a scoring record for a 16-game season by limiting opponents to 165 points.

So what does this team do? It runs the ball, makes some timely throws and plays great defense.

The footprints they're following are already in the sand.

"I don't like to do the comparison because those guys are the greatest ever and they have a Lombardi Trophy," Suggs said. "The only way to compare this team to that team is if we finish it."

Two more victories and they are there. The will play the winner of Sunday's San Diego-Pittsburgh game on the road. Whoever they get will be getting a big dose of Ray Lewis and that defense.

Tennessee moved the ball on the Ravens through the air, getting 281 passing yards from Kerry Collins. But he was picked once and the Titans lost two fumbles in scoring territory.

The first came with the score tied 7-7 at the end of the half when Johnson punched the ball free from LenDale White at the Baltimore 17 and it was recovered by safety Jim Leonhard. The second one came with the Ravens leading 10-7 in the fourth quarter and the Titans driving.

With a second-and-9 at the Baltimore 13, Collins hit tight end Alge Crumpler on a short delay route. Crumpler appeared on his way to a first down, but linebacker Bart Scott and Leonhard combined to force the fumble, which Fabian Washington recovered.

"I had to come up there and throw everything in there because it was my fault he was wide open like that," Scott said. "I tried to make up for it."

The Titans eventually tied it up on a 27-yard field goal by Rob Bironas with 4:23 left, but that set the stage for rookie quarterback Joe Flacco to lead the Ravens on a game-winning drive.

He hit Todd Heap for 23 yards on a third-and-2 play to the Titans' 45. That play should have been blown dead for a delay-of-game penalty, but the officials missed the call. The next big play was a third-and-9 throw Flacco completed to Mark Clayton to put the ball on the 25 and make it a 43-yard field goal instead of a 51-yard try, which Stover nailed with 53 seconds left.

Flacco, who hasn't turned it over in two road playoff games, wasn't special, but he made plays when needed, including a 48-yard touchdown pass to Derrick Mason for Baltimore's only touchdown.

That late-game drive showed just how calm he is as a rookie.

"It's the same as any other drive," Flacco said.

Not for a rookie. Then again, they don't treat him like a rookie.

"There are no more rookies anymore in this locker room," safety Ed Reed said. "That's for only knowing what year you came into the league."

The defense, as expected, closed it out when Collins' fourth-down pass fell to the ground.

"Our philosophy is always the same: They don't score, they don't win," Lewis said.

Lewis and Stover are the only two players who played Sunday who are left from 2000. Lewis said this run has a familiar feel to that one. But nobody wants to say it's the same until the deed is done.

"We're a different team, a different bunch of guys," Reed said. "This is 2009. It's nowhere near 2000. This is a different story. We're not here to compare. It is a different team. It's not the same team, but you can make the comparison."

You can because of that defense. It is a unit playing without three projected opening-day starters in corner Chris McAlister, nose tackle Kelly Gregg and safety Dwan Landry. Yet it is a unit that finished second in scoring defense (15.2 points) and second in total defense during the regular season.

In two playoff games, they have given up 19 points so far. The 2000 unit gave up 13 in its first two playoff games and 3 points in the third.

So this one can't duplicate that success, but that doesn't mean it's not close. It is a unit that features stars and plenty of toughness and an attitude.

"We knew what kind of men we had on our football team," Ravens coach John Harbaugh said. "Warriors, mighty men, all those thing that you guys chuckle about."

And no ------- (softies).

Most Valuable Raven? Cameron's the right call

By Jamison Hensley
The Baltimore Sun
December 12, 2008

Selecting the Ravens' Most Valuable Player is a difficult task.

Is it Ed Reed? Or Ray Lewis? Or perhaps Joe Flacco?

But there's no debate when choosing the team's Most Valuable Person - Cam Cameron.

His first season as offensive coordinator has brought a much-needed influx of creativity and unpredictability.

Cameron has gotten so much out of so little this season. He doesn't have a clear-cut No. 1 running back. He doesn't have a big-play receiver. He doesn't have a healthy offensive line.

Yet armed with a rookie quarterback, Cameron has turned around an offense that regularly slumped under Brian Billick.

Dating back to the game at Miami - where Cameron revisited his 1-15 nightmare season as a head coach - the Ravens have averaged 29.8 points, which is the highest in the NFL over the past eight games.

Of course, the defense has scored five touchdowns during that span. Take those away and the offense is averaging 25.3 points in that stretch.

During Billick's nine seasons, the Ravens never averaged 25 points. His highest-scoring team was 2003, when the Ravens put up an average of 24.7points.

Cameron has kept defenses off balance with an inventive playbook. Putting Flacco and backup quarterback Troy Smith on the field at the same time, he has designed option plays for Smith and passes to Flacco.

He has regularly used unbalanced lines, moving two tackles to one side. He has even used three offensive tackles in some formations.

Where Cameron has caught the attention of the team is his unpredictable play-calling.

In Sunday's 24-10 win over the Washington Redskins, he converted first downs by calling a draw on third-and-10 and a pass on fourth-and-one.

The fourth-down decision was a gutsy one because the Ravens led only 14-0 in the third quarter and would have given the ball back to the Redskins at the Washington 43-yard line.

Before the Ravens ran the play, coach John Harbaugh told the defense the team was going for the first down.

"They kind of looked at me and [said], 'Punt them down in there!'" Harbaugh recalled. "And I said, 'Wait until you see this call.' So then they all jumped off the bench, and they were watching. They couldn't believe it, either."

The play called for tight end Todd Heap to fall at the line of scrimmage before sneaking out to the flat for the pass.

The result: a 24-yard gain that set up a field goal.

Said Harbaugh: "That's Cam Cameron at his best."

Point man

In Cam Cameron's first season as offensive coordinator, the Ravens are tied for 11th in the NFL in scoring. If the season ended today, that would be the third-highest ranking in team history:

Year	Ranking	Pts. Per Game
1996	6th	23.2
2003	8th	24.7
2008	t-11th*	24.3
2006	t-12th	22.1

'It's just football,' says Ravens' Joe Cool
Eerie calm drives rookie from 3rd string to first postseason

By Jamison Hensley
The Baltimore Sun
January 4, 2009

Joe Flacco is in the midst of a whirlwind season, from unexpectedly being handed the starting quarterback job to leading the Ravens' improbable run to the playoffs.

But the stoic 23-year-old rookie from the University of Delaware is approaching the biggest game of his brief NFL career with a matter-of-fact shoulder shrug. "It's just another game," he deadpanned.

Flacco's calm demeanor, which has been as much an asset as his strong arm in the Ravens' remarkable turnaround season, will be tested today against the Miami Dolphins. He will become just the eighth rookie quarterback since 1970 to start a postseason game.

Those around him don't expect the magnitude of the NFL playoffs to faze him.

Flacco is one of the Ravens' most laid-back players. Walking around the team's facility, the 6-foot-6, 230-pounder looks half asleep (he acknowledges that he isn't a morning person). Speaking to the media, he is equally unemotional, talking in a sort of monotone.

"That's just Joe," Ravens coach John Harbaugh said. Or "Joe Cool," a nickname that is catching on with teammates and fans.

Joe Cool stays grounded.

His biggest splurge after signing his five-year, $30 million contract was a lawn mower for his mother. He lives in an apartment with his 21-year-old brother, Mike, and still hasn't bought a car. He drives a BMW dealer's loaner, with a "This is a courtesy car" sign in the back window.

Joe Cool works hard.

Flacco's philosophy is that you're never nervous if you're prepared. Determined to show that a quarterback from a small college program can play big, he is always at Ravens headquarters on his one day off during the week, watching four to five hours of tape for the next opponent. Offensive coordinator Cam Cameron has joked that it's a challenge to keep finding more film for Flacco.

Joe Cool wants to be a starting quarterback, not a star quarterback.

His big night on the town is having dinner with his offensive linemen at Ruth's Chris Steakhouse or T.G.I. Friday's. This isn't exactly the same as Dallas Cowboys quarterback Tony Romo dating music star Jessica Simpson.

"He's a starting quarterback in the NFL, but he's the same person that he's always been," said Rob Agnone, a college friend and teammate who still talks to him once a week. "That's what separates him from other people. He's in a glamorous position, but it doesn't go to his head."

On most evenings, Flacco falls asleep on the sofa while watching TV.

"His life is so boring that you wouldn't believe it," his father, Steve, said.

The past 12 months have been anything but boring. Last January, he had just finished his college career and was preparing for workouts leading up to the NFL draft.

Now, he is following the likes of Hall of Fame quarterback Dan Marino and Super Bowl-winning Pittsburgh quarterback Ben Roethlisberger as rookies leading teams to the playoffs. But this is hardly a surprise to Flacco.

"The bottom line is that when you're a quarterback and you want to be a good player in this league, you think about going to the playoffs and you think about being a winning quarterback in the playoffs," he said.

Flacco could have lost confidence earlier this season. Looking back, the first-round draft pick probably should have lost confidence.

An injury to Kyle Boller and an illness to Troy Smith allowed Flacco to leapfrog from No. 3 quarterback to starter just weeks before the season opener. In his first five games, Flacco received a rough initiation to the NFL, throwing one touchdown and seven interceptions.

The night before the next game - a contest in Miami - Cameron addressed the Ravens' six first-year players on offense during a team meeting and told them that they were no longer rookies. Then, he pointed at his unassuming prodigy.

"You've got to lead us," Cameron told Flacco.

He responded with a breakthrough game, throwing for 232 yards and one touchdown in leading the Ravens to a 27-13 victory over the Dolphins on Oct. 19.

Including that game, Flacco has thrown 13 touchdowns and five interceptions over the past 11 regular-season games - and the Ravens won nine of them.

"That was a turning point for us as a team and him as a player," offensive tackle Willie Anderson said.

Flacco's play and persona - teammates still can't tell when he's rattled - have won over the locker room.

"I've played with guys when you drop back and say, 'Lord have mercy, I hope he gets rid of the ball and throws it to the right person,'" Anderson said. "We know if we block, Joe has a big-enough arm and he is smart enough to make big-time throws.

"That's the kind of guy you're going to fight for."

Middle linebacker Ray Lewis, who has played with 16 starting quarterbacks in 13 years with the Ravens, can appreciate Flacco's unshakable presence.

"Once one good play or bad play is gone, he lets it go," Lewis said. "A lot of guys can't do that. Joe is one of those gifted ones. He's going to be a special kid."

The Ravens' offense has grown because Flacco has done so. Even though he didn't play at perennial powers such as the University of Southern California or the University of Texas, he has been able to absorb everything that the coaching staff has thrown at him.

This was supposed to be a time of adjustment for Flacco. The last non-major college quarterback drafted in the first round was Steve McNair in 1995, and it took him until the end of his second season to become a full-time starter.

The Ravens are paying Flacco the rookie minimum of $295,000, but the pay will be going up substantially because of incentives triggered by his unexpected playing time. Because he participated in 80 percent of the Ravens' offensive plays, he will receive an extra $750,000 in each of the four remaining years of his contract. That, along with a salary increase and signing bonus, will put his final total well over the original $30 million. Flacco will also earn $200,000 for each playoff victory.

The Ravens originally planned on sitting Flacco at the start of the season, primarily because of past experience. General manager Ozzie Newsome acknowledged before the draft that starting Boller as a rookie in 2003 was probably the wrong decision.

But Boller's shoulder injury and Smith's severe tonsil infection forced the Ravens to start Flacco, who had insisted he could start immediately ever since the team drafted him with the 18th overall pick.

Dolphins coach Tony Sparano credits Flacco's instant success to his maturity.

"You can [see his] confidence back there in the pocket," he said. "It really does impress me an awful lot for a rookie to be in this kind of situation."

Ask Flacco why he has progressed so quickly - it's a question that he has fielded every week - and he'll roll his eyes. "It's just football," he said.

Those close to Flacco know the explanation is not that simple.

"He is by far the smartest young quarterback I've ever been around," said Todd Bouman, a 10-year veteran who is the Ravens' third quarterback. "As a quarterback, when you know exactly what to do before the ball is even snapped, it puts a calm feeling over you."

Flacco hasn't always been this calm.

Nearly a decade ago, the Ravens' unflappable quarterback looked every bit the skittish high school freshman as he was thrown into his first varsity game for Audobon (N.J.) High School. He rushed three steps backward and threw his first pass wildly to the sideline. On the next two plays, he was mercilessly sacked.

"From that point on, he never felt that uncomfortable again," said his father. "He realized that you need to overcome your circumstance and get a hold of your emotions."

There have been times when Flacco's even-keel attitude wasn't considered a positive. Throughout high school, people questioned his competitiveness because he wasn't fired up.

"He told them, 'I don't have to scream and yell to want to tear your head off,'" his father said.

Flacco's intensity has surfaced the past two weeks in essentially must-win games for the Ravens.

On Dec. 20, he withstood the pressure of a Dallas team fighting for the playoffs and playing its last game in Texas Stadium, throwing for 149 yards and one touchdown in leading the Ravens to a victory. Last Sunday, he passed for a season-high 297 yards and completed five passes of at least 25 yards in a playoff-clinching win.

But that's what you would expect from Joe Cool.

"He's stepped up to the plate," wide receiver Derrick Mason said. "When a quarterback that young understands the magnitude of the past two games, he understands the magnitude of the playoffs. We're just going to rally around him. As Joe goes, basically that's how we go."

Rookie sensations

The Ravens' Joe Flacco and the Atlanta Falcons' Matt Ryan will become the seventh and eighth rookie quarterbacks to start an NFL playoff game since the 1970 merger. The previous six rookie quarterbacks were 2-4 in their postseason debuts:

Quarterback	Team	Season	Result
Dan Marino	Miami	1983	Lost to Seattle, 27-20
Bernie Kosar	Cleveland	1985	Lost at Miami, 24-21
Jim Everett	Los Angeles Rams	1986	Lost at Washington, 19-7
Todd Marinovich	Los Angeles Raiders	1991	Lost at Kansas City, 10-6
Shaun King	Tampa Bay	1999	Beat Washington, 14-13
Ben Roethlisberger	Pittsburgh	2004	Beat New York Jets, 20-17

Note: Pat Haden (1976) and Dieter Brock (1985) led teams to the playoffs in their first NFL seasons. But prior to joining the NFL, Haden played one season in the World Football League, and Brock played 11 seasons in the Canadian Football League.

Now calling the shots
Overhauled group has varied backgrounds but shares a detail-oriented approach

By Don Markus
The Baltimore Sun
September 5, 2008

With a 53-man roster that resembles the one they took into the 2007 season, the Ravens are hoping that a key ingredient in turning around a 5-11 record will be the way new coach John Harbaugh and his staff have approached each practice during the past few months.

That ingredient - the attention to detail and the way it is taught - is at the core of the men Harbaugh brought together shortly after replacing Brian Billick. The assistants come from varied backgrounds but essentially carry the same message.

It can be found in the way John Matsko tries to mold one of the youngest offensive lines in the NFL, or the way linebackers coach Greg Mattison, who has spent most of the past 37 years at the college level, works with team's most veteran group.

"Attention to detail to me is doing the little things right," Harbaugh said during training camp. "It doesn't mean you get them right all the time, but you're trying to."

It has been the most noticeable difference in the nearly eight months since Harbaugh was hired, starting with the offseason workouts and organized team activities at the Ravens' complex in Owings Mills and continuing through the two-a-days at McDaniel College in Westminster.

Whether it pays immediate dividends will be seen when the Ravens open the season Sunday, but it should certainly be evident as the weeks and months unfold. Most seem to be buying into what the new staff is teaching - and preaching.

"As a young player, you need that," veteran wide receiver Derrick Mason said. "Sometimes you might think it's redundant or monotonous. At the end, you really appreciate the time and effort they [the coaches] put in. They want to make sure that when we get out on the field, we're in the best position to win a football game."

It is important in all aspects of this rebuilding team, nowhere more evident than along the offensive line.

That is why Harbaugh wanted Matsko, who spent 18 years working his way up the ladder of DivisionI-A football before moving to the NFL in 1992. His longest - and most celebrated - stint came during a seven-year run with the St.Louis Rams, where the offensive line was a huge part of "The Greatest Show on Turf."

"When you come into a situation like this, you want to set an attitude," Matsko, 57, said during the spring. "We want to have a positive attitude. We want to have an aggressive attitude. You want to lay a foundation on the fundamentals and techniques that we're going to use on Sunday afternoon. And you want to create an identity. Who are we going to be and how are we going to be remembered?"

A difficult job has been made tougher by training camp injuries to offensive tackles Jared Gaither and Adam Terry, but Jason Brown has seen the impact Matsko has made. Given the makeup of the line, it was easy for Matsko to get his point across - sometimes loudly.

"All of us are young, very enthusiastic and willing to do anything, so we're very malleable," said Brown, in his fourth year and moving back to his natural position at center after playing guard. "You can't teach an old dog new tricks, but there are a lot of tricks that they're teaching us, being young offensive linemen."
Chuck Pagano, the team's new secondary coach, has a different job.

He is working with a group that has Pro Bowl experience in safety Ed Reed and cornerbacks Chris McAlister and Samari Rolle, as well as youth in third-year safety Dawan Landry and rookie safeties Tom Zbikowski and Haruki Nakamura.

"What I've tried to do is take a look back and identify some things that we can get better at, with old and young," said Pagano, 47, who coached Reed at the University of Miami and reserve cornerback Fabian Washington with the Oakland Raiders. "I don't care how long you've played in this game, it still goes back to blocking and tackling and fundamentals."

When it comes to the running game, three isn't a crowd

By Mike Preston
The Baltimore Sun
October 21, 2008

The three-headed monster the Ravens use at running back must resurface for the remainder of the season, because if it doesn't, the Ravens might be in big trouble.

The Ravens used their blueprint for success perfectly in the team's 27-13 win over the Dolphins on Sunday in Miami.

The Ravens ran the ball 35 times and threw only 23 passes. Rookie quarterback Joe Flacco threw safe passes, and the Ravens took advantage of Miami's aggressive defense with short throws, including several screens.

Running back Willis McGahee turned in a valiant effort with 105 rushing yards on 19 carries and two receptions for 47 yards. But this wasn't a vintage McGahee performance.

Something was missing; something is bothering him. When he is on, McGahee glides to a hole and then has a strong burst. He is a slasher but also has the ability to bounce outside, which all the good running backs have.

McGahee didn't have that bounce Sunday. He ran hard, but the acceleration wasn't consistent. There were times when he had that burst and other times when you waited for it, and waited, but it wasn't there.

It was never more evident than on that 35-yard screen pass McGahee caught early in the fourth quarter. A year ago, that would have been a touchdown. But McGahee was slow cutting back, and he fumbled at Miami's 5-yard line.

He looked tired, and your mind shot back to the offseason, when he missed several minicamps. You kept wondering: If he had reported to training camp in better shape, would it have made a difference on this run?

But there was more to it, possibly the eye, knee or rib injuries he suffered this season. McGahee is playing more on instincts than natural ability at this point.

"You know, I have more appreciation for that man than most people know," said an emotional Cam Cameron, the Ravens' offensive coordinator. "Willis had 35 cc's of fluid drained from his knee during the week, and he played with a lot of discomfort. He deserves a lot of credit."

It's highly unlikely we will see the same McGahee in 2008 that we saw last season, when he rushed for 1,207 yards on 294 carries. He had arthroscopic knee surgery during the first week of training camp, and his condition probably won't improve significantly until he gets extended rest.

Unfortunately, the Ravens don't have a bye. Fortunately, they have two good young running backs in rookie Ray Rice and second-year player Le'Ron McClain. They'll have to step it up a notch if the Ravens want to win.

They aren't McGahee. He has the speed to get outside but runs inside with good power because he has good body lean and can get those extra yards.

The Ravens created this offense for him. They wanted to do with McGahee what Cameron did with LaDainian Tomlinson in San Diego. The Ravens wanted to build their offense around a running back who had the complete package.

But that's going to be hard to achieve now. McGahee will probably still handle the bulk of the workload as long as his body holds up, but the Ravens have to be more selective in using him.

The Ravens can't reverse course now. They want to make Flacco as comfortable as possible in the offense, and they can't afford to have him throwing the ball 35 to 40 times a game.

The Ravens have to remain a run-oriented team and play smash-mouth football, and that's why McClain and Rice have to play bigger roles.

We've seen glimpses of McClain's ability. He is a power back with the rare speed of a big runner to get to the corner.

Rice has been used sparingly. He is a deceptive runner because of his smallish frame, but he does have power. He hasn't shown that acceleration to get outside like McGahee and seems uncertain about cutting when he gets in space. Maybe that will all come with time.

Against the Dolphins on Sunday, McClain had sixcarries for 17 yards and Rice had seven for 13. It was enough to keep Miami off balance and give McGahee a chance to rest.

It's easy to look back and see what McGahee could have done differently as far as offseason training, but the Ravens can't afford to focus on the past. They've got to deal with the future.

On Sunday, we saw an emotionally charged McGahee playing in front of a lot of hometown fans. His 5-yard touchdown run late in the game was good stuff. He was stopped at the Dolphins' 3 but bulled through tacklers to finish off the run, and Miami.

But for him to carry the running game through the remainder of the season might be too much to ask.

His effort has been outstanding, but the Ravens might have to find another way to help him, which means bringing back the three-headed monster.

Offense Pouring on the Points
The Ravens' offense has been prolific, scoring more and more points, week to week.

By Mike Duffy

The Ravens' offensive outburst in Sunday's 41-13 win over the Houston Texans caught the attention of many fans and analysts across the NFL.

One day after the record-setting victory - which marked the first time in franchise history Baltimore has scored at least 27 points in four consecutive games - head coach John Harbaugh doesn't want anyone to be satisfied.

"We're proud of the team we put out there on Sunday, for sure, and we're excited to see the team that we're going to be next Sunday," he said in his Monday press conference, less than a week before the Ravens take on the defending Super Bowl champion New York Giants. "We have to get better between last Sunday and next Sunday to have a chance to even compete in this football game."

Such offensive production cannot be overlooked, however, especially in a city where defense has ruled for so long.

Over Baltimore's current four-game winning streak, no team in the league tops the Ravens' average of 33.5 points per contest. The 41 scored at Reliant Stadium marked a season-high and the most since a 48-point night against the Green Bay Packers in 2005.

The progression during that four-week span has shown each time the team takes the field.

The Ravens posted 27 points in Miami, 29 against the Oakland Raiders and 37 in a come-from-behind rally at Cleveland before heading to Houston.

"We're getting better and better each week," said quarterback Joe Flacco, who finished 15-of-35 for 185 yards and two touchdowns versus the Texans. "Our main goal is to improve each week and hit our stride where it counts the most. We're starting to improve each week, and that's the best thing there is."

Flacco has greatly improved along with the offense. The rookie has not thrown an interception since Oct. 12, the last time Baltimore dropped a contest, 31-3 against the Indianapolis Colts.

So has Troy Smith, who came back from an infection that hospitalized the former Heisman Trophy winner earlier this year to throw a touchdown pass last week.

Harbaugh made a special point to credit quarterbacks coach Hue Jackson, who has a history of working with prolific offenses.

Jackson was the receivers coach in Cincinnati from 2004-06, where the Bengals' Chad Johnson and T.J. Houshmandzadeh became one of the most explosive tandems in league history.

"Hue Jackson has just done a tremendous job with our quarterbacks," Harbaugh said. "And not just our quarterbacks but with our offense in general from a game plan perspective. He's really made an impact on our offense."

The play of running backs Willis M^{c}Gahee, who had 112 yards and two touchdowns in Houston, and Ray Rice, along with fullback Le'Ron McClain, have driven a multi-headed ground attack that is third in the league (150.2 yards per contest).

The three backs have 1,185 yards between them, churning out 4.0 yards a carry.

"We've got three running backs playing like starting halfbacks in this league, and that's a pretty strong statement for the coach," Harbaugh said of running backs coach Wilbert Montgomery. "You've got guys playing multiple positions. We've got fullbacks playing half back, halfbacks and fullbacks playing tight end. They line up as wide receivers, they motion all over the place and they're involved in the pass protection.

"Wilbert's responsible for that success there."

Of course, there are many other reasons for squeezing greater performance out of the Ravens' roster.

Tight end Todd Heap's two-score Texans outing showed that he is getting more and more involved, as did Yamon Figurs' 43-yard touchdown catch.

Baltimore's offensive line may have given up two sacks, but it was dominant at the point of attack, paving the way for 162 total rushing yards and 27 first downs.

And offensive coordinator Cam Cameron's play-calling has consistently kept opponents on their toes, whether it is with an unbalanced line, direct-snapping the football, or even featuring defensive players on offense.

The unit is getting many opportunities to develop, as well.

Playing with a typically-dominant defense that has forced an NFL-high 36 "three-and-outs by clamping down in three snaps 33.6 percent of the time (36-of-107 tries) is a big reason the Ravens are second in the league with an average time of possession of 33:07.

"The offense is starting to develop that attitude of, 'We're not waiting on the defense," said Mason. "We understand that the defense is going to do what they need to do, but we can't wait on them. We've got to go out there and start scoring points.'"

It seems as though the Ravens have already started. As the recent four-game winning streak has demonstrated, the more points, the better.

Plug-in veterans help power Ravens defense

By Ken Murray
The Baltimore Sun
November 22, 2008

There are no slackers on the Ravens' defense, thanks in part to veteran leadership. When safety Jim Leonhard first set foot in the locker room in April, he quickly gained an appreciation for that fact.

"You feel that right away," he said yesterday. "You know the talent and the intelligence of the players on this defense, and you can't be the guy to let them down. They don't care if you're a rookie, a free agent or a guy they just brought in. They expect you to learn the defense and understand it as well as they do."

Leonhard learned on the run as the only newcomer in a pre-draft minicamp that also served as his two-day tryout. Signed the day after the draft, Leonhard saw his job description go from special teams to starting strong safety in Week 2 when Dawan Landry suffered a season-ending neck injury.

After three seasons with the Buffalo Bills, Leonhard, a free agent in the offseason, was one of three key veteran additions the Ravens made to the secondary. Cornerbacks Fabian Washington (draft-day trade) and Frank Walker (free agent) have also played significant roles at a position depleted by injuries last season.

"When we look at how we failed last year as a football team and an organization, our lack of quality depth in the back end hurt us," general manager Ozzie Newsome said. "So, to upgrade that talent was one of the things we set out to do during the offseason."

Mission accomplished.

Leonhard has started seven games, equaling his three-year total in Buffalo. Washington, acquired for a fourth-round draft pick, has made seven starts and Walker four. Collectively, they cushioned the blow of losing cornerback Chris McAlister and Landry for the season and veteran corner Samari Rolle for six games, although Rolle has since returned.

"These guys have done a wonderful job of stepping up," Rolle said of the newcomers. "This being their first year in the defense and picking things up, it's been amazing."

The results show a bottom-line dividend. Last season, the Ravens were shredded for 27 touchdown passes, gave up 222.3 passing yards per game and ranked 20th in pass defense.

This season, they are eighth in pass defense, giving up 188.3 pass yards per game and 12 touchdown passes in 10 games.

"We knew it was going to be important," defensive coordinator Rex Ryan said of the additions. "You can't go through a whole year without having some issues. George Kokinis and Ozzie, they're the best in the league. Our personnel department watches as much film as we [coaches] do, maybe more so. Those guys are really prepared."

Kokinis, the team's director of pro personnel, credits secondary coach Chuck Pagano and Ryan with the push to get Washington when the Oakland Raiders put him up for trade. Pagano coached Washington for two years in Oakland after helping to draft him in the first round in 2005.

Although Washington eventually fell out of favor there, he showed the requisite cover skills to play in the Ravens' defense and came with Pagano's approval.

"I think I can pick up any system," Washington said. "The hard part is getting comfortable with it where you just react. That took me into training camp [to do]."

Kokinis assigned Vince Newsome, his assistant pro personnel director, to evaluate Walker, a free agent after four seasons with the New York Giants and one with the Green Bay Packers. Because Walker ran well and had the ability to play in the nickel package and on special teams, Newsome determined he was another good fit.

"What has been encouraging to me is how much Frank loves to play football," Kokinis said. "He takes more reps than anybody in practice, and he's in with the coaches studying early in the week."

Then there was Leonhard, the 5-foot-8, 186-pound safety who has taken on tight ends this year as well as playing on special teams. Defensive backs coach Mark Carrier made that evaluation, and when Leonhard showed well in his tryout, the Ravens quickly offered him a contract.

"Someone that athletic and that smart we felt was a good fit," Kokinis said. "He learned that defense fast. It's a lot about chemistry, a little about talent and a lot about heart, and he has that."

Ravens' O-line food fighters for Flacco
Thursday dinners give blockers incentive to protect QB; Eagles, though, have appetite for destruction

By Jamison Hensley
The Baltimore Sun
November 23, 2008

When the Ravens' offensive line faces one of its biggest challenges of the season today, part of its motivation can be traced to Thursday.

That's when Joe Flacco takes his closest 300-pound teammates out for their weekly dinner.

Feasting on steaks and seafood, the rookie quarterback and his on-field bodyguards have forged their camaraderie just as much at Ruth's Chris Steak House and T.G.I. Friday's as the locker room.

So if the sack-hungry Philadelphia Eagles want to take a shot at Flacco today at M&T Bank Stadium, they'll have to go through the equally hungry Ravens offensive line, whose main goal is to protect their new friend and meal ticket.

"Of course, women know the fastest way to get to a man's heart is through his belly," center Jason Brown said. "As offensive lineman, we're going to protect our source of food."

When the guys go out, the conversation is never about zone blocking or pulling guards.

They'll usually laugh about who messed up at practice or got yelled at in the meetings that day. The funniest part of the dinner, however, is when the bill comes.

The routine starts when one lineman says he left his wallet in the car. Another then acts as if he can't reach the money in his back pocket.

As the linemen continue to playfully scratch their heads, the check eventually makes its way in front of Flacco. "Don't worry guys, I got it," he typically says.

While most of the linemen do pitch in at the end, Flacco still picks up a bulk of the massive bill.

"It's a good time to hang out with the guys," Flacco said. "Believe me, I'm not going to go anywhere without those guys. They've done a great job all year. It's been a huge year for them and a huge plus for our offense."

If the Ravens (6-4) want to stay in the hunt for the AFC North title - they trail the Pittsburgh Steelers by 1 1/2 games - they need another huge effort from the offensive line against the Eagles (5-4-1).

Entering Week12, Philadelphia was tied with Pittsburgh for the most sacks in the NFL with 36.

As the Eagles blitz linebackers, safeties and cornerbacks, the Ravens will try to thwart this full-throttle attack with an offensive line that is less than full strength.

This group, which has already lost right guard Marshal Yanda (knee) for the season, likely will be without left tackle Jared Gaither (questionable, shoulder). The projected starting tackles - Adam Terry at left and Willie Anderson at right - are playing on injured ankles.

"The health issues are a problem," coach John Harbaugh said. "The fact that we're playing one of the best defensive fronts in football with one of the most complicated schemes in football, that's a problem for us going into this game. We'll see how they respond."

The Ravens' offensive front has dealt with injuries throughout the season. Today's will be the fourth different starting lineup.

But the line has remained solid in pass protection, giving up 18 sacks this season (tied for 13th in the NFL).

Against five teams with defenses ranked in the top 10 in sacks - the Steelers, New York Giants, Tennessee Titans, Miami Dolphins and Oakland Raiders - the Ravens have allowed nine sacks.

"We've had tests before," Brown said. "We've been rotating a lot of guys in and out on the offensive line. The thing is we still have to perform somehow, someway."

As with the Ravens' defense, the strength of Philadelphia's pass rush is its unpredictability.

Fourteen Eagles have recorded a sack (second in the NFL to the New York Jets), which underscores the fact they come from every angle.

"We'll see how well [Flacco] recognizes a complex defense," Harbaugh said. "It'll be really a good challenge and a growth opportunity for Joe in this game."

Most young quarterbacks fail in their first test against the Eagles' defense.

Since Jim Johnson took over as Philadelphia's defensive coordinator in 1999, the Eagles have faced 12 rookie quarterbacks and defeated nine of them.

During that period, Philadelphia has held rookies to a 64.7 quarterback rating, allowing 11 touchdown passes while making 12 interceptions.

"Philadelphia brings it from a lot of areas," Flacco said, "so you have to make sure your eyes are up and you know where to go with the ball."

Flacco has shown he doesn't flinch when confronted with adversity.

Trailing by 14 points against the Cleveland Browns, he led a second-half comeback on the road. After throwing three interceptions in Indianapolis against the Colts, he didn't get picked off for four straight games.

But Flacco hasn't done it alone. If he wants to succeed, he knows exactly whom to feed.

"It's a brotherhood," Brown said. "If we take care of each other off the field, we're going to take care of each other on the field."

Ravens' Reed ultimate 'center fielder'

By James Walker
ESPN.com
January 8, 2009

OWINGS MILLS, Md. -- Here is something you didn't know about Ed Reed: He'd like to give baseball a try.

And he's serious about it.

"I'm a professional player right now," the Baltimore Ravens Pro Bowl safety said. "I feel like -- not that I'll be better than [Michael Jordan] -- but with a little practice, I definitely could be effective in the outfield, stealing some bases and pinch-hitting."

Here is another little-known tidbit: Reed was an awful quarterback at Destrehan High School in Louisiana.

"I threw more interceptions than I caught … I had like four interceptions in one game," he said with a deadpan expression.

Want to know more? Reed's favorite NFL player is Pittsburgh Steelers safety Troy Polamalu.

"We play the same position," Reed said. "I know Troy personally, we've talked about it, and I know he's working hard to do what he does on Sunday."

This is a peek behind the curtain of one of the NFL's most low-key superstars, a game changer who will lead the Ravens into an AFC divisional playoff game Saturday against the Tennessee Titans. In just seven NFL seasons, Reed already has 43 career interceptions in regular-season play and an additonal five thefts in playoff games.

Reed is among several stars remaining in this postseason -- including Polamalu, the Arizona Cardinals' Kurt Warner and the Philadelphia Eagles' Donovan McNabb -- who seemingly have Hall of Fame credentials.

But enshrinement in Canton might be the last thing on Reed's mind, if he even thinks about it at all.

Away from the field, Reed is thoughtful and intelligent -- he graduated from the University of Miami with a liberal arts degree in three years -- but he also is a very private person. He's what those in the NFL community call a "football player." It describes one who enjoys winning and the competition of the game but not necessarily the publicity that comes with it.

Reed is a throwback to a time when game day was the only day that mattered in the NFL. He is not a fan of the incessant sideshow, hype and smack talk that goes on in between games today. Reed's approach would make many old-timers proud.

On Saturday in Nashville, Tenn., Reed will be an important player to watch when the sixth-seeded Ravens (12-5) play the top-seeded Titans (13-3) for the right to advance to the AFC Championship Game. Until then, ESPN.com will help you get a better understanding of the five-time Pro Bowler and this season's interception leader.

Who is Ed Reed?

No one covers the gridiron like Reed. Off the field, no one gets Reed to uncover himself.

He doesn't enjoy lengthy media interviews. His stall is in the back corner of the Ravens' locker room, closest to the shower, training room and the exit door so he can efficiently get in and out of meetings. Everything has a purpose when it comes to the extent and seriousness of Reed's preparation.

When first-year coach John Harbaugh was asked this week whether he had any funny Reed stories, his response was brief.

"No," he said bluntly.

Reed's teammates cannot relate funny Reed tales, either. But a tour through the Ravens' locker room drew various descriptions of Reed as "quiet," "humble," "soulful," "laid back" and "a great guy."

"He is real low key; that's definitely him," Baltimore safety Jim Leonhard said. "He's one of those guys that you don't necessarily see a lot [publicly] or know what's going on all the time about him."

Scott Martin coached Reed for two and a half years at Destrehan. Martin said Reed -- who spent his high school years splitting time between his family's home near a violent section of New Orleans and a family friend's home in a more peaceful neighborhood -- was always quiet in nature. Martin added that Reed also has a lot of character and depth to him and is passionate about things beyond football, such as helping underprivileged children.

"He is a very private person," Martin said. "He's unlike a lot of NFL stars. He's very gracious, and when I've talked to him and asked about the future of his career, he's got a good handle on it.

"Ed's not going to be a man that plays for 20 years just because he's got nothing else to do. He has a good grasp on life and where he wants his future to go."

The playmaker

The Reed everyone knows is the person we see on game day. He is arguably the league's most dominant defensive player with the potential to change games.

Former NFL quarterback (and current ESPN analyst) Trent Dilfer vividly recalls throwing an astonishing interception to Reed. In a 2007 game between the Ravens and the San Francisco 49ers, Dilfer spotted Reed playing the deep third of the field before the snap. He threw a hook route on the outside hash.

The throw was too high for both the receiver and the cornerback, but Reed gambled by leaving his area so early he was in the right place to pick off the errant pass. Dilfer said he couldn't believe Reed flashed in that area and never saw a safety make that type of play in his 13 years in the league.

"He is the only guy I've ever seen that has the ability to be completely out of position at all the right times and never be out of position in the wrong times," Dilfer said.

Some credit goes to Reed's film study. Every player watches game tape, but few can break it down like Reed. While others watch for execution, Reed is looking for tendencies as well.

Where are the quarterback's presnap reads? Who is his favorite target on third down? Does the signal-caller have any quirks to give away play-action fakes?

One teammate estimated Reed watches about 25 hours of game tape per week outside of his normal film study and practice with the team.

"It's to the point where he knows more than the coaches at times," Ravens defensive back Evan Oglesby said.

The combination of smarts, lengthy preparation and rare athletic ability produces results on the football field. Reed has reached the end zone four times this season -- three interception returns and one fumble recovery -- and Baltimore is 4-0 in those games. Including the postseason, Reed has 11 interceptions on the year.

Reed often makes his interceptions in full stride -- and that leads to big returns. He has an amazing 1,144 career return yards. Because the NFL considers regular-season records separate from postseason marks, his career return totals do not include his 64-yard touchdown on one of his two interceptions in the Ravens' 27-9 wild-card victory over the Miami Dolphins this past Sunday.

"You can flat out tell that he goes out every Sunday and knows exactly where the reads are going," former Dallas Cowboys safety and current ESPN analyst Darren Woodson said. "I know he played quarterback at some point in his life, because he knows how to read offenses from the middle of the field."

Greatest safety ever?

Is Reed the greatest safety in NFL history? Let's open the discussion.

First, consider the big picture. Reed is a ball-hawking safety with unique coverage skills and responsibilities. He often plays the deep third or deep half of the field, while other all-time greats such as Ronnie Lott physically dominated closer to the line of scrimmage. It's difficult to compare, for instance, Lott's ferocious hitting with Reed's ability to intercept passes from that position.

"Every safety has something different that he brings to the table," said Reed, who refuses to partake in the debate.

Statistically, the all-time interception leader is longtime Washington Redskins and Minnesota Vikings safety Paul Krause with 81. He played 16 years. Reed's 43 career interceptions put him at an average of 6.14 per season, compared to Krause's 5.06 per season.

At Reed's current pace, he would need a little more than six seasons to surpass Krause's all-time mark. It's certainly possible if Reed, 30, desires to play well into his 30s.
Regardless of Reed's future plans, his journey likely will include a trip to the Hall of Fame. Who knows, with a little work, maybe he can make a few basket catches in the major leagues similar to one of his interceptions against the Dolphins this past weekend.

"I'd like to give baseball a try, coaching and doing some things in the neighborhoods, helping kids out across the world," Reed said. "It's really no limit. So hopefully in the future sometime I'll be doing that."

Ngata thriving under the radar for Ravens

By Jeffri Chadiha

December 3, 2008

Since the voting for this year's Pro Bowl wraps up early next week, it's time to start speculating on who's going to get snubbed. The NFC already looks like it has a logjam at both running back and defensive end, especially since both positions have about six worthy candidates. In the AFC, the biggest question will involve defensive tackle, meaning Baltimore's Haloti Ngata once again might be ignored. And that literally would be a shame if it happened.

The problem for Ngata is that he's having another great year in a conference that is flush with interior talent. We know former Carolina Panthers Pro Bowler Kris Jenkins has been reborn with the New York Jets. We've seen how motivated Shaun Rogers suddenly has become for a Cleveland Browns team that hasn't had much else to smile about this year. We also realize that Tennessee's Albert Haynesworth will get plenty of votes for Defensive Player of the Year and that San Diego nose tackle Jamal Williams has been to three straight Pro Bowls.

But here's what you have to understand about Ngata: He's every bit as talented and as vital to his team's success as those more recognizable names. This year he has produced strong numbers -- 41 tackles, one sack and two interceptions -- for a defense that ranks second overall in the NFL and third against the run.

"He's been a huge part of our success," said Ravens defensive coordinator Rex Ryan. "He's started from day one and he's only gotten better and better. Now I know there are some great defensive tackles in the league, but I wouldn't trade this guy for anybody."

To his credit, Ngata hasn't let his lack of acclaim bother him. He understands that he toils for a defense with high-profile players (like Ray Lewis, Ed Reed and Terrell Suggs) and that he probably wasn't recognizable enough to earn a trip to Hawaii last year. As he said, "I know it's hard to make it to the Pro Bowl, and that's why I just focus on doing my job to help this team win. But I have been hearing a lot more about my chances this year. So I'm starting to feel like people appreciate what I do."

What Ngata does is essentially a little bit of everything for the Ravens. On some downs he'll be asked to occupy blockers so Lewis and his fellow linebackers can roam free to make tackles. On others Ngata will be told to penetrate gaps and blow up plays. Ryan actually became so enamored with Ngata's athleticism -- and this was after the coach watched film of the 6-foot-4, 345-pound defender bowling over opponents as a high school rugby player -- that Ryan added some sets that allow Ngata to blitz.

All these roles have turned Ngata into a favorite during defensive film sessions, and Ryan often hears his players ask for some of Ngata's highlights to be replayed over and over. In fact, one of Ngata's most notable moments came in a 41-13 win over Houston, when he intercepted a Sage Rosenfels pass after dropping into coverage. It also probably won't take long for the Ravens to have some fun with him now that he's a part of Baltimore's goal-line package as well.

These are some of the reasons why Ryan calls Ngata "the kind of player who comes along once every 10 years." Opponents are just as quick to pass out the compliments.

"The guy really is powerful," said New York Giants left tackle Dave Diehl. "And he knows how to use his hands to create problems for offensive linemen. He's the kind of guy who can disrupt an offensive scheme because you can't take the chance of not double-teaming him. And when you do that, he opens up opportunities for somebody else."

The scary thing about Ngata is that he's improving even faster than the Ravens thought he might when they drafted him 12th overall out of Oregon in the 2006 draft. He admits that he was a little hesitant as a rookie because the game moved so quickly.

"I felt lost at first because everything was happening fast and the coaches expected you to learn the plays fast," he said. But once Ngata hit his stride -- which in his estimation happened in the second half of last season -- he became dominant.

Today, Ryan said that Ngata is so knowledgeable about the Ravens' defense that Ngata probably knows exactly what the cornerbacks are doing on every down. Ngata also has found a comfort zone in a Baltimore locker room filled with outsized personalities. For a low-key, soft-spoken guy from Utah, it wasn't easy to be around so many alpha male types at first. But now he'll joke and poke fun whenever he gets a chance to razz a teammate.

Those same players are also quick to sing Ngata's praises to anybody who will listen. They know he does the dirty work and that few people really get to see how productive he is for this team. So now they're hoping he gets his due for one obvious reason: They know their defense wouldn't be nearly as good if he wasn't a part of that unit.

For Ravens, Lewis still the man

By Thom Loverro
The Washington Times
December 4, 2008

The motto this year for the Baltimore Ravens' defense has been "next man up." When Chris McAlister and Samari Rolle went down with injuries this season, they had players step up and fill the void - a system defense, if you will.

The system? Ray Lewis.

The linebacker, who in his 13th NFL season should be in the twilight of his career, instead remains one of the best at his position in the league and is again leading a powerful Ravens defense that has not allowed a touchdown in the last 10 quarters.

It is a defense with great talent, from perennial All-Pro Ed Reed at safety to outstanding linebackers Terrell Suggs and Bart Scott and a tough defensive line led by Trevor Pryce and Haloti Ngata.

But the brains and brawn of the defense the Washington Redskins will face Sunday night is the same as it was when the Ravens marched through the 2000 season on their way to a Super Bowl championship - Lewis.

At the Ravens' training facility Wednesday, Suggs was asked about his defense's ability to put points on the board.

"Our chances are better when we have the defense making plays," Suggs said, adding, "and it always helps when you have Ray Lewis."

The presence of the nine-time Pro Bowl linebacker and two-time NFL defensive player of the year has not appeared to wear thin. If anything, Lewis' impact on this team is stronger than ever, as he has grown to be a tremendous on-field defensive coordinator.

"Just watch the man before the snap," Suggs said. "He has a lot going on. That is why he is the leader. He pretty much kind of guides us. I kind of tend to guess sometimes, but he knows. He tells me, 'This is coming, that is coming.'"

His ability to read defenses frustrated Bengals wide receiver T.J. Houshmandzadeh during Baltimore's 34-3 win over Cincinnati last week so much that Houshmandzadeh felt compelled to ask Lewis about it on the field.

"T.J. came up to me after seven straight plays and asked, 'How do you know what every play is going to be?'" Lewis said. "I said, 'I do a lot of studying.' He said, 'No, it's something you're watching, something you're seeing.'"

Lewis said he works harder than ever to be prepared for each opponent, not just for his position but to make the calls for everyone else on defense as well.

"I sit down and go through films for hours, so it is second nature for me," Lewis said. "I can say, 'OK, I've seen this before.' It is about getting my players in the right position so they can make plays."

Someone asked Lewis how many plays can he see coming. "It's a high amount," he said.

That is no idle boast. Lewis leads the team with 84 tackles. The Ravens' run defense, ranked third in the NFL, hasn't allowed a 100-yard rusher in 31 games. Baltimore is second in turnovers this season with 23 and has the top-ranked defense on third down. It ranks among the league leaders in nearly every defensive category.

Lewis is careful to spread the credit around, including Baltimore's defensive coordinator, Rex Ryan.

"We have a mentality that everybody has bought into, and that is to find the football," Lewis said. "We just are playing where we are supposed to be.

"The run we are on comes with a lot of guys really buying into the system," he said. "Rex is doing an incredible job of getting us in the right schemes and things like that. There is a lot of credit to go around. And the offense is controlling the ball a lot. We're not going three-and-out. So it is a lot of different things, the way we are playing right now."

Ryan is the third defensive coordinator Lewis has played for. The one constant throughout the Baltimore Ravens' era of defensive excellence has been Lewis. In fact, Lewis - even with the stain of an obstruction of justice conviction in a fatal 2000 stabbing - has become the identity of Baltimore sports.

The Lewis era doesn't appear to be close to ending, either. When asked whether he thought he had a season like this left in him, when it appeared he was on the downside of his game, the 33-year-old Lewis replied: "Men and women lie, but numbers don't. You just keep playing football. You don't care what people say. Bottom line is you line up and ask the people playing against me. You just play the game the same way and approach it the same way you did in Year one as you do in Year 13 with the same passion, the same dedication."

Liquid showers show Ravens have solid chemistry

By David Steele
The Baltimore Sun
December 7, 2008

Gatorade showers? Who does Gatorade showers anymore?

The Ravens do, lots of them. They love getting them and giving them - and, by doing so, they're proving that they're pretty fond of one another, which is never anything to be taken for granted.

There have been six this season, but they didn't pick up speed until late October, when offensive coordinator Cam Cameron got one at the end of the Ravens' win in Miami, where he was fired last season after one year as coach. In somewhat rapid succession came soakings of defensive coordinator Rex Ryan, after beating the Raiders and his twin (and Oakland defensive coordinator), Rob; special assistant Vic Fangio, after defeating the Houston Texans team that fired him as defensive coordinator; head coach John Harbaugh, after beating the Philadelphia Eagles team he left to come to the Ravens; and last week, longtime Bengals offensive tackle Willie Anderson after the win in Cincinnati.

Notice the pattern of the baptismal candidates. "We've been in a position where, whether it be a coach or player, we've been able to go back and play the team they were on the previous year," wide receiver Derrick Mason said. "We have a good track record of going back to those places, or them coming here, and us winning."

It's true in every case except Ryan's, and the first of Harbaugh's two (he got one for winning his head coaching debut against Cincinnati). This likely means that quarterbacks coach Hue Jackson ought to keep his head on a swivel tonight. Harbaugh acknowledged that the team "was a little disappointed" that it didn't get Jackson last week; he had spent three years on the Bengals' staff. However, he also previously coached with the Washington Redskins, whom the Ravens play tonight.

Beyond the pattern of payback celebrations, however, lies an even deeper pattern, one that goes to the heart of why this team has taken the leap from last season's debacle to this season's playoff contention.

"It's a good environment. In my 13years, it's by far the best environment I've been around," Anderson said. "Guys who enjoy being around each other - I've been places where it's not fun coming to work, but here, even when times are hard, it's fun coming to work every day."

Veteran Ravens, of course, have something more to compare with than Anderson does, but they agree that after some roller-coaster seasons at the end of Brian Billick's tenure, this is an improvement.

"I think it started in OTAs," Mason said, speaking of the long string of offseason workouts after Harbaugh took over. "We were in a situation where with new coaches and new players, we really didn't know what was going on, but the longer we worked together, the more that bond seemed to grow."

It's far from a perfect bond, and even the players acknowledge that - at least those who were not angrily denying reports of pockets of resistance to Harbaugh last week. Those pockets, however, are far outnumbered by those willing to tune in to, and trust, a new set of voices.

"It's a new environment, and not everybody is going to agree with how it's being run," cornerback Samari Rolle said. "But it's a new regime - why not go along with it? The way things were going before wasn't working, and guys were going around here moping. So when things do change, why not embrace it?"

The ever-increasing Gatorade showers indicate the concept is being embraced. Corny, yes, and definitely cold, but the Ravens wouldn't mind keeping the ritual going.

Ravens' offense emptying bag of tricks

By Aaron Wilson
Carroll County Times
December 3, 2008

OWINGS MILLS -- The Baltimore Ravens' extensive repertoire of gadget plays and trickery has revealed the creativity of offensive coordinator Cam Cameron.

Whether it's his variation of the trendy single-wing offense, wide receiver option passes, double reverses or utilizing big defensive tackle Haloti Ngata as a blocking tight end, Cameron hasn't hesitated to use his imagination to forge an imprint on an offense that had been notoriously stagnant for years until his arrival.

Could the Statue of Liberty play, flea-flickers or perhaps even a few touches for the 6-foot-4, 345-pound Ngata, a former standout rugby player, be in the offing?

"There's always a creative mind, right?" Ravens coach John Harbaugh said. "There's always things you can go to."

In a 34-3 rout of the Cincinnati Bengals, Mark Clayton hit fellow wide receiver Derrick Mason in stride on a 32-yard option pass for a touchdown.

It was Clayton who scored on a 42-yard double reverse to open the season against the Bengals.

And rookie quarterback Joe Flacco caught a 43-yard pass from backup quarterback Troy Smith against the Oakland Raiders operating the so-called "Suggs package."

If Cameron ever runs out of bright ideas, his suggestion box is overflowing with players lobbying to be included in the game plan.

"I think our motto has been, by any means necessary," Mason said. "We're going to find a way."

There has also been a liberal amount of old-fashioned option plays with Smith operating under center.

The result has been a less predictable, higher-scoring attack.

The Ravens are now tied for 10th in the NFL in scoring with 24.3 points per game, leading the league over the past seven games with a 30.6 average since Oct. 19.

"I think the offense is only going to open up more things for more guys," tight end Todd Heap said. "I think this is what we've been waiting for in an offense: being versatile and a lot of guys making plays and a lot of different guys getting the ball in their hands. It's a lot of fun, and it's what we need as an offense."

Against the Bengals, the Ravens revealed a lot of their playbook in one defender's opinion.

"They dialed up everything that they had," Cincinnati defensive tackle John Thornton said. "They had Troy Smith in there and were running reverse passes and stuff. I think we got to see their whole playbook, we were out there so much."

The Ravens gained a season-high 451 yards of total offense against the Bengals, but are confident that they have more in store for the future.

"Offensively, we're doing so much moving the ball around and everyone is getting involved," middle linebacker Ray Lewis said. "All of those pieces over there, I just think it's exciting the way we're playing football overall."

One key to Clayton's touchdown pass was the convincing block Mason threw at the beginning of the play to make cornerback Leon Hall believe it was a reverse, not the spiraling pass that wound up sailing over his head.

"Derrick Mason did a great job of selling the stalk block," Harbaugh said. "He didn't just give it a perfunctory stutter-and-go. He got in there and dug in and blocked their corner for a good period of time and made it seem like a run.
"And then he took off. That's what really sells a play like that. It's really the execution of it more than anything."

At the heart of the Ravens' emerging offense, though, is the bedrock of a physical running game that ranks third in the NFL with 143.8 yards per contest.

Without that benchmark, it would be extremely difficult to orchestrate these higher degree of difficulty, razzle-dazzle displays.

"I think the trick in the whole thing is to build a foundation first and , within that, to be creative," Harbaugh said. "So when you talk about coach Cameron and what he's done with our offense, we're a fundamentally sound offense.

"We're built on a foundation that is fundamentally rock solid, and that's what we believe in. And within that, you build some creativity in, and I think guys understand that is what your offense is about."

Ravens full of surprises this season
From rookie QB to revamped line (and even getting holiday off), club does unexpected

By Jamison Hensley
The Baltimore Sun
December 23, 2008

In a season when the Ravens have done the unexpected - doubling their win total from last season and closing in on a playoff berth - John Harbaugh was the one who provided the surprise yesterday.

The first-year head coach has given his players the day off on Christmas.

But is there any risk with this reward?

After adhering to essentially the same practice schedule for four months, the Ravens are tinkering with their routine only days before a potentially season-deciding game against the Jacksonville Jaguars.

"There are concerns among coaches and among players about any kind of change," Harbaugh said. "We're definitely creatures of habit. We just felt like the value of getting people with their families overrode that."

Harbaugh announced the revised schedule yesterday, but he had discussed the options with the veterans (his "30-plus group") about three weeks ago.

The Ravens had some flexibility this week because they played Saturday. That gave the coaching staff an extra day of preparation and allowed the Ravens to move up their practices.

Instead of practicing tomorrow and Thursday, the Ravens will work today (their usual day off) and tomorrow. After taking off on Christmas, the Ravens will return Friday.

In the end, the Ravens will have the same number of practices.

"We thought it was an easy decision to make," Harbaugh said.

Keeping with the theme of surprises, here are the five biggest ones with the Ravens this season:

1. Joe Flacco. The rookie first-round pick was the team's third quarterback leading up to the third preseason game. Now, he is one win away from taking the Ravens to the playoffs.

The Ravens knew about Flacco's big arm and poise. But the 6-foot-6 pocket passer caught everyone off guard with his athleticism. He made a nifty 43-yard catch against Oakland and has two runs of more than 30 yards - the same number that LaDainian Tomlinson, Clinton Portis and Michael Turner have this season.

2. Le'Ron McClain. The fullback took a few snaps at tailback during training camp because Ray Rice was the only healthy runner. That experiment has led McClain to become the club's top rusher.

The powerful back leads the Ravens this season in rushing yards (832) and carries (207). His eight touchdowns rank as the third-best single-season total in Ravens history. It's an unexpected turnaround for McClain, who had eight carries for 18 yards as a rookie last season.

3. The secondary. Just like last season, injuries hit the defensive backs. This season, the Ravens were ready. Instead of turning to inexperienced cornerbacks David Pittman and Ronnie Prude, the Ravens have veteran backups like cornerback Fabian Washington and safety Jim Leonhard.

So, despite losing two starters for most of the season (cornerback Chris McAlister and safety Dawan Landry), the Ravens rank third in pass defense and top the NFL in interceptions (24). They have held quarterbacks to a NFL-best rating of 61.1 (the next closest is Pittsburgh's 66.0).

4. Trick plays. These aren't the same old Ravens who line up in a two-tight-end I-formation for most of the game and generate big plays by throwing a jump ball to Todd Heap. Under first-year offensive coordinator Cam Cameron, the Ravens use unbalanced lines (two offensive tackles on one side) and even two quarterbacks on the same play.

The results have been electric. Backup quarterback Troy Smith threw a long pass to Flacco and Mark Clayton launched a 32-yard touchdown pass to fellow receiver Derrick Mason. The special teams got into the act Saturday, when the Ravens converted a fourth-and-six with a fake field goal.

5. Offensive line. It's easy to forget that none of the season-opening starters was at the same spot that he finished last season for the Ravens and the coaching staff hadn't determined the lineup until early June. The offensive line then had to adjust when right tackle Willie Anderson was signed just before the start of the regular season and right guard Marshal Yanda sustained a season-ending knee injury five games into it.

But the Ravens have done an admirable job up front. Their blocking has opened up holes for the NFL's second-best rushing attack (149.9 yards per game). The offensive line has also given up 30 sacks, which ranks in the middle of the NFL (15th). That number is more impressive when you consider the Ravens have faced six defenses that rank in the top eight in sacks, including the top three (Dallas, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia).

Ravens' McClain pushes full steam ahead
Running back finds his footing, helping to carry team to playoffs

By Kevin Van Valkenburg
The Baltimore Sun
January 9, 2009

So much of Le'Ron McClain's life is about balance. It's a word that has multiple meanings for the Ravens' second-year fullback.

In the physical sense, it is one of his greatest strengths. The 260-pound pile driver has emerged this season as the Ravens' most consistent, most effective offensive weapon.

But what most people didn't realize about McClain is that he was still figuring out a different kind of balance in his life: the delicate dance so many NFL players must learn of how to handle the dueling responsibilities of fatherhood and football.

McClain and his girlfriend had their first child, a daughter named Alexzondria, in November 2007, late in his rookie season. When he held his little girl for the first time, he had tears in his eyes. Every time he looked at her while he was back home in Alabama, it was hard to focus on working out and preparing for camp. He loved her in more ways than he could ever describe.

"She changed my life completely," McClain said. "I know that when I get up in the morning, she's right there. I was putting her first and my workouts second, and when I got to camp, I knew that had caught up with me. But I felt like I had to go through that."

There have been plenty of surprises this season for the Ravens, among them Joe Flacco, who is trying to become the first rookie quarterback to win two straight playoff games. But Flacco's steady improvement wasn't nearly as unexpected as the emergence of McClain, 24, who led the team with 902rushing yards on 232carries.

And when gusts of wind are knifing across the field at about 20mph tomorrow afternoon in Nashville, Tenn., you can bet that the Ravens will turn to him as they try to knock off the No.1-seeded Titans in the AFC divisional round of the playoffs.
In 2007, McClain carried the ball just eight times, and when he showed up in training camp this season overweight and out of shape, it didn't look as if his role would change much.

Unbeknown to most people, the Ravens had big plans for McClain this season, and they were confident he could handle another kind of balance: playing the role of both tailback and fullback.

Offensive coordinator Cam Cameron called him and told him to be ready for a bigger workload, which was surprising considering McClain hadn't run the ball much since high school. In four years at the University of Alabama, McClain had just 37 carries. Even in the Crimson Tide's jumbo package, McClain was a blocker for another fullback.

"I felt like I could always do this," McClain said. "One of the other running backs, Ken Darby, and I would always joke about it. I'd be like, 'Man, I wish I could get the ball!' I went to the [Alabama] coaches and asked them to give me the ball, but they really wanted me to be a blocker."

In that respect, Willis McGahee's lingering offseason knee problems turned out to be a blessing for the Ravens. For much of training camp, McClain and Ray Rice were the only two running backs the team had, and because McClain was out of shape, he was going to get as many reps as physically possible, no matter how exhausted he was.

"It was disappointing, especially for a new coaching staff, to see him come to camp out of shape," Ravens running backs coach Wilbert Montgomery said. "But once he got going and made that commitment, that's when we saw the changes in Le'Ron. It was just down to him and [Rice]. I remember one day, the two of them took almost 200 reps in practice. When I saw, right then and there, that there was no sign of waver, that's when he became a player."

McClain can still block with the best of them, delivering that devastating blow to a linebacker to free up a teammate for a crucial yard, but the Ravens have been leaning on him significantly as a ball carrier late in the season.

In the past seven games, including the playoff victory over the Miami Dolphins, he has scored six touchdowns and averaged 21.7carries and 86.6yards. He was one of five Ravens named to the Pro Bowl, and his 82-yard touchdown run at Dallas finished off their biggest win of the regular season.

"He's a real good player," Titans coach Jeff Fisher said. "He pushes the pile, he's a north-south runner, he's got good vision and he's tough. That's what you need if you're going to take the approach they take with their run game. They create a lot of third-and-ones and third-and-twos, which makes it hard to get off the field."

That doesn't mean McClain is anything close to a polished product. He still drives Montgomery a little nuts with his lack of focus at times. Last week's first-half fumble against Miami was a good example. Most running backs would have read the play, seen that it wasn't working, put two hands on the ball and accepted a short loss. McClain tried to switch the ball to his left hand and stiff-arm a defender, and Miami's defense poked the ball out.

"I still get frustrated with him," Montgomery said. "Sometimes it's like talking to a jackass. He's so stubborn about things. You think you've covered everything, and you find out it's not enough. It's never enough. … On a scale of one to 10, I'd say he's at a two right now. He's got a lot of room to improve at this given stage."

McClain isn't shy about putting in the work to get there, which he says is something he learned from his mother, Gwen McClain. She became a single parent with two kids when McClain's father died in a car accident when McClain was 6 months old.

"She was really my backbone, my hero," McClain said of his mother, who worked as a housekeeper, cleaning hotel rooms, for most of his life. "Just seeing how hard she worked for me and my older brother, that's one reason why I push myself so much now. I remember plenty of nights when she didn't eat just so we could eat."

McClain lived in Fort Wayne, Ind., through the fifth grade, and then his mother moved the family to Northport, Ala., to a neighborhood McClain still refers to as "the projects." She taught him if he really wanted something in life, he had better be willing to work for it, and so McClain's senior year at Tuscaloosa County High, he took a job at McDonald's for a few months to save enough money so that he could attend his senior prom.

"I knew my mom couldn't pay for prom, and I really wanted to go because I hadn't been my junior year," McClain said. "I worked as a cook, whipping up those double cheeseburgers."

Occasionally, when McClain drives past a McDonald's or when he visits his old neighborhood in Northport, he can step outside himself and think about the journey he has been on from past to present. He visited his old community last offseason for the first time in several years and was struck by how much it reminded him of the days when he used to dream of playing in the NFL.

"I parked and just walked around," McClain said. "I just wanted to see where I was at then, staying in the projects, places where I used to play, and talk to some of the older people who are still there, still doing the same thing."

Football, McClain understands, wasn't just a way out of the projects for him; it's also his chance to give his daughter a childhood with far more comfort and stability than his own. One of the few times he got to see her this season, when she and McClain's girlfriend traveled to Baltimore, they watched a SpongeBob SquarePants movie together.

"She loved it," McClain said. "It's about the only time she's still right now."

Alexzondria is walking now, he said. Like her father, she's learning her own delicate version of balance.

For one Raven, it hurts so good
Mason's ability to play through pain a big reason Ravens on brink of playoffs

By Ron Snyder
The Baltimore Examiner
December 24, 2008

Derrick Mason is in pain — a lot of pain.

He's in so much agony he's rarely practiced the past six weeks since separating his shoulder when he made a diving catch against Houston in early November. But the pain Mason suffered on the football field pales in comparison to what he endures when he arrives home and sees his 5-year-old son, Derrick II.

"My son runs up and hits me and wants to do so many things, but I have to tell him that dad's arm hurts," Mason said. "I think he realizes it now, but at the same time he's a boy."

Still, Mason perseveres. He made six catches -- none bigger than a 13-yard touchdown reception in the third quarter -- for 66 yards to fuel a 33-24 victory over Dallas on Saturday. Mason winced in pain with every catch and every hit, especially when he made a key fumble recovery to set up scoring catch, as the pain in his shoulder forced him to leave the field three times.

"Knowing Derrick's heart and how dedicated he is to our team and what we're trying to do right now, I knew that nothing short of him having a heart attack or having to undergo surgery could keep him off that football field [on Saturday]," center Jason Brown said.

Mason, 34, has played in 105 straight games, a streak he doesn't plan on ending on Sunday afternoon at 4:15 when the Ravens (10-5) host the Jacksonville Jaguars (5-10) at M&T Bank Stadium. But how much Mason plays likely depends on what happens in Orchard Park, N.Y., earlier in the day.

If the Buffalo Bills (7-8) defeat the New England Patriots (10-5), the Ravens would be guaranteed the sixth -- and final -- spot in the AFC playoffs, regardless of what happens against Jacksonville.

"One day my son will want to play sports," Mason said. "I can then look back and reminisce with him that your old dad played through some tough ones. That will be motivation for him for whatever he's going through. He can look back and say 'If my father can do it I can do it.'"

Mason has made a team-high 74 catches for 960 yards and five touchdowns. His season reception total is exactly twice as much Mark Clayton, who is second on the team who has 37 catches for 567 yards and three scores.

"I don't know if I've ever seen a tougher football player in 25 years of coaching," Coach John Harbaugh said. "It's a tribute to who he is as a competitor, and I'm sure he'll be out there Sunday doing whatever is necessary to help the Ravens win that football game."

Mason is ninth among active players with 784 career receptions and 9,984 yards, and no receiver in the game today --not even Terrell Owens, Randy Moss, Marvin Harrison or Issac Bruce -- can match Mason's nine straight seasons with at least 60 catches.

"Derrick Mason has an amazing drive," tight end Daniel Wilcox said. "Right now, he's playing though an extreme amount of pain every week. I don't know if you can put it into words on what he's dealing with right now because many times he's out there playing with one arm."

Mason said his shoulder is structurally sound. The pain, he said, stems from muscle spasms around the shoulder trying to compensate from the weakness caused by the injury.

"I think the shoulder is as stable as it can be right now," said Mason, adding he doesn't expect to have surgery at season's end. "It's football, so you deal with it."

Ravens' offensive line grew up in a hurry
Development keyed by line coach Matsko

OWINGS MILLS -- It rapidly became an unwanted tradition during training camp for the Baltimore Ravens' offensive line to endure repetitive sequences of pass rushers barreling toward the quarterback like children being dismissed for recess.

Blocking drills often degenerated into a lost cause against a swaggering defense in the August heat of Westminster. Both starting offensive tackles, a once-unproven Jared Gaither and Adam Terry, were sidelined for the majority of the preseason with sprained ankles.

And the challenge of replacing retired All-Pro offensive tackle Jonathan Ogden was a constant topic of conversation.

Things definitely looked bleak for the youngest offensive line in the NFL.

Yet, they weren't really worried at all.

"We knew that everything was going to be all right," center Jason Brown said. "We took care of all those doubts you all might have. We knew what it was going to take and we took care of that in practice.

"People talking about the offensive line said we were a question mark, but we never thought that way. As hard as we've been working since back in March, we took care of any concerns and doubts before the season started."

Brown's assessment proved to be correct.

Gaither and Terry recovered from injuries just in time for the start of the regular season. And Gaither, a 6-foot-9, 330-pound left tackle from White Plains has emerged as a solid replacement for Ogden in just his fifth year of organized football after taking up the sport as a senior at Eleanor Roosevelt in Greenbelt.

Despite a season-ending knee injury to right guard Marshal Yanda and various injuries to Gaither (a painful sprained right shoulder that has relegated him to blocking with one arm at times), Terry (arthroscopic knee surgery) and veteran Willie Anderson (sprained ankle), the offensive line has jelled with rookie quarterback Joe Flacco only sacked 30 times and the running game ranked second in the NFL with a 149.9 rushing average.

"We're like brothers on the offensive line," Gaither said. "We've been doing this all year, having good games on the offensive line and the running backs toting the rock. I'm extremely proud. We fought through the injuries and are pretty well and good right now."

Ravens coach John Harbaugh said that the coaching staff didn't settle on how they wanted to configure the line until June. Then, those plans were often disrupted by injuries.

Besides the players' improvement and perseverance, there has been a strong voice behind the scenes guiding the development.

It's offensive line coach John Matsko, an old-school taskmaster who has coached blocking luminaries like Tony Boselli, Willie Roaf, Will Shields, Adam Timmerman and Orlando Pace.

It has been Matsko's mixture of yelling and constructive criticism along with assistant offensive line coach Andy Moeller that has built the offensive line from a suspect group into a credible unit.

"It's just a credit to John Matsko," Harbaugh said. "It starts with John Matsko. He's got to be the best offensive line coach in the league. We kind of felt that going into the season, but to see what he's done with this group of guys sure confirms it."

The Ravens have rushed for 124 first downs for the second most in the NFL and have scored 17 touchdowns on the ground while averaging 4.0 yards per carry.

They are the only NFL team to have players with over 800, 600 and 400 rushing yards, using a committee approach with Pro Bowl fullback Le'Ron McClain (832 yards, eight touchdowns), Willis McGahee (647 yards, six touchdowns) and rookie Ray Rice (454 yards, 4.2 average) as well as a hard-nosed approach on the offensive line.

"It's their first order of business to be physical," Harbaugh said. "It's not just the running game you want to be physical. You want to be physical in pass protection, and you've got to be able to pass protect in the NFL. You can't just line up and run it 60 times and win in this league. You've got to be able to protect.

"You've got to understand protection schemes, adjustments and how people are pressurin g you. The intellectual part of it, John has done a great job and our offensive linemen have picked that up very well. Especially for a young group that hasn't played together, I think we're way ahead of the curve with that."

Matsko, who regularly deflects praise and politely declines attention and interviews, tends to follow the break 'em down, build 'em back up coaching philosophy.

In film sessions, he's known for being brutally honest. He's also known for reinforcing players' confidence with heavy praise when it's deserved.

"He's a challenge," Brown said. "He has individually broken down film on each and every one of us. He knows our strengths and weaknesses. He makes us better.

"To tell you the truth, I don't know how we got him. He's the best that's out there. To have him as our offensive line coach, he has brought us up leaps and bounds in one year."

The Ravens are set up well for the future along the offensive line.

Anderson, 33, is the elder statesman of the line as a reliable four-time Pro Bowl selection.

Left offensive guard Ben Grubbs, a first-round draft pick last year, has drawn praise for his work as a mobile downfield blocker and technician adept at pulling.

Brown, an impending unrestricted free agent whom general manager Ozzie Newsome has expressed interest in re-signing, has grown into a leader and a stout, quick presence in the middle who was named to Sports Illustrated's All-Pro team a year ago.

Yanda is an aggressive, tough blocker expected to recover from three torn knee ligaments to play next season. Former second-round pick Chris Chester has been impressively lately filling in for Yanda after drawing criticism earlier this season.

And Terry is a big, athletic and versatile swing player capable of playing left or right tackle when his health cooperates.

"I think it all started with Ozzie bringing all of us in here, and bringing in the same type of guys," Gaither said. "I know he's proud and we're proud."

NFL Insider: Ravens' ailing Brigance inspiring team's run

OWINGS MILLS, Md. — Who is the strongest Baltimore Raven? Two-time defensive player of the year Ray Lewis?

Monstrous defensive tackle Haloti Ngata?

Not even close.

Head coach John Harbaugh says his 7-4 team's toughest man is director of player development O.J. Brigance, who can't raise his arms to shake hands, yet touches everyone from his motorized cart whether watching practice, in the locker room before and after games or advising players on their futures.

The former special teams standout is battling amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, an incurable neurodegenerative disease.

"Here is O.J. Brigance, the mightiest man in the building," Harbaugh says. "O.J. struggles to walk and he's beginning to have trouble talking. Yet everybody in this building knows he's the strongest guy in here."

Brigance, 39, says each year more than 5,000 Americans are diagnosed with Lou Gehrig's disease. But he considers himself ALS's ambassador. He teaches players the toughest life skill — the attitude one chooses when faced with the kind of news Brigance and wife, Chanda, received with his diagnosis in May 2007.

"O.J. told us he was in a battle and was going to win that battle," general manager Ozzie Newsome says. "He's winning that battle … He's having an even bigger impact the way he's living."

Brigance played seven seasons, helping the Ravens hoist the Super Bowl XXXV Lombardi Trophy.

"O.J. was a wedge buster, the best in the league," says Harbaugh, a former Philadelphia Eagles special teams coach. "He had no fear. It's exactly how he's living.

"He's still busting wedges."

Brigance not only created his position in 2003, but was recognized as the league's best in 2005 and 2006.

"We all pray every day for the miracle cure for O.J.," Harbaugh says. "If it doesn't happen, then, the other miracle is O.J. — the power of true faith, true strength and true mightiness in how he's showing us how to live."

Brigance saved a man's life recently. "A guy in England wrote me an e-mail about how much the NFL Network story on me this spring really touched him," Brigance says.

"He lost his daughter at 15. He didn't know how he was going to live. After seeing how I've chosen to live my life in spite of ALS, he was encouraged to go on."

Brigance has raised nearly $300,000 toward finding a cure through his website, Brigancebrigade.org.

Worried how his deteriorating body affected others, Brigance addressed the team at training camp.

"I realized that these men are having to do something no other team in the NFL is having to go through, seeing someone fighting for their life each and every day," Brigance says.

His one request?

"Do not treat me any differently."

Is he ever afraid?

"I may have broken down one time when I said, 'I may be dead by the age of 40,' " he says. "But once I got up and dried my tears … how could I not accept the challenge I've been blessed with?"

Brigance takes delight exceeding those speed limits for his motorized cart posted by running backs coach Wilbert Montgomery — 1.9 mph for the long hallway; 1.0 leaving the cafeteria.

"I can't run fast anymore. I might as well drive fast," Brigance laughs.

It is a hearty laugh of a Raven mocking an opponent that can't touch his spirit.

"He's given us great perspective on living, or even better yet, how to die," assistant director of player development Harry Swayne says.

Brigance finds reasons to give thanks during a difficult time.

"Whenever I go to the doctor, looking around, I say, 'Man, I've got it good.'

"I've got family that loves me, an organization behind me. I get to do what I love every day. There's some who can't walk. Some can't speak. How we're choosing to deal with it is key. All we can ask is, 'How can we make life better?' "
